Memorial To Dead On Moon

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Apollo 15's astronauts said today they left a memorial in the dust of the moon to commemorate the 14 American and Soviet spacemen who have died in man's effort to conquer space.

David R. Scott, Alfred M. Worden and James B. Irwin, appearing at their first news conference since returning from the moon last Saturday, said they planted the simple, silver-and-black metal plaque in a small crater, listing the names of the dead spacemen. In front of it they placed a shiny metallic figure representing a fallen astronaut.

"Space exploration has come a long way," said Scott, commander of the record-breaking, 12-day expedition to the mountains of the moon. "We started with some rough beginnings and we've had about 10 years of trials, tribulations and successes.

"I think many people have contributed to the pinnacle we have reached. Some have contributed more than others, and we know of 14 individuals who contributed all they had."

The astronauts, appearing before several hundred newsmen and tourists, said the moon "is indeed a fascinating place" with a wealth of scientific information to be harvested.

"I believe we should probably explore the moon to a far greater extent than we're planning right now and I'm sure some day we will'' said Scott. "I think the day will come and I hope it won't be too far off when we can send people to the moon and they can spend months up there because I'll guarantee they'll never get tired of finding new things."

Worden said Apollo 15's hard Pacific ocean splashdown "could have been a normal landing as far as we were concerned," despite the collapse of one of three parachutes during the final moments of descent.

The spacecraft was equipped with collapsible compartments on the bottom to absorb the shock of plopping into the water.

He said all three of the 84-foot-diameter parachutes blossomed normally "right on schedule" at an altitude of 10,000 feet, and that the problem occurred a little later.

NO SEATS RESERVED

Lounging in a row of seats provided especially for the curious, an unidentified man watches as workmen begin the job of demolishing the century-old courthouse in downtown San Rafael. The seats were taken from the courthouse — heavily damaged by fire May 25 — by Ghilotti Brothers of San Rafael, the firm assigned the job of razing the county landmark. One of the first orders of business for the wreckers — as the spectator looked on today — was ripping out the staircase.

Welfare, Medi-Cal Bills Near Approval

Reagan To Sign Them Tomorrow

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Legislature, after passing a landmark welfare reform bill, today prepared to send Gov. Ronald Reagan a companion measure overhauling the state's Medi-Cal health care system.

Reagan hopes to sign both measures into law Friday, thus resolving once and for all the 1971 Legislature's No. 1 issue.

The two-bill package is designed to save taxpayers between $350 and $400 million annually—still not enough to avoid a state tax increase this year.

The two huge public assistance programs, which serve 2.5 million low income Californians, now are costing $3.5 billion in federal, state and county funds.

Acting with rare speed, both legislative houses passed the welfare bill Wednesday. Then the Senate passed the Medi-Cal bill and returned it to the Assembly for expected routine concurrence today in amendments.

Reagan has praised the welfare legislation as "the most comprehensive reform of welfare ever attempted, not only here in California but in the United States."

Although it represented only part of what he originally sought from the Legislature, the bill was certain to enhance the Republican governor's national political image as not only a loud proponent of welfare reform but a proven producer.

After Reagan's more ambitious "model for the nation" proposal was rejected by the Senate, the governor bargained with legislative leaders and they ultimately negotiated the compromise welfare and Medi-Cal bills.

Backers say the welfare bill will save taxpayers $184 million

IN MARIN ELECTIONS

No Obstacle To Young Hopefuls

The right of Marin County's 18-year-old registered voters to run for district offices in the Nov. 2 election gained support yesterday in a memorandum from the county counsel's office.

But so far, none of the under-21 voters have filed for any of the 60 seats open in the board of 25 special districts, according to county elections clerk Peter C. Meyer.

Deputy County Counsel George J. Silvestri Jr. has searched the laws and found no obstacle to 18-year-old electors serving in any of the district posts, Meyer said today.

A Peninsula law firm that is legal advisor to a number of the many special districts in Marin had argued that the California Government Code specified a 21-year age minimum for elective office in the special purpose districts.

Silvestri wrote to Meyer that the recent federal constitutional amendment lowering the voting age to 18 in all elections had made the California code section obsolete. Silvestri cited a state civil code provision that "when the reason of a rule ceases, so should the rule itself."

He added that "it is indeed unfortunate the legislature has not . . . eliminated this confusion by the mere changing of the figure 21 to 18" in the government code. He said the 21-year requirement was written into the code because when it was enacted that was the age of voting eligibility.

Silvestri noted that the federal Constitution provides minimum ages for certain offices, and daid the state legislature could do likewise, but apparently has not done so.

The president must be at least 35, a senator 30 and a representative 25, according to the U.S. Constitution. The California minimum of 25 for the governorship apparently was deleted in revisions of the state Constitution in 1966, Silvestri found. However he would not say this necessarily opened the post to 18-year-olds, without further research.

As of today, only five Marin County residents had filed completed candidates' application for the Nov. 2 election with Meyer's office.

They were: Robert R. Forbush Sr. for the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District; Marguerite Kirk Harris, Bolinas Community Public Utility District; Richard W. Price, Novato Fire District; Richard A. Drever, Tamalpais Community Services District, and Lawrence B. Malkin for Marinwood Community Services District.

Seven other sets of candidates' qualification papers have been issued, but not yet returned, Meyer said. Deadline for the filings is 5 p.m. Aug. 30.

Vote Set On Recall Of Bolinas Directors

A recall election against two directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utilities District was set last night by the district board for Nov. 2.

(For story related to the district see Stinson Beach County Water District story on page 7)

Subject to possible recall are directors Edwin A. Cadogan and Sherman R. Smith, whose terms are due to expire in November of 1973.

The board acted after County Clerk George H. Gnoss informed the district that petitions for recall had been checked by his office earlier this week and found to contain enough valid signatures to force an election.

The petitions, circulated by the Bolinas Future Studies Center, contained 77 valid signatures, according to Gnoss, 26 more than the 51 required. A total of 164 signatures had been collected on each petition and 87 proved invalid for various reasons, he said.

The seats of two other directors, Jose A. Silva and Clem C. Slater, will also be up for election Nov. 2, when their terms expire.

With the exception of director Albert William Meyer Jr., whose seat will not be up for election until November 1973 when his term expires, the Nov. 2 election could result in an entirely new board.

Three Bolinas residents have already taken out nomination papers for the four seats: Gregory Hewlett of the studies center; Marguerite K. Harris, a reading teacher at Bolinas School, and Orville Schell, a journalist.

Appeal On Integration Order Fails

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals today refused to order a delay in court-ordered integration and busing in the San Francisco schools next month.

In a brief order, the federal appellate court rejected arguments by the city school board and a parents group, which had appealed a ruling by U.S. District Judge Stanley A. Weigel.

"The court is of the opinion that the moving parties have failed to carry their burden of establishing the facts justifying the stay," the order said.

Weigel had ordered full desegregation and busing to go into effect when school starts Sept. 8. He said either the so-called "horseshoe plan" worked out by the school district under Weigel's order, or a rival plan

OIL SPILL REPORT

Safety Systems Went Unused

By MARY LEYDECKER

If any one of four standard and ordinary safety systems had functioned properly, the disastrous oil spill in San Francisco Bay last January could have been prevented.

This was the conclusion of the National Transportation Safety Board after reviewing the facts surrounding the collision of two Standard Oil Co. tankers at the entrance to the bay and the resulting spill of 800,000 gallons of bunker fuel.

In a plainspoken report issued yesterday, the board concluded that both vessels were on the wrong side of the channel, their radar was not properly used, the ships' warning whistles went unheard and the Coast Guard's new Harbor Advisory Radar System had no power to prevent the collision.

Furthermore, the board said, both ships were going too fast for the dense fog that prevailed in the early morning hours.

The board noted that the collision occurred when the tankships Arizona Standard and Oregon Standard, both fully loaded, collided at about 1:40 p.m. Jan. 18 several hundred yards west of the Golden Gate Bridge.

The oil spill came from the outbound Oregon Standard, whose tanks were ruptured.

Why the disaster happened was explained in the board's report, which was based on testimony taken by the Coast Guard at an investigation in January.

Neither vessel, the board said, complied with the standard rules of the road for ships, in which each should have been on its starboard side of the channel.

"This noncompliance was contributed to by immoderate speed for prevailing conditions on the part of both vessels," as well as their not using the radar properly and the "absence of a positive indication of the center of main ship channel through the Golden Gate."

"The radar system by which the vessels could have avoided each other failed because the Arizona Standard did not obtain and evaluate correctly information from radar pertaining to the movements of the Oregon Standard, and the Oregon Standard did not check periodically at least one of the radarscopes, set on a sufficiently long range scale to ensure prompt detection of the Arizona Standard," the board concluded.

Warhing whistles of each ship were not heard by the other, the report said, mainly because of the high noise level caused by whistles on the Golden Gate Bridge.

Finally, the Coast Guard's experimental Harbor Advisory Radar System, was inadequate to prevent the collision partly because it lacked authority.

Also, the board noted that the captain of the Oregon Standard chose not to monitor the HAR channel. Personnel at the Harbor Advisory station monitored the crash but were powerless to prevent it because of lack of authority, the board said.

As to preventing such collisions in the future, the board recommended, first, that the Coast Guard be given authority which would eventually lead to a regulatory system similar to those used in other congested ports.

The accident also illustrated the "need for development and implementation of more sophisticated electronic systems for commercial vessels," the board said.

The safety board described what was needed as something like what an airplane pilot has at his command — a panel of instruments in front of him — as compared to the more primitive systems on ships where a captain must be all over the bridge to check various matters.

The board also recommended that the Coast Guard study the feasibility of developing a method of traffic separation for inbound and outbound traffic in the Golden Gate Channel.

In the report, the board noted that due to the collision, "hundreds of birds perished, despite extensive efforts to collect and clean them. . . The damage, if any, to shellfish and other sea life. . . may not be known for several years if ever."

The board concluded that "perhaps in the past," it was appropriate to leave decisions about whether to sail or not up to ships' captains, but that today, with tremendous increase in the size and speed of vessels, along with proliferation of hazardous cargoes and greater traffic, the risk levels have increased enormously."

The captain must receive assistance through such systems as have proven effective in the Great Lakes, St. Lawrence River, Rotterdam and other places, the report concluded.

The report noted that the oil spill was disastrous even with two "World War II vintage tankers" but would have been much worse with the larger ships now sailing.

The Coast Guard earlier disciplined both captains for negligence in the collision.

$252,100 In Job Funds For Marin

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Marin County has been awarded $252,100 as its share of federal funds being apportioned to 7000 cities, counties and states under the new Emergency Employment Act.

President Nixon signed the bill on Monday which provided $1 billion for special employment opportunities at the state and local level — a move which the administration hopes will creat 150,000 jobs.

The public service jobs created by the program will cover a wide range of community needs from fire protection and police to health, education, parks and pollution control, according to Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, who announced the apportionment.

The president in signing the legislation said that he wanted the first group of unemployed people working by Labor Day.

He said that the jobs which will be made available "will be real jobs — jobs which promise future career opportunities." At the same time, he said, the work performed "will help meet some of our needs in such fields as environmental protection, health, education, public safety, housing, recreation, public facility maintenance and rural development."

There was no one available in the county administrator's office today to comment on exactly how the funds will be used in Marin County and how the job program will be administered.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

S. Korean Appeal

SEOUL (UPI)—South Korea proposed today a meeting between Red Cross representatives of South and North Korea to seek possible communication and reunion of some 10 million separated families in the divided nation.

Choi Doo-sun, president of the South Korean Red Cross, called the effort "a campaign for the search of the lost families," and proposed that Red Cross representatives of the two sides hold preliminary talks in Geneva before the end of October.

Threat To Humphrey

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) —Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey disregarded a telephoned assassination threat as he spoke at the Jewish War Veterans convention Wednesday and completed his address without any trouble.

The Democratic Minnesota senator was in the midst of a speech criticizing the Nixon administration's Middle East policies when a man telephoned the Radisson Hotel, the convention site, and said:

"We are going to assassinate Mr. Humphrey. We have placed a bomb in your ballroom and hope you will get the people out as soon as possible."

Japanese Denial

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Nobuhiko Ushiba, Japan's ambassador to the United States, says his country is fed up with colonial experiences and Peking should have no fear of a resurgence of Japanese militarism.

Ushiba said recent statements by Premier Chou En-lai that Japan has designs on Taiwan are "the biggest nonsense I have heard.

"We have no such ambitions," he said during an appearance at the National Press Club last night. "We are fed up with our colonial experiences.

Prison Inquiry

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) —Gov. Cecil D. Andrus began a full scale investigation of the Idaho State Prison today following a riot in which two convicts were stabbed.

Prison officials hoped either for a break in the hot weather or arrival by air of new electric fans to cool off inmates housed in sweltering cellblocks so they could reinstate normal operations.

Cost Squabble

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A new health spa for White House personnel cost $100,000, not the $30,000 to $34,000 claimed by an aide to President Nixon, Republican Rep. William J. Scherle has charged.

Scherle Wednesday refused to abate his complaints about the facility for top aides of the President, which two of Scherle's staff members described after an inspection as a "Roman style romper room."

The Iowa congressman sent his staffers over to look at the five-room exercise facility in the executive office building adjacent to the executive mansion when he was unable to get the General Services Administration (GSA) to give him the cost figures.

But he said the agency had promised to give him the total expenditure by today.

Scherle, who was contacted Wednesday at his Council Bluffs, Iowa, district office, said "the taxpayer is sick of all this frivolity."

"...They want a common sense approach to stabilize the dollar," he said. "We don't like these extravatant expenditures. The money they invested there could build additional schoolrooms in my district and buy new textbooks."

Marine Acquitted

QUANTICO, Va. (UPI)— Marine Sgt. Jon M. Sweeney, acquitted on charges of cowardice and communicating with the enemy, says he's tired of the United States and North Vietnam using prisoners of war as "political footballs."

The slender, 21-year-old marine from West Babylon, N.Y., indicated he can't get out of the Marine Corps fast engough. It will take four days to process his discharge, but he said after his court-martial ended Wednesday, "I want to go now."

Navy Capt. B. Raymond Perkins, the military judge, acquitted Sweeney of charges he ran away from his unit in the presence of the enemy in Vietnam in February, 1969, and of making disloyal statements while a prisoner of war.

"I feel really great," said Sweeney after the verdict. "I feel justice has been done."

HAY ON THE HIGHWAY

Radiators and tempers boiled over in Sacramento yesterday when commuters were stalled for an hour while the California Highway Patrol cleared the junction of Highway 99 and Interstate 80 of hay spilled from a truck. Sensing the frustration of thousands of fuming motorists trapped in the 98-degree heat, highway patrol officer Charles Downing kicks at a pile of the hay. It was even hotter in other Central Valley communities, with Red Bluff and Bakersfield reporting 109 degrees and Fresno sweltering at 105. (UPI Telephoto)

North Launches Assault On DMZ

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese troops launched a series of coordinated shelling and ground assaults on a string of South Vietnamese bases forming the government's defense line below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) border today, military spokesmen reported.

The fighting was the sharpest in the war zone in seven weeks but spokesmen said it was too early to say that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces had launched a new offensive in the far northern quarter.

"We realize that during the past two weeks the level of enemy activity has been very low," said Lt. Col. Le. Trung Hien, spokesman for the South Vietnamese command. "It is hard for us to say if this is a new offensive by the enemy."

At least 34 soldiers from both sides were killed and military sources said two American advisers at one of the outposts were wounded in the fighting just south of the buffer zone dividing North and South Vietnam.

Military sources said the flareup in action could indicate the second stage of the Communists' summer campaign and could be aimed at influencing South Vietnam's National Assembly election to be held Aug. 29.

No ground activity involving American forces was reported, but the U.S. command said two Army airmen were wounded Wednesday when their light observation helicopter was shot down near Kontum, 260 miles north-northeast of Saigon in the rugged Central Highlands.

U.S. command spokesmen said 18 Americans were killed and 74 wounded in action in Indochina last week. The death toll was the highest in three weeks for the United States in Vietnam and brought to 45,429 the number of U.S. servicemen killed in action in the war since Jan. 1, 1961.

The recent lull in battlefield activity sent South Vietnamese losses last week to the lowest level in more than two years, government spokesmen said in reporting 170 men killed in the seven days ending Aug. 7.

Communist casualties were reported by the allied commands as 1,006 killed.

In a terrorist incident last Wednesday, three Vietnamese were killed and 10 wounded when satchel charges were hurled into a village headquarters about 356 miles northnortheast of Saigon on the upper coast.

The heaviest fighting on the far north flared around the district headquarters of Cam Lo, six miles south of the DMZ, when Communist troops attacked the government position under a barrage of 61mm and 81mm mortar fire, spokesmen said.

The attackers failed to breach the heavily fortified perimeter but nine government defenders were killed and 11 wounded along with two American advisers. Twelve of the Communist soldiers were known killed in the action, spokesmen said.

Cannibalism Case

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (UPI)—Seven Papuan natives accused of killing, cutting up and eating a man last May were acquitted Wednesday of a charge of cannibalism.

Western Region Chief Named

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— James V. P. Conway has been named chief inspector of the western region of the U.S. Postal Service.

The department said the region would include Alaska and Hawaii and extend along the West Coast from Canada to Mexico and east to the Dakotas, Kansas and Texas. The job is a new position.

Conway joined the Postal Service in 1939 and became an inspector in 1942.

His latest position has been deputy chief postal inspector in Washington, D.C.

FOR PRESIDENTIAL NOD

Lindsay Faces An Uphill Struggle

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mayor John V. Lindsay, a Democrat for barely a day, is already being mentioned as a possible candidate for the party's presidential nomination. But the race is already crowded and the road for a new member is long.

"Whether this means I will run for president, I do not know," Lindsay said in announcing the switch from the Republican party Wednesday. "But it does mean that I am firmly committed to take an active part in 1972 to bring about new national leadership."

Lindsay's announcement at his Gracie Mansion home came as no surprise. Although a lifelong Republican until Wednesday morning, he had often been at odds with GOP leadership as a congressman, had relied heavily on Democratic and liberal support to twice win election as New York mayor and increasingly drifted away from the Nixon administration philosophy.

Should he become a presidential candidate, Lindsay would be an attractive candidate — young, strikingly handsome, schooled in urban problems, with a long-time liberal record. But as a Democrat, he has no power base, no political IOUs, no organization and a lot of competition.

Lindsay would be eligible for most of next year's presidential primaries. He would be barred from the California primary by a state law which says a candidate must be a member of his party for at least a year.

Democratic leaders welcomed him to the party Wednesday but there was no great support for a Lindsay presidential campaign.

In recent history, party switchers have not met with much success. Former Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon switched from the Republican to Democrat party and Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina went the other way.

But Lindsay's case is most similar to that of Wendell L. Willkie in 1940. Willkie, formerly a Democrat, won the Republican presidential nomination against a large field and despite the opposition of most of the professional politicians. He was beaten by Franklin D. Roosevelt in the general election.

But even Willkie had switched party allegiance some years before seeking the nomination.

Any Lindsay presidential campaign probably would have to be based on a new political coalition which he called for Wednesday —a coalition composed of Republicans, Democrats and liberals. He had used this backing to twice win election as a GOP mayor in a city with a large Democratic majority.

"This morning at Gracie Mansion, Mrs. Lindsay and I enrolled in the Democratic party," Lindsay said starting off his news conference. "In a sense, this step recognizes the failure of 20 active years in progressive Republican politics. In another sense, it represents a renewed decision to fight for new national leadership."

Saying the federal government has abandoned the fight for the needs of the people, Lindsay said the switch reaffirmed his commitment to fight real problems —"men without jobs, families without hope, indecent housing, blighted neighborhoods, crowded hospitals, crime, poverty, polarization."

Rebellion A Possibility, Ky Asserts

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky charged today President Nguyen Van Thieu used the supreme court to rig the forthcoming presidential election. He answered affirmatively when asked if "there is a real possibility" of rebellion if Thieu runs unopposed.

Ky also charged that his exclusion from the ballot by a court decision was "unlawful and arbitrary." He said he will not appeal the decision but did not say whether he would withdraw his candidacy.

Ky was asked at a news conference if "there is a real possibility of an uprising if Thieu becomes the only candidate" for the presidency if the third contender, Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh, withdraws from the race.

"Through a rigged election, yes," he replied.

"There is a real possibility?"

"Yes, sir," Ky said.

"A coup?" he was asked.

"Mister, I never mentioned about a coup and I will never mention a coup because I see you are not a military man," Ky said. "Once you decide or plan to have a coup you are not going to claim all over town that you are going to have a coup tomorrow. You see that in the Western movies."

Mayor Greeted By Qualified Democrat Welcome, Split GOP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats gave John V. Lindsay a qualified welcome to the party; Republicans were split over his break with the GOP; and labor leaders said the switch is good for Republicans, bad for Democrats.

The White House had no direct comment, but Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler suggested that it was not necessary for Lindsay to leave the party to express liberal views.

Hopefuls for the Democratic presidential nomination next year generally expressed feelings summed up by Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington:

"If you join the church on one Sunday you can't expect to be chairman of the board of deacons the following Sunday."

AFL-CIO President George Meany said, "It's a good break for the Republian Party, and it's a bad break for the Democratic Party. Who needs him?"

Paul Hall, president of the Seamen's International Union, said Lindsay would contribute to division among Democrats. "It's a bad day at black rock."

Other leaders of labor, which has been a traditional Democratic stronghold, expressed concern that Lindsay was condescending to radicals.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said, "I regret very much that Mayor Lindsay has left the progressive Republican cause for which I have worked all my political life." Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., said, "Another good Republican has been driven out of the party."

But Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, the GOP national chairman, said, "I'm not certain the switch is bad news for Republicans, because I think for some time John Lindsay has been backed by Democrats."

California Gov. Ronald Reagan echoed Dole's statement, saying it was "an example which might be followed by others of both parties."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, RAriz., who during his unsuccessful 1964 GOP presidential bid did not get Lindsay's support, said he thought Lindsay had a better chance of winning the Democratic presidential nomination than any other candidate. He added he thought no Democrat could unseat Nixon.

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said, "I welcome John Lindsay to the Democratic party."

Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago said he was "delighted that the mayor of the city of New York has finally seen the light."

A "Lindsay for President Committee" was set up in Los Angeles, but New York City councilman Mathew Troy —a supporter of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said, "looking at the mess New York Ctiy is in, Democrats would have to decide for themselves whether they wanted Lindsay for national leadership."

McGovern, the only announced Democratic candidate, said, "Lindsay will be an asset and an attractive addition to the democratic party."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, welcomed Lindsay, but said, "I don't think the entry of any one man, even of the prominence of Lindsay, can shift the philosophical base of the Democratic Party."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said "Lindsay's decision simply underscores the fact that the future well-being of the Nixon administration and the election of a responsible Democrat."

Former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said Lindsay had "a better claim to the label Democrat" than some who now wear it.

The Ripon Society of New York, including several financial backers of Lindsay, expressed disappointment at "losing a man who was looked to as one of the leaders of the progressive urban-oriented wing of the GOP."

HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS

In the small Amish community of Conewango, N.Y., nobody's ever in a hurry — except, perhaps, the children — so the driver of this buggy is happy to obey a sign asking him to go slowly. He wouldn't have picked this mode of transportation, after all, if he wanted to get anywhere fast. The Amish in Pennsylvania and New York still cling to the traditional way of doing things, refusing to be hurried into the 20th Century. (UPI Telephoto)

Agreement Reached On Alto Annexation

Marin Local Agency Formation Commission members worked out a complicated fiscal formula last night to resolve financial conflicts resulting from the City of Mill Valley's annexation of the 60-acre Alto Strip from the Richardson Bay Sanitary District.

But Meyer Daniels, attorney for the Richardson Bay district, warned his clients still might protest the settlement, according to John F. Barrows, executive officer for LAF CO.

In essence, the commission approved a proposal that the city give some future developer of the Alto Strip free sewer connections equivalent to the $11,300 still on the Richardson Bay books for the former Alcan-Marin developers. The credit dates back to 1965, and the hookups must be based on Richardson Bay connection fees at that time, Barrows said.

The Richardson Bay district had sought $58,000 credit for its improvements in the detached area; Mill Valley had argued it should receive some financial settlement for taking over the area's sewer service.

The commission's debate on the Alto Strip problem took up most of its regular meeting last night in the Marin County Civic Center, Barrows said.

The commission ordered effective date of the strip's detachment from Richardson Bay to Mill Valley to be the day sewage begins flowing into the Mill Valley treatment plant, Barrows said.

The Marin Local Agency Formation also:

REORGANIZATION — Approved, after minor amendments, Barrows's analysis of the proposed combination of the Terra Linda Community Services and Recreation-Park districts into a single community services distirct. The analysis will be printed on the ballot for the reorganization election Nov. 2.

TRUMBULL AVENUE — Approved a 43-acre annexation of the Robert Roberts homesite to the Novato Sanitary District.

NOVATO — Also approved other annexations to the Novato Sanitary District including a 62-acre parcel on Novato Boulevard, 1.25 acres on Mendocino Lane and 1 acre on Center Road.

CONTINUED — Postponed action to Sept. 8 on annexation of a 35-acre parcel on San Marin Drive east of Simmons Lane to the Novato Sanitary District, at the request of the developer.

FAIRFAX — Granted the City of Fairfax another six months to prepare plans for the so-called Northwesterly Annexation, an undeveloped area west of Oak Manor and north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

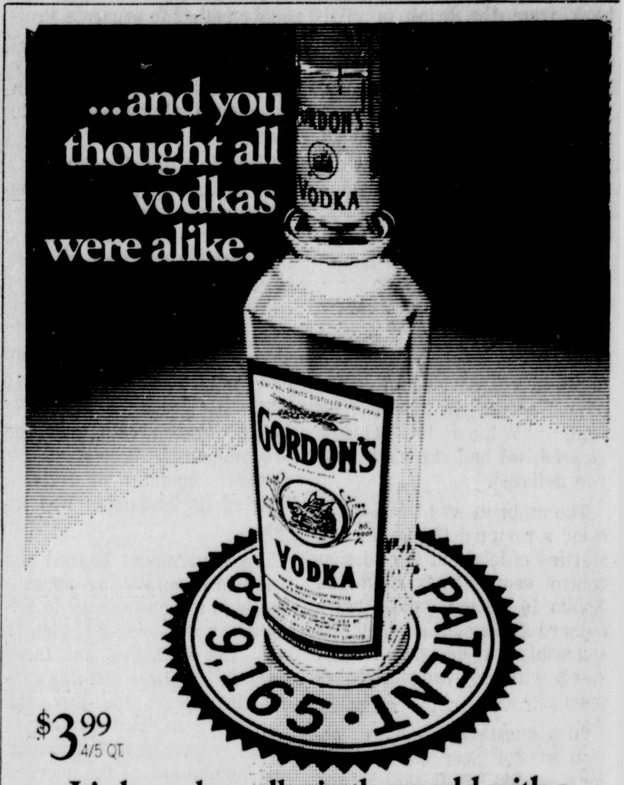

Cyclist Hurt In Tangle With Cars

One person was injured yesterday in an accident involving three station wagons and a motorcycle, San Rafael police reported today.

David M. Folden, 16, of 666 Las Colindas Road, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a broken left leg, hospital officials reported.

According to police, a station wagon driven by Daniel J. Melcon, 17, of 234 Cobblestone Drive, San Rafael was stopped at 5:21 p.m. on Second Street at Hetherton Street. Folden was stopped behind the Melcon car on his 1967 model motorcycle and behind him was a stopped station wagon driven by Joyce M. Oatis, 45, of 13 Sunnyhill Road, Novato.

A third station wagon, driven by Patricia Ellen Lydon, 20, of 242 San Rafael Avenue, San Rafael, hit the Oatis vehicle, knocking it into the motorcycle and pinning the driver between the Oatis vehicle and the Melcon vehicle.

$11,302 In Old Money Is Missed

Silver coins and silver certificates totaling $11,302 are missing from the residence of Lawrence P. McNear Jr., on the McNear brick yard property, the Marin County Sheriff's Office reported yesterday.

Deputies said McNear told them Tuesday he had been collecting the old money since the 1940s and he noticed it missing Aug. 2.

Silver coins and silver certificates are no longer issued by the U.S. Mint.

Almost $10,000, including 300 silver dollars, was in two attache cases and the rest of the money was in three cigar boxes, according to the sheriff's office.

The money was apparently taken sometime between last October and Aug. 2, McNear told deputies.

Bound Over In Burglary Case

Ronald Berg Goodrich, 21, of Larkspur, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of burglary.

He is to be arraigned in Superior Court Monday.

Goodrich was arrested May 5 after he and another man were reported seen leaving a Corte Madera home, police said.

The other man escaped, but in Goodrich's pocket were several half-dollars believed stolen from another Corte Madera residence earlier that day, according to police.

Volvo Stolen

A 1967 Volvo belonging to Mrs. Carl R. Shaffer of 11 Sturdevant Avenue, San Anselmo, was taken sometime between Monday and yesterday from Harbor Texaco at 49 Medway Road, San Rafael, where it had been left for repairs, police reported today.

500 Fires Rage In British Columbia

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)— More than 500 fires raged through British Columbia's tinder dry forests today, sending a great pall of smoke drifting across large sections of western Canada and the northwestern United States.

The dense black smoke was moving in a line late Wednesday from Edmonton and Calgary, Alta., to Helen and Billings, Mont., then east into Bismarck, N.D., and north again into Yorkton, Sask.

Collier Cancels

The dinner with state Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, scheduled for today at 6:30 p.m. at Sonoma Joe's has been cancelled, the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce reported. The event will be rescheduled when the current legislative session ends in Sacramento.

British Army Sees Victory In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—The British army, fighting to pull Northern Ireland back from the brink of civil war, expressed guarded optimism today it was gaining the upper hand in four days of street fighting and said it had dealt the Irish Republican Army (IRA) "a devil of a knock."

Fresh fighting broke out in Londonderry where the troops used batons, nausea gas and rubber bullets to separate Protestant and Roman Catholic crowds, and in Belfast where the death of another civilian brought the toll for four days to 24 dead.

Premier Brian Faulkner has blamed the outlawed IRA for the current wave of violence. The army and security forces said the IRA had been hit hard in the current gunbattles and by the "internment without trial" policy. They estimated 70 per cent of the IRA leadership had been eliminated.

The IRA, which is struggling to end British rule over the predominantly Protestant six northern counties of Ireland, insisted its leadership was intact.

The government banned the traditional parade by apprentice boys in Londonderry to celebrate a 300-year-old victory over the Catholics but there were still bonfires and flagwaving. In Belfast, the Rev. Ian Paisley, a militant Protestant leader, marched to Parliament and hammered on the doors of the building, Stormont Castle, demanding an interview with Faulkner.

Faulkner was away and Paisley met with another official. Faulkner said when he returned to his office he was met by a noisy demonstration and that there were television cameras present. He condemned "stunts of this kind when the security forces are engaged in deadly serious business in the streets of Belfast."

A police spokesman said another civilian died in the Royal Victoria Hospital in Belfast, bringing to 24 the number of persons known to have been killed since street fighting broke out Monday after a night of minor disorders. One of today's victims was a "completely and utterly innocent" man killed by snipers who opened fire on British troops, an army spokesman said.

British security sources estimated as high as 70 per cent of the leadership of the IRA had been eliminated in the roundup Monday and internment without trial of 230 extremist suspects.

"Between dead, captured and interned, the IRA has taken the devil of a knock in the past three days," an army spokesman said. "It must now be trying to regroup its forces.

"We feel pretty good about it all right now. It would be wrong to be too optimistic, but let's hope the brunt has gone out of it. It's quieter now than it's been all week."

Another expression of optimism came from Lt. Gen. Harry Tuzo, commander of the 12,600 British troops in Northern Ireland. He told the British newspaper The Guardian that the battle against the IRA appeared to be going in the right direction but fighting could continue until the weekend or longer.

"It may indeed go on for longer than that, and it will certainly begin again after a lull, but things will begin to improve soon, of that I am convinced," he said in an interview Wednesday.

APOLLO

(from the spacecraft's control rockets), the view was obscured because a big cloud of vapor passed across the window," he said. "When the window cleared, we had one chute that was deflated."

The problem was televised in color around the world and startled officials at the mission control center. They estimated Apollo 15 hit the Pacific twice as hard as normal, although the spaceship was designed to land safely with only two parachutes open.

In a question-and-answer period at the close of the hour-long session, Scott said he and his crewmates were busy reaping scientific and engineering results from the mission and had not yet decided what they wanted to do next in the space program.

"I guess our immediate plans are to finish up (Apollo) 15 and then take a look on the horizon," Scott said. It was the first spaceflight for Worden and Irwin.

At the opening of the news conference, Scott said: "I hesitate to use the words barren and desolate, because I think to the three of us the moon is dynamic, it is beautiful and it has character."

"We went to the moon to gather data, not only with instruments on board but with our minds," Scott said.

"I'd like to quote a statement from Plutarch—the mind is not a vessel to be filled, but a fire to be lighted." Plutarch was a Greek biographer about 100 years after the birth of Christ.

One of the astronauts' more pressing desires is to examine the so-called "Genesis Rock" Scott and Irwin were so enthusiastic about on the moon.

The rock will be examined for the first time Friday at the Houston Space Center's $16 million moon rock laboratory. Scientists think it might represent a chunk of the moon's primitive crust, dating back perhaps 4.3 billion years or more.

Scott and Irwin explored the lunar surface and both fell twice.

But at the news conference they said their only concern was the amount of dust that clung to their spacesuits after each fall. Scott said his worst tumble "was not a hard fall at all."

"The best analogy I can make is to walking on a trampoline," he said. It's very similar to the feeling we get in one-sixth gravity."

The moon crewmen showed a color movie of the landing craft Falcon carrying Scott and Irwin to a gentle touchdown on the smooth floor of a mountain valley. Scott reported "the vehicle performed flawlessly all the way down."

Irwin used another movie sequence to take reporters and television viewers on a bouncing ride across the rocky, crater-marked landing site in their electric moon car.

"I hope it doesn't make you seasick," he told his audience of newsmen and project officials at the manned spacecraft center auditorium. "It's kind of a combination of a small row boat in a rough sea and a bucking bronco ride."

The astronauts presented the public with 12 new still color photographs.

Hearing Set For Marin City Man

Frederick Washington, 25, of Marin City, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a felony charge of resisting police officers and misdemeanor charges of battery against an officer, exhibiting a deadly weapon and two counts of battery.

Western Marin Judicial Court Justice David R. Baty, sitting in Municipal Court, ruled there was insufficient evidence to hold Washington for trial on another battery count, a charge of assault and a felony charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Baty dismissed a disturbing the peace charge at the request of the district attorney's office.

Washington is to be arrainged in superior court Monday.

He was arrested July 23 after Marin County sheriff's deputies received a report that Washington had struck three women at a Marin City restaurant.

When deputies went to arrest him, he attempted to escape and was assisted by a crowd which threw rocks and bottles at deputies and shouted obscenities, according to deputies.

When Washington was finally put into a patrol car, he pulled a knife and threatened deputies until the knife was knocked from his hands when the patrol car arrived at Marin County Jail, deputies said.

Anthony Ray Smith, 19, and Wilbur Smith, 21, who were among the crowd that attempted to interfere with the deputies, had felony charges of resisting officers dismissed when Judge Baty ruled there was only enough evidence to hold them on a misdemeanor charge of resisting arrest.

They pleaded guilty to the charge and are to be sentenced tomorrow.

Car Theft Counts Are Dismissed

Misdemeanor charges of grand theft and auto theft against two Los Angeles County men were dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Robert A. Smallman dismissed the charges on a motion by defense attorneys that the men had been denied a speedy trial.

Jury trial had been set for today in municipal court for James Hilton Cullins, 23, and Joe Dester Birge, 18, both of Gardena, but it was learned yesterday that they where released from Marin County Jail last week to Los Angeles authorities.

They were arrested in San Rafael July 20 with a car belonging to their employer, Joseph P. Desidero of Gardena.

Cullins and Birge were originally charged with felony counts of grand theft and auto theft, but the charges were later reduced to misdemeanors.

Los Angeles authorities said today the pair was being held at county jail there in connection with the car theft as well as another alleged crime.

WELFARE

and close the books on "horror stories" of welfare abuse.

Grants will be increased for two-thirds of those on Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) and decreased for the other third with outside income. A welfare mother of three now receiving $261 monthly will get $280, but cannot retain certain outside income which currently often allows her actual benefits to far surpass the basic relief check.

There will be $9 million appropriated for job training, another $3 million for day care child centers and $1 million for family planning services, including birth control.

"The state will get back its $1 million if it prevents just 800 births," said the bill's sponsor, Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, who explained it costs taxpayers $1,200 to finance the birth of a welfare child.

The Medi-Cal bill, designed to save around $200 million, generally requires recipient copayments of $1 for doctor visit and 50 cents for prescription. It also limits doctor visits to 24 a year and prescriptions to two per month.

The most impassioned speech of the day was delivered by Sen. Nicholas C. Petris-D-Oakland, who announced "I'm going to hold my nose and vote for the bill," then proceeded to criticize a system that freely appropriates government subsidies for big business but laments welfare for the poor.

He charged Reagan has used "welfare recipients as scapegoats for all our ills" and created a "terrible atmosphere."

Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, said his decision of whether to vote for the bill was "like a choice between hemlock and arsenic." He voted for it.

The welfare bill passed the Senate 31-8 after earlier clearing the Assembly 60-9. In between it was whisked through Beilenson's Senate Health and Welfare Committee.

Both of Marin's legislator Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, voted fgr the welfare package. Senate Finance Committee. Behr joined the majority in voting for the bill.

The troupe of actors include Robin Layzer, Katy Layzer, Heather Mathieson, Iana Moreno, Frank Shea, Becca Fay, Richard Butrick and Susan Deikman.

The show will be the summer performance for the class, sponsored by the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commision.

The class resumes in the fall.

OBITUARIES

Edward B. Skeels Jr. Dies At 49

Edward B. Skeels Jr., 49, of Novato, retired purchasing agent, collapsed at his home yesterday and died several hours later at Novato General Hospital.

Skeels, who formerly worked for the Bechtel Corp. in San Francisco, apparently died of natural causes, according to deputy coroner Bill Thomas.

He was discovered unconscious at his home at 1:45 p.m. admitted to the hospital at 2:20 p.m. and pronounced dead at 5:15 p.m., Thomas reported.

Skeels, who had suffered from a kidney ailment for a long time, died unexpectedly of a cerebral hemorrage, his wife, Kathleen, reported.

He was a native of San Francisco and served in the air force in World War II. He had been a resident of Novato for 18 years and was a member of the Presbyterian Church of Novato.

Surviving him, besides his wife, are three daughters, Anne, Jean and Mary; and a son, Edward Skeels III, all of Novato; his mother, Kate Skeels of Redwood City; and two brothers, Jack of Burlingame and Robert Skeels of Auburn, El Dorado County.

Funeral arrangments are pending at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home. The family prefers that memorial contributions be made to the Babcock Foundation.

JOSEPH STREMFEL

Joseph L. Stremfel, 49, of La Canada, Los Angeles County, died yesterday after collapsing at the home of his brother-in-law, Paul Sanner of 212 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley.

Deputy Coroner Bill J. Thomas said Stremfel was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital at 3:50 p.m.

He and his wife, Mary Lou, had been vacationing in Canada and had stopped to visit Mrs. Stremfel's brother in Mill Valley.

Stremfel, who worked as a pharmacist, became ill after eating lunch in Cloverdale, Sonoma County. He continued to the Sanner house where he collapsed, Thomas said.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel in Mill Valley.

MRS. MASTERSON

Funeral for Effie Masterson, former San Rafael resident, will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the Redwood Chapel, 847 Woodside Road, Redwood City.

She died Tuesday in a Redwood City hospital after a long illness.

She was born 87 years ago in Marengo, Ill. She and her late husband Charles, farmed in Wisconsin until retiring to San Rafael in 1945. She lived here until moving to Redwood City in 1957.

She was a member of the United Methodist Church of San Rafael.

She is survived by two sons. Harvey Masterson of Redwood City and Charles Masterson of Waupaca, Wisc.; a sister, Frances Oreschnick of New York and five grandchildren.

Burial will be in Alta Mesa Memorial Park, Palo Alto.

Contributions to San Mateo County Heart Fund would be preferred by the family.

JANE LEWIS

Funeral for Jane M. Lewis, who died Tuesday in Stinson Beach, will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

Mrs. Lewis, 58, died in a local hospital following a brief illness.

She and her husband, Edward Z. Lewis, lived at 340 Seadrift Road, Stinson Beach for six years. Prior to this they lived in Ross for 19 years. Mrs. Lewis was born in Dayton, Ohio.

She is survived by her husband; three sons: David of San Anselmo, Stephen of Fairfax and Christopher of Tokyo, Japan; a brother, Thomas Midgley III of Los Angeles; and six grandchildren.

RAYMOND CLUTE

Funeral for Raymond V. Clute, 59, administrative consultant at Novato Manor Convalescent Hospital, will be at noon tomorrow at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home, Novato.

Clute, who had a heart condition, died Tuesday at 450 Ridge Road, where he had lived for the past nine months.

Clute was a native of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. A graduate of Minnesota State College, he entered the Army Air Corps, transferred to the Royal Air Force and served as a flight lieutenant during World War II.

After the war, he was a refrigeration engineer in Spokane, Wash. He moved to California five years ago.

Surviving are his wife, Naomi R. Clute of Euless, Tex.; a son, Dennis Clute of Novato, and a daughter, Janice Alcorn of Los Angeles.

There will be cremation and an air-sea burial. The family prefers contributions be to the Heart Fund.

Hamilton AFB Tells Possibility Of Sonic Booms

Marin might be rattled by sonic booms from planes in defense training exercises tonight and early tomorrow, Hamilton Air Force Base advised today.

Air Force, Air National Guard, Marine and Naval aircraft will be flying over the California coast with more than normal activity expected in the San Francisco area.

Fighter interceptors from Hamilton Air Force Base will be scrambled to intercept simulated enemy planes attacking the coast.

Some planes may achieve supersonic speeds and it is possible sonic booms will be heard, the base reported.

Tree Knocks Power Lines Into House

A Belvedere family narrowly missed having their house smashed yesterday when a giant oak tree in their front yard crashed to the ground, knocking over power lines into the house.

Police Chief John W. Jaeger said the 40-foot oak apparently had died of old age. He estimated the tree to be about 200 years old. The tree fell close to the home of James Cooper of 12 Belle Vista Avenue about 10 a.m., Jaeger said.

Larkspur Park-Rec Meeting Is Reset

Last night's regularly scheduled meeting of the Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission meeting was cancelled due to lack of a quorum.

According to Harlan Barry, recreation director, the meeting has been reset for Sept. 8 at 8 p.m. at city hall.

Leg Broken In Car-Bike Crash

A 12-year-old Novato boy suffered a broken right leg in a car-bicycle collision at 6:30 p.m. yesterday at Vineyard Road and Vivian Court, police reported.

A bicycle driven by Kelley Hale Lepkowsky, of 10 Nine Drive, southbound on Vivian Court, collided with a car driven by Joseph William Wright, 55, of 2478 Vineyard Road, which was westbound on Vineyard, officers said.

Lepkowsky was reported in good condition today at Novato General Hospital.

Helicopter Crashes Off Aquatic Park

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two California National Guard airmen were rescued from the chilly waters of San Francisco Bay last night when their helicopter crashed off Aquatic Park.

Capt. Wendell Lowry, 36, Yuba City, and Capt. Stephen Isle, 27, a University of California Davis student, were pulled from the water by a civilian and three policemen.

The pair was taken to the Army's Letterman General Hospital where they were treated for exposure. Their conditions were described as satisfactory.

Officials said the chopper was "flying low" in dense fog when its engine failed. It dropped into the water about 300 yards from Aquatic Park.

The aircraft was attached to the 115th General Support Group at Mather Air Force Base outside of Sacramento. It had been on a flight from there to Crissley Field in The Presidio.

Art Center To Offer New Craft Courses

New classes in calligraphy, jewelry making and handtailoring and design and are being offered by the Sausalito Art Center, according to a center spokesman.

"Calligraphy, an express of awareness," will be an eight-week course to be taught by Judith Winters on Wednesday from 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. beginning Aug. 18.

Introduction to jewelry making will also be an eight-week class on Wednesdays from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. beginning Aug. 25. The instructor will be Myra Kaplan.

Handtailoring and design is a continuing class which students may join at any time. There are currently two classes taught by Joaquin Vila-Mediano meeting twice a week, one on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. and the other from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays.

Typographical Union To Conduct Meeting

San Francisco International Typographical Union Local 21 has reserved the supervisors' chambers at the Marin Civic Center for a public meeting today at 7:30 p.m.

A spokesman for the union, which struck the Independent-Journal in January 1970, refused to tell an I-J reporter the purpose of the meeting.

New Dress For British Navy Studied

LONDON (UPI)—The British Royal Navy may soon follow the lead of the U.S. Navy and revise its seamen's uniforms — if the men can agree on what they want and a Navy board accepts their choice.

The design change for the British sailors would not be as radical as the one their American counterparts will undergo beginning in two years.

A recent Royal Navy survey showed most sailors happy with the traditional "square rig," a blue collar with white stripes, but they wanted something easier to put on, take off and maintain.

The Navy asked designers to come up with something to fill the bill. Wednesday the Ministry of Defense showed newsmen at Portsmouth seven designs under construction, some with double and single-breasted jackets.

But all of them retain the square rig, adopted in something like its present form in 1857, as well as flared trousers and cap.

Only the creases have changed direction. In each of the seven pairs of trousers, knife-edged vertical creases replace the seven horizontal ones, which had to be put in with an iron, taking many sailor hours.

The designs are being paraded this week before groups of 20 sailors at a time. After 500 of them have given their opinion, a committee of 16 senior naval officers, including three women, will analyze the questionnaires.

The modeling sessions at Portsmouth were limited to 20 sailors at a time on the advice of a ministry of defense psychologist. He said if a large group of sailors was let in to observe the sessions, the comments might not be as well controlled as the admiralty wanted.

If a new design is agreed upon, the new uniform will be given to 100 sailors for a 12-month period before finally being issued.

Two Injured In One-Car Crash

Two persons received minor injuries in a one-car accident Tuesday on Francisco Boulevard and Vivian Way, San Rafael, police reported yesterday.

Tania L. Huck, 17, of 280 Hillside Avenue, San Rafael, was to see her own doctor for a pain in her back, and Clifford A. Jaeger, 15, of 1015 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, was to see his own doctor for a cut on his lower right leg and a bruised right thigh, police reported.

Miss Huck was driving her car east on Francisco Boulevard at 12:17 p.m. and turned left onto Vivian Way too fast, overturning her car, police reported.

COMPUTERIZED FEEDING

William May of San Rafael, a patient at Marin General Hospital, casts a questioning glance at one of the hospital's new IVAC Controllers for regulating the flow of liquids during intravenous infusions. The controller is a miniature computer engineered to work in conjunction with a photo-electric cell to control the rate of flow. The hospital is one of the first in the country to use the controller which reportedly will save nursing time and be less expensive than the usual methods used.

New Judge Named To Try Soledad Trio

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A new judge was assigned Wednesday to hear the murder trial of the "Soledad Brothers," three black convicts accused of killing a prison guard as revenge for the deaths of three inmates at Soledad State Prison.

Superior Court Judge Frank W. Shaw was named to the case by Presiding Judge Walter Calcagno two days after Judge Walter Carpeneti was disqualified on a peremptory challenge by the defense.

The defendants—called "Soledad Brothers" by their supporters—are George Jackson, 29, John W. Cluchette, 28, and Fleeta Drumgo, 26, all serving time for burglary from Los Angeles.

They were charged with throwing a prison guard 40 feet off a balcony to his death in January of 1970 a few days after another correctional officer killed three black convicts involved in a racial brawl in the prison yard.

Their trial was scheduled to start next Monday behind a bullet resistant glass wall separating the judge, jury, attorneys and defendants from spectators. The case was transferred here from Monterey County, where the prison is located, on grounds of prejudicial pretrial publicity.

Jackson's younger brother, Jonathan, 17, was one of four men killed on Aug. 7, 1970, in a shootout at Marin County courthouse in San Rafael. The younger Jackson carried guns into a courtroom and freed three San Quentin convicts. Superior Judge Harold J. Haley and two of the convicts were also killed in a kidnaping and escape plot which the state contends aimed to free the "Soledad Brothers."

Angela Davis, an avowed Communist and former UCLA instructor, has been charged with murder, kidnaping and conspiracy in the Marin County shootout. She allegedly provided the guns carried by the younger Jackson, who had been acting as her bodyguard and traveling companion.

$500 Fine For Driving Infraction

William Carl Smith, 21, of San Rafael, has been fined $500 and ordered to jail for 45 days for drunken driving.

Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Municipal Court also placed Smith on probation for two years in connection with the misdemeanor count.

Smith was originally charged with felony counts of drunken driving and leaving the scene of an accident, but he pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of drunken driving and leaving the scene charge was dismissed.

He was arrested at the home of a friend May 15 after police said he left an accident at Second and G streets in San Rafael.

Frank Joseph Posey, 17, of 20 East Crescent Drive, San Rafael, a passenger in another car in the accident, was treated at Marin General Hospital for an injured leg.

Judge Menary also ordered Smith to make restitutions for any expenses incurred by Posey from the accident.

Mill Valleyan, Her Canine Among Guide Dog Grads

Magdalene Phillips of Mill Valley, a medial secretary-counsellor at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco, will be back at work Monday with a new partner.

Miss Phillips has just finished a two-week training period at Guide Dogs for the Blind, Inc., in San Rafael, with her new guide, a German shepherd named Solomon.

She has used guide dogs for 21 years and said she couldn't imagine getting around without one. "Solomon and I are getting used to one another at this stage," she said, "but should be working smoothly within a few weeks. I will say his name is completely apt — he is a wise boy and outsmarts me occasionally."

In addition to transcribing medical records for seven doctors at Letterman, Miss Phillips also counsels blinded Vietnam veterans.

"After I've spent time talking to these young men," she said, "any problems I might have seem petty and of no consequence."

Other members of the class who will be presented officially with their new canine partners in graduation ceremonies at the school at 2:30 p.m. Saturday are:

Patricia Bagshaw of Tulare, Jane Carpenter and Deborah Fries, both of San Mateo; Peggy Deegan of Ogden, Utah; Evelyn Drewry of Imperial; Cheryl Eneboe and Kathy Ward, both of Tucson, Ariz.; Kathy Kneass and Dianne Phelps, both of Pacifica; Diane Phelps of Vacaville; Charles Preiss of Victoria, Tex.; Ethel Sealund of Santa Rosa; Cy Selfridge Jr. of Denver; Morris Soifer of Los Angeles; Inez Suchil of Colton and Betty Washington of Houston, Tex.

Art Center Offering 3 New Classes

Three new classes — calligraphy, hand tailoring and jewelry making — are scheduled to begin this month at the Sausalito Art Center, 630 Nevada Street.

An eight-week course, "Calligraphy-An Expression of Awareness," will be taught by Judith Winters on Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m., beginning Aug. 18.

Another eight week class, "Introduction to Jewelry Making," will be taught Wednesdays at 7 p.m. by Myra Kaplan, starting Aug. 25.

Hand tailoring and design, a continuing class which students may join at any time, will cover all aspects of tailoring from designing and pattern making to final sewing and will focus on individual instruction.

Taught by Joaquin Vil-Mediano, the tailoring class is held four times a week, Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Mondays and Wednesdays from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Further information may be obtained from the art center.

Part-Time Rec Jobs Available

Jobs as part-time workers are now open with the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department, San Rafael City Hall, the department has announced.

Jobs include recreation leaders, sports officials, scorekeepers, recreation specialists in all programs of athletics, music, drama, dance and games.

Applicants must be at least 16 years of age.

Innocent Plea To Pot Charge

Daniel Martin Klopf, 19, of Mill Valley, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of possessing marijuana.

Jury trial was set for the week of Sept. 27.

Klopf was arrested June 23 when Mill Valley police stopped him to see if the bicycle he was riding had been stolen. Police said they found a cigarette and plastic bag, both believed to contain marijuana, in his possession.

Mailliard Calls Lindsay Switch 'Regrettable'

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, yesterday saw the decision of New York Mayor John V. Lindsay to quit the Republican Party as part of a trend toward narrowing attitudes within the party. (See National stories, page 2.)

"I like to belong to a party with a broad spectrum of attitude," Mailliard told the Independent-Journal, "and I don't like to see them (liberals like Lindsay) falling off the party." He said Lindsay's decision to register as a Democrat was "regrettable, but not exactly a big surprise."

The congressman, however, rejected a suggestion that growing GOP conservatism meant the party was moving out from under him. He classes himself in the moderate mold, with the qualification that he "might be an extreme conservative on one matter and an extreme liberal on another."

Mailliard's reaction was at variance to that of many other Republican officials in California. They generally welcomed Lindsay's departure from the party as the shedding of a heretic.

Mailliard made his comments at a luncheon of the Business Executives Move for Vietnam Peace at Ruggero's Restaurant. Two dozen of the Bay Area group's 300 members attended.

The congressman, ranking minority member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, warned against a hasty withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam. "Doing a Dunkirk would look to the rest of the world like the most abject weakness," he said.

"We are getting out," he insisted, "and I don't know anyone who thinks that process can be reversed."

Mailliard defended his opposition to Congressional proposals to fix a date for total withdrawal. Without this prerogative, he argued, the president "has nothing left to negotiate."

He said that armed conflicts often begin "because someone has misread someone's signal," and that such a congressional move could mislead the Soviet Union. "I have a very deep fear that if they see the apparent immobilization of the executive functions, I think you will find them very much bolder than they have been even in the Middle East."

Mailliard objected that any deadline set by Congress would have no force on the President. "There are many other ways of getting the message over to the President without misleading the public," he said.

He predicted "a tremendous bloodbath" when U.S. forces complete the withdrawal from Vietnam.

Noting the difficulty of assuring the release of all U.S. prisoners of war by the Communists, Mailliard said North Vietnam still has French prisoners of war from the early 1950s.

Lack Of Congressional Action Frustrating, Mailliard Says

Some frustration with the first session of the 92nd Congress was exhibited by Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, in an appearance today on radio KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board."

Mailliard said there "really has been no complete action as yet" on any of the major decisions Congress has to make, "and some of them don't seem to be moving at all."

This, he said, seems to be the pattern the last few years — perhaps because of congressional control by the party that does not have the presidency. He noted that "only four or five" of some 14 appropriation bills have yet been passed, although the fiscal year is six weeks old and the Congress now in recess. Last year, he said, "some agencies actually didn't get their funds until the fiscal year was three-fourths past."

In response to a listener's telephoned question, Mailliard defended his bill for the $250 million Lockheed Aircraft Corp. loan guarantee as necessary to save "30,000 to 40,000 jobs" and prevent cancellation of plane orders from abroad that would have further damaged the United States' balance of trade position. He said he voted for it reluctantly.

Similarly, he defended his vote for the supersonic transport funding — which was defeated — as keeping alive a program on which the nation already had spent a billion dollars.

The San Francisco-Marin congressman welcomed President Nixon's moves to bring Red China into the community of nations as necessary for "stability in the world." He indicated he favors allowing both Chinas seats in the United Nations General Assembly, although it is doubtful whether this can be done.

Asked about the prospects for revamping his congressional district by the state legislature, Mailliard said: "If there is any logic in the reapportionment, I would assume I would get all of Marin and they would reduce proportionately the amount of San Francisco I represent."

And indicating his Marin orientation, he welcomed a telephoned invitation to ride in a San Anselmo Fiesta parade on Aug. 28 and said he will do so if it does not conflict with a previous commitment.

Bayside Acres Sewer District Is Established

The San Rafael Sanitation District board last night approved legal documents to begin Bayside Acres sewer assessment district. District Administrator Norris M. Rawles said the action ended a five-year process to establish the new district.

Septic tanks in the area on San Pedro Road will be replaced by public sewers and hooked into the San Rafael sewer system, Rawles said. A private engineer, Roy Hoffman, is now studying designs for the sewer lines and will give the district a cost estimate when his study has been completed.

The sanitation district board also told its eight permanent employees to withdraw from the social security system. Rawles said the employees had asked for permission to withdraw because they participate in the county's retirement system.

Gunman, 38, Killed In Fast Draw Test

UKIAH (UPI) —Sheriff Reno Bartolomie says his office is investigating the death of a Lafayette man during a "fast draw" gun demonstration.

The Mendocino County sheriff said Wednesday that Gerald E. West, 38, was shot and killed by Robert Frank Baker, 57, also of Lafayette.

Panel Makes Trade For Bike Path

Sausalito Community Appearance Advisory Board last night traded an encroachment permit for a bicycle path near Humboldt Street.

John Armstrong, chairman, said Herb Madden Sr. wanted to use city land on Humboldt for temporary storage of building materials while he reconstructs Sausalito Yacht Harbor.

Tenative plans for a bicycle path were included in Madden's design, but the board made a few revisions and urged a higher priority for construction of the path, Armstrong said.

The path will be 12 feet wide and made of rolled rock with a redwood edge. Plantings will be added alongside the path.

POW Group Has New Area Heads

Two new area coordinators for the Northern California branch of the National League of Families of Prisoners of War and Missing in Action in Southeast Asia have been named by the league.

New coordinators are Mrs. David E. Ford of Sacramento and Mrs. Loren H. Torkelson of Carmichael.

Mrs. William Butler of Marin County is retiring as coordinator.

Opponents Of Stinson Sewage Disposal Plan Win Reappraisal

By PAT ANGLE

Responding to mounting public opposition, directors of the Stinson Beach County Water District agreed last night to take a fresh look at a proposed $8.1 million sewage disposal system for Stinson Beach and Bolinas.

The board voted to hire one and possibly two consultants to study the sewage situation in Stinson Beach, the proposed system and any alternate plans for waste disposal which resident groups may bring forward.

Water district directors, at a special meeting to discuss the sewage system, also agreed to ask the Bay Area Regional Water Quality Control Board to review the massive project at its September meeting.

Although the board did not decide who should be hired to perform the studies, it expressed interest in employing Frank R. Stead, former state chief of environmental health. Stead's name was suggested by Robert Tartaul, one of many persons who last night urged the board to study alternatives to the current proposed system.

Tartaul said Stead has expressed interest in doing the work, which the environmental health expert had estimated would take about 10 days and cost the district about $150 per day.

The controversial disposal system, which the water district is undertaking with the Bolinas Community Public Utility District, would include collection systems for both communities, a treatment plant in Bolinas and an ocean outfall. It will be financed through assessment districts set up by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Most of the discussion last night appeared to center around one question: Does Stinson Beach, which currently disposes of its waste through septic tanks, actually need the large sewer system?

Although Bolinas Lagoon, is under a cease and desist order from the water quality control board, Stinson Beach is not so affected. In Bolinas's case, the state attorney general's office filed suit this week against the utility district to speed up that community's portion of the project.

Many residents questioned whether sufficient study of Stinson's septic tank disposal system had been made to ascertain whether the $8.1 million project was necessary for that community. Persons in the audience also wanted to know whether the board was totally committed to the proposed project.

Hugh Dougherty, chairman of the Stinson Beach agency, said he believed the proposed project was "the best solution that has been presented to us, and we have looked rather hard and long."

But he added: "I'm not sure it's the right thing; that's why I'm open to alternatives. But right now, I don't know that there's a better way."

Director Ralph W. Sigmund, on the other hand, told the audience he considered the proposed project "within practical limits, as perfect as it can be."

Dougherty appointed three persons who have led the fight to block the planned project — Tartaul, Otto Reutinger and Ronald E. Wagner, all of Stinson Beach — to a citizens committee that would help choose at least one consultant to do the studies.

At the request of Director James V. Stevens, the board also agreed to review the ramifications of Stinson's withdrawing completely from the joint project. Stevens said residents should know if Stinson would run the risk of having to build its own sewer system and treatment plant at a later date.

A system built by that community alone undoubtedly would be more expensive than the joint project with Bolinas, he said.

Drug Conference

PEARL HARBOR (UPI)— U.S. Pacific Fleet officers ended a closed-door two-day conference on drugs Wednesday.

Hub Review Unit Nod To Apartments

The San Anselmo Design Review Committee gave architectural approval last night to the proposed 70-unit Parkside Apartment behind the Red Hill Shopping Center.

The development, proposed by David Lewis, plans one to three-bedroom apartments on about three acres. About four acres of land will be dedicated to the city for a park.

Last week, the development was approved by the planning commission except for architectural design.

According to Thelma Foster, committee secretary, the committee also approved design of a duplex at 210 Red Hill Avenue, site of the landmark Hanson Falls.

The site, bulldozed about three years ago, was the home of the late Mathew Hansen, who built a series of waterfalls, stone facing and ornamentation capped by a 20-foot waterfall on the steep slope.

The committee also approved construction of a seven-unit apartment building at 60 Magnolia Avenue and continued to its next meeting consideration of whether murals on commercial buildings should be considered signs.

Introducing United's DC-10 Friend Ship.
The plane designed to please everybody.

To Washington, D.C., beginning August 16, at 9:00 AM.

A lot of airlines have been coming up with little luxuries for their passengers.

United Air Lines has come up with a whole new airplane. We call it our DC-10 Friend Ship.

And, so every passenger will feel right at home, we've taken full advantage of its wide-body design. By building in extra roominess. Extra comfort. Extra service. All for no extra charge.

The widest Coach seat on any DC-10.
You'll not only enjoy a wider seat, but all seats are arranged in cozy pairs. So you're never more than one seat away from an aisle.

A Friend Ship Room in Coach.
We've added a beautiful lounge that's like your own living room. You can relax, mingle, or maybe try your hand at gin rummy.

Food from Trader Vic's.
You'll feast on such delicacies as Coco Shrimp, Indonesian Lamb, or Chicken Dali Dali in First Class and Coach. It's an exotic adventure in dining prepared by the king of Polynesian cuisine.

Extra friends on board.
Our Customer Representative can issue tickets, schedule your connections, even arrange for your car rental right on board the plane. You'll also find specially-trained stewardesses, and a supervisor to keep things running smoothly.

Picture windows to the world.
One glance and you'll take in the whole horizon. You'll be looking out the largest windows on any passenger plane ever.

The most advanced jet in the sky.
The DC-10 is powered by engines that are both cleaner and quieter. Which means a more relaxing flight for our passengers. And skies that are a little friendlier for everybody.

Ask your Travel Agent about an introduction to United's new DC-10 Friend Ship. Or call United at 388-3774.

We think you'll be pleased at what you find. And we know we'll be pleased to have you aboard.

The friendly skies. United.

Beautification Plan For Lake Endorsed

Marin Municipal Water District directors yesterday enthusiastically endorsed a proposal to beautify barren Nicasio Lake in a community wide planting effort.

Sponsoring the project are the Marin Council of Boy Scouts and the Marin Real Estate Board.

Manning the shovels, however, will be service clubs, youth groups, county organizations and "anyone who is willing to help," Robert A. Roumiguiere of the real estate board told directors.

William L. Kapranos, a San Rafael landscape architect, explained his plan for the 869-acre lake as "antiplanning."

"The less accurately our plans are followed, the better it'll be. The more haphazard the planting, the more natural it will look," Kapranos said.

Only trees, shrubs and ground cover native to Marin County will be used, the landscape architect said, adding, "It's a big challenge."

"This project has no beginning and no end. There are no phases to consider," Kapranos said.

Roumiguiere said boy scouts would like to get the first plants in this fall before the rain comes. Initial funding to purchase trees and shrubs has been provided by the real estate board at a rate of $500 a year for four years.

Board chairman Robert G. Anderson called the plan "absolutely wonderful" with other directors concurring.

The board will submit the proposal to Prof. Thomas Dickert of the University of California at Berkeley, who recently completed an environmental impact report for the water district, for his comments before any ground is broken, directors agreed.

The board also asked Roumiguiere for a detailed plan before plantings actually begin.

The conservation project would be handled by a committee of representatives from the boy scout council, the real estate board and the water district which would make necessary arrangements for groups interested in planting.

The plan to beautify the lake is almost two years old and recently was revived by Roumiguiere. Eventually, picnic and sanitary facilities are planned with hiking trails, nature study and camping areas established.

The Marin Municipal Water District board also:

CONTRACT — Awarded a contract to relocate pipelines at Camino Alto in Mill Valley to Soiland Company Inc. of Novato with a low bid of $10,776.

SLUDGE DISPOSAL — Voted to continue spraying and drying roadways in the watershed to dispose of sludge from the Bon Tempe Water Treatment Plant for six months at which time directors requested a report on work. Spraying will be done on Tuesday and Friday until wintertime.

TAX — Voted to levy a tax of seven cents per $100 assessed valuation to property owners in Improvement District A; directors agreed to lend the district operating funds for the coming year at no interest rate.

Relief For Developers Is Unlikely

County relief is unlikely for Marin developers grumbling that they shouldn't have to pay so much taxes because they cannot build on their property.

The San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board's ban on new construction in most of Southern Marin and Ross Valley came too late for any readjustment of property assessments this year, Asst. County Assessor Herschel W. Johnson said yesterday.

The lien date on which all county property valuations are fixed is March 1 under state law, he explained. On March the developers still had buildable properties; the bans were not imposed until June and July.

"It's just the same if you have a house that burns down after March 1," Johnson said. "You have to pay taxes on the vacant lot just as if the house were still there. On the other hand, someone who builds a house after March 1 doesn't have to pay taxes on it until the next year."

Should the building ban continue past March 1, 1972, the assessor's office would reevaluate affected properties at the owners' requests, Johnson said. But he offered little hope that landowners could win their arguments that the lots would have "zero value," as some have claimed.

Johnson said, "If the ban were permanent, then they'd be pretty near right." He explained that some holdings in Richardson Bay area are assessed as practically valueless. There, Bay Area Conservation and Development requirements effectively mean the properties never will be developed. "And some of that used to be very valuable underwater lots, too," Johnson noted.

But the water board building ban is expected to be lifted when sanitary districts meet antipollution requirements in a few months or years, Johnson explained.

Motorcycle Unit Wants Rec Sites

The Marin Ad Hoc Motorcycle Committee will seek help from the Marin County Planning Department, Mrs. Robert F. Schneider, committee secretary, reported yesterday.

She said the committee stressed the need for off-the-road motorcycle recreation sites at its regular meeting Tuesday, and informally decided to ask the planning staff how to get such sites considered in the countywide general plan.

The committee agreed that riding sites should be open to the public, even if on private property. There was extended discussion of how sites could be financed, and how to set up safeguards for the neighborhood of any site, Mrs. Schneider said. Criteria for environmental protection are being prepared by a subcommittee headed by Roger Panek, she reported.

The committee also reviewed bills pending before the state legislature that would affect motorcyclists, but decided to avoid taking any formal stands on them at present, Mrs. Schneider said.

The committee's next meeting will be Sept. 14 in the Marin County Civic Center.

Officials Use Own Money To Help City

UTICA, N.Y. (UPI)—Seven city officials including the mayor have dipped into their own pockets to help bail out the city financially because they said it was "short-changed" by the state.

Mayor Dominick Assaro announced Wednesday he and six other employes have given up one week's pay to help make up part of a $1 million cut in state aid voted by the 1971 Legislature.

SCORPIUS

STARS ABOVE

Scorpius Is One Of Beautiful Figures

By SHERMAN WALKER

This week's constellation, the Scorpion (Scorpius), is one of the believable ones and actually looks like a scorpion. It is a beautiful figure in spite of this association because of its number of bright stars. It is even brighter when seen from southern regions where it is higher in the sky.

The brightest star of Scorpius is called Antares which might be translated Rival of Mars. A name it received because of its reddish color, it somewhat resembles the planet.

To locate Antares in the sky, face southward at 9 p.m. and look at the region that is one-fourth of the distance up from the southern horizon to overhead.

Antares is a first-magnitude star. It is also a double star and has a 7-magnitude companion of green. It was long thought to be the largest star visible, but now a few others such as Betelgeuse are known to be as large or larger.

Its diameter is more than 300 times that of the sun. Mars could go around its orbit inside it.

Scorpius is mentioned by a great many of the writers of antiquity, and since for the most part they lived in desert regions the constellations may have seemed more brilliant to them. The star at the end of the tail, where the stinger joins, Shaula (Lambda Scorpii), is many times hotter than the sun and about 2,000 times as bright if they were at the same distance.

Vote Sought To Override Raise Veto

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The California State Employes Association said Wednesday it will seek a legislative vote next month to override Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of state employes pay raises.

"We believe the best time for a vote is after welfare and Medi-Cal reforms are resolved and legislators return from a recess," said CSEA General Manager Loren V. Smith in a statement.

The 115,000-member organization had announced it would conduct a campaign to persuade legislators to override Reagan veto of pay raise funds for the 1971-72 state budget he signed July 3.

Smith said CSEA would seek a vote first in the Senate, where 27 votes are needed to override. If successful in the upper house, CSEA then must muster 54 votes required for override in the Assembly.

"We have put together the strongest campaign to override a veto ever witnessed by state legislators,"

"We have put together the strongest campaign to override a veto ever witnessed by state legislators," Smith said. "We have definite commitments from key senators."

Smith said the governor's recent acceptance of a need for a tax increase will aid CSEA's pay raise efforts because "legislators will be more inclined to vote for an override if they know funds will be available." He added the governor vetoed the pay boost funds because he did not want to raise taxes.

The lawmakers plan to start a three-week recess at the end of this week if Medi-Cal and welfare issues are resolved.

CSEA directors previously announced it would take a strike vote of members if the pay increase funds were not restored to the budget before the legislature adjourns its 1971 session.

Solicitation Of Bids For Houses At Seaside Told

Bids are being solicited for four houses which are to be removed from Point Reyes National Seashore, according to the San Francisco office of the General Services Administration.

The residences, ranging in size from 825 square feet to 1,812 square feet, are being offered for sale as a unit.

There will be conducted inspection tours leaving the park headquarters, about one-fourth mile west of Olema, at 10 a.m. next Thursday and again on Aug. 31.

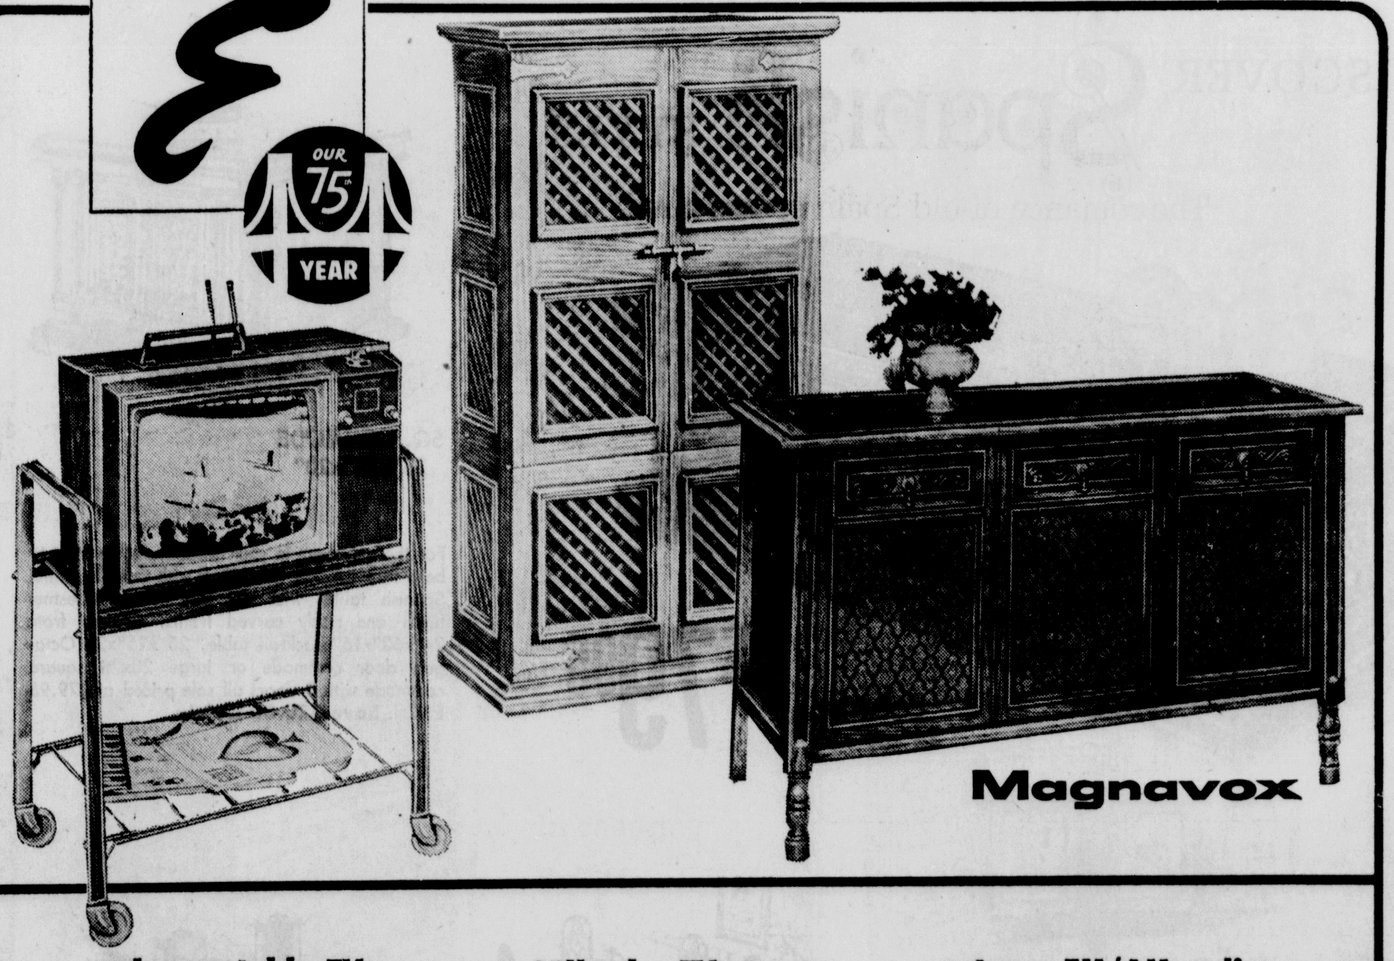

Sealed bids will be received until 11 a.m. Sept. 10 at the Business Service Center, 49 Fourth Street, Room 102, San Francisco.

Hanoi's Top Negotiators Boycott Talks

PARIS (UPI)—Hanoi's two top negotiators at the Vietnam peace talks stayed away from the talks today in apparent protest against Washington's slowness in replacing chief negotiator David K.E. Bruce, who resigned last month.

Neither Xuan Thuy, chief negotiator of the Hanoi delegation, nor his deputy, Nguyen Minh Vy, showed up for the 125th session of the deadlocked conference where the U.S. delegation was led for the second week by deputy delegation leader Philip C. Habib.

Madame Nguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong representative, did show up and used the occasion to accuse President Nixon of giving full support to the reelection campaign of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu so Nixon could use him "as an instrument of American policy, Vietnamization of the war and American neocolonialism."

The meeting broke up after two hours and 40 minutes and both Communist and South Vietnamese delegations said there was no progress. Habib left the talks without speaking to newsmen after urging the Communists to produce clarifications of their seven-point peace plan so real negotiations could begin.

Habib specifically asked how many war prisoners the Communists planned to release in event of an accord, and identification of all prisoners captured in South Vietnam. Then he said the Communists plan to go on fighting until they attain all their political objectives.

Hanoi officials said Thuy was "lightly indisposed" and that Vy was busy with "other occupations." In their place Hanoi sent Phan Hien, former head of a department of the North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry and an unranked member of the Paris delegation.

A U.S. spokesman said Bruce's replacement, Ambassador William J. Porter, current ambassador to South Vietnam, was expected "before the end of this month."

The situation bore similarities to events last year. In reaction to President Nixon's failure to quickly replace Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge who resigned, both Thuy and Madame Nguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong's foreign minister, boycotted the sessions for long periods.

They charged at the time that Nixon was "downgrading" the talks while he pursued a military victory in Indochina.

Although the North Vietnamese made no such charge today, Thuy's replacement, Pham Hien, said Nixon still sought to intensify the war in Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam.

Hien, who spoke to newsmen before entering the session, was identified as "a member of the delegation" by a North Vietnamese official.

The session was opened by Madame Binh who accused the Nixon administration of still seeking to avoid a reply to her seven-point Peace plan presented July 1.

A key point in the plan is a pledge to start releasing U.S. prisoners in North and South Vietnam simulteneously with the withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Vietnam—on condition the United States names a terminal date this year.

Madame Binh repeated the offer today, as well as recalling the Viet Cong's "readiness" to make a political deal with a Saigon administration that would exclude President Nguyen Van Thieu.

So far the response from the United States and Saigon has been to ask the Communists for clarifications, which allied officials say have not been forthcoming.

For Hanoi, Hien repeated the Communist position that "Mr. Nixon talks peace but still makes war."

PAKISTANI REFUGEE

An old woman squats next to her small bundle of possessions at a refugee camp near Paraganas, India. The meager pile of belongings was all she managed to salvage from her home in Pakistan, where fighting has driven many others like her to flee. The refugees, suffering from disease and a lack of food and shelter, have become the focal point in an increasingly bitter controversy between Pakistan and India that threatens to plunge both countries into war.

Nixon Signs Bills To Fight Drugs, Illness

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon has approved $62.1 billion in appropriations to help combat disease, marijuana and subversives.

Nixon signed 12 bills Wednesday including six measures to finance federal agencies. The bills were passed last week in the final hours before Congress recessed for vacation.

A measure appropriating $20.9 billion to finance the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare for the current fiscal year was $581 million over the President's request.

The bill, drafted in two days of conferences between the House and Senate, was some $3 billion over the amount appropriated last year. Most of the increase over Nixon's requests was for health spending, including grants for hospital construction.

But the bill also included more than the President asked to combat mental illness, alcoholism, venereal disease, paint poisoning, cancer, heart ills, arthritis, dental decay and neurological disease.

The President signed a $13.2 billion bill to pay farm subsidies with a prohibition that would cut off any payments to farmers who harvest marijuana.

The bill continues the $55,000 per crop farm subsidy despite the most determined effort in congress yet to restrict farmers to a $20,000 subsidy.

The prohibition on marijuana harvesting would not prohibit farmers from growing the crop, as had been sought in the house bill. Instead, a compromise version bars farmers from harvesting the weed.

Nixon signed a $4.1 billion money bill for the Departments of State, Justice and Commerce which included $450,000 for the Subversive Activities Control Board. (SACB).

The SACB, a Communist-hunting agency created in the early 1950s, lost much of its power through Supreme Court decisions and the President ordered its duties expanded.

It will investigate 25 radical organizations to determine if they should be added to the attorney general's list of subversive groups.

A $3.4 billion bill for the transportation department and related agencies includes $58.9 million to repay 10 airlines for their investments in the now defunct supersonic transport (SST) plane.

Another bill appropriated $2.2 billion to run the Interior Department and related agencies. The President signed the $18.3 billion bill for the department of Housing and Urban Development and several independent agencies.

Detergent Makers Split On Issue

NEW YORK (UPI)—The detergent industry has divided on the phosphate pollution issue by the decision of one of the four major producers, Purex Corp. of Lakewood, Calif., to abandon phosphates.

Purex, at news conference in New York this week, presented scientists who declared in uncompromising terms that phosphate pollution from detergents may destroy all the fresh water lakes in the country and many streams and tidal waters for fishing and recreation in a few years if it is not checked.

Purex, a firm with annual sales of $350 million, still has four minor products on the market that contain phosphates but said these will be reformulated or withdrawn. It recently withdrew its Brion phosphate-enzyme presoak and its Brillo and Purex major detergents are completely phosphate free.

The split in the detergent industry was reflected in charges by Purex that the other major manufacturers have engaged in deceit and spreading "myths" to the effect that nonphosphate detergents are too caustic and are not good water cleaners.

But the Soap and Detergent Association in New York told United Press International the other manufacturers could marshal as much or more scientific opinion in favor of retaining phosphates in detergents as Purex could for abandoning them. It also was pointed out by the association that Purex never has had a major detergent brand containing phosphates.

The scientists who spoke against phosphates at the Purex news conference were Dr. Charles Goldman, professor of limnology at the University of California, Dr. Herman Forest, biologist of the State University of New York, and Dr. John R. Vallentyne of the Canadian Fisheries Research board.

Goldman and Forest based their case against phosphate detergents at the Purex conference on the fact that phosphorus is a fertilizer and enormously accelerates the growtth of green algae in waters.

Alcatraz Idea From Indians

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Indians evicted from Alcatraz by federal authorities have a new idea for the onetime prison island.

They want the federal government to permit them to become guardians of The Rock so that it can be returned to nature.

Their intention was made known Tuesday by the Indians of All Tribes. There was no immediate reaction from the U.S. General Services Department which has managed the island since it was discontinued as a federal prison.

Alternate Route To 101 Urged

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce board of directors is urging county officials to take steps toward establishing a network of roads providing an alternate north-south route to Highway 101 in central Marin.

In a resolution recently adopted, the chamber said that one possibility would be a road connecting Ridgewood Drive in San Rafael with Lucas Valley Road. This plan envisions connector streets to San Francisco Boulevard in San Anselmo, Esmeyer Drive and Manuel Freitas Boulevard in San Rafael and Del Ganado Road in Terra Linda.

The chamber noted that this plan, "though certainly not the only possibility," was recommended in the 1966 San Rafael general plan.

The chamber urged that the county Board of Supervisors instruct their staff to go ahead with plans.

Tax, Sewer Rates Hiked: Tam Board

Directors of the Tamalpais Valley Community Services District have raised the district's tax rate by 11 cents, to 38 cents per $100 of assessed valuation and hiked the district's sewer service charge from $30 to $45 a year, Glenn Lambacher, board chairman, reported.

Lambacher said the board acted Tuesday after no protest of the proposed increases was received from district residents, either by letter or at a public hearing.

He said the sewer charge was increased to help pay for upgrading of equipment in the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District which handles sewage from the community services district. The upgrading has been necessitated by tighter standards imposed by the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Fifteen cents of the district's new tax rate will go to repair and clean the district's sewage collection system, according to Lambacher, as compared to 10 cents last year.

The remainder of the tax rate — 23 cents per $100 — will go for parks and recreation, with most of the money used for land acquisition and improvement of parking properties, particularly the recently-acquired Eastwood property, he said. Last year 17 cents went for parks and recreation.

Commuter Flights On Plan Agenda

The City-County Planning Council of Marin will consider the impact of proposed Golden Pacific Airline commuter flights at Hamilton Air Force Base on the countywide general plan, at its meeting today.

The session will begin at 7:45 p.m. in the Marin County Humane Society office, 171 Bel Marin Keys Boulevard, Novato.

Also on the agenda will be discussion of the council's transportation committee recommendations for the county-wide plan. The committee will suggest further tests of the Golden Gate Corridor transit plan in terms of intra-county bus service.

The council also will discuss the impact of Tuesday's action in which the Marin County Board of Supervisors repealed the 1967 West Marin master plan.

Summit Conference Proposed To Settle Mideast Hostilities

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The United States has proposed a Big Four summit conference with Israel and the Arab nations in a bid to solve the Middle East conflict, an Israeli newspaper said today. It said France may submit the proposal in the U.N. General Assembly this fall.

Quoting diplomatic sources in Washington, the newspaper Ha'Aretz said the session between the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union, Israel and the Arabs would be similar to the 1954 Geneva conference during which the Indochina accords were drawn up.

Those accords created North and South Vietnam and guaranteed the neutrality of Laos and Cambodia following the French defeat in Indochina.

Ha'Aretz, an independent newspaper, said the suggestion for convening a Geneva-type conference first was voiced by Britain's former U.N. ambassador, Lord Caredon. "It is now possible France will back this plan in the next General Assembly," the paper said.

"The U.S. has proposed a Middle East peace conference along the lines of the Geneva conference (on Indochina) with participation of the warring countries and the Big Four," Ha'Aretz said.

It did not specify which Arab nations were included, but Israel has occupied Egyptian, Jordanian and Syrian territory since the 1967 Middle East war.

The English-language Jerusalem Post also said France would propose the summit, which it said would include the presence of U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring, Sweden's ambassador to Moscow who in the past has tried to arbitrate between the Middle East belligerents.

The Post apparently took a dim view of the mediation efforts on grounds they would run counter to Israel's interests.

"Other proposals, reflecting new and more subtle tactical departures by the anti-Israel bloc (at the United Nations) are being floated," said the Post's Washington correspondent. "The principal effort of whatever effort is being mounted will be to obtain U.S. pressure on Israel... and bring about an Israel-U.S. confrontation."

In the Arab world, Cairo's Al Akhbar newspaper said former Egyptian Vice President Ali Sabry will be the first of 100 Egyptians to go on trial Aug. 25 on charges of plotting the overthrow of President Anwar Sadat last May.

It said Sabry, who was ousted by Sadat, "is the mastermind of the plot" and is accused of treason along with 27 others. Conviction is punishable by death or life imprisonment.

Others who have been proclaimed innocent following questioning will be released Aug. 21, the day the prosecution will list the charges against the defendants, the paper said.

Five government ministers resigned shortly after Sabry, considered Moscow's man in Egypt, was fired by Sadat. The Egyptian leader charged the resignations were an attempt to overthrow his 10-month-old regime by fostering a loss of confidence in the government.

Cairo's semi-official Al Ahram newspaper said Sadat and Libyan Premier Moammar Khadafy will go to Damascus to meet with Syrian President Hafez Assad Aug. 18 to discuss plans on merging their nations into the proposed "Federation of Arab Republics" Sept. 1.

It will be the first visit of an Egyptian leader to Damascus since Syria broke away from its union with Egypt in 1961.

The newspaper said the primary purpose of the conference was to approve the federation's draft constitution, to be voted on in a referendum in each country Sept. 1. The Sudan is expected to join the federation early next year.

Al Ahram also said Egyptian and Saudi Arabian envoys to Amman handed the Jordanian government a six-point plan designed to restore relations between King Hussein's government and the Palestinian guerrillas in Jordan. They later will go to Syria to present the plan to guerrilla leaders.

Police Issue Due Marin City Airing

Police protection in Marin City will be discussed when the Marin City Council meets at 8 p.m. today in the Manzanita Center, Council Member C. J. Williams reported.

Williams said many residents have criticized the quality of police protection in the Southern Marin Community. Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos and Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum have been invited to attend the meeting.

Quake Film Due Sausalito Show

"San Francisco, A City That Waits To Die," a controversial British film, will be shown at 8:30 p.m. Aug. 23 at the Sausalito Art Center, 630 Nevada Street.

The British Broadcasting Company production deals with the chances for another major earthquake in the Bay Area and the probable scope of the next quake and the damage it could cause.

Germans Veto Air Fare Plan; Transatlantic Price War Seen

MONTREAL (UPI)—A dissenting vote by Lufthansa, the West German airline, has forced rejection of a new fare package by scheduled airlines and set the stage for a possible trans-Atlantic price war on airline tickets.

Lufthansa voted "no" Wednesday night on a new International Air Transport Association (IATA) price package which offered some group fares for as low as $168 round trip to London.

Because of the tight secrecy since IATA's North Atlantic fare conference's 20 members started meeting in Montreal on June 29, it was not known why the West German airline vetoed the proposal.

IATA demands unanimous acceptance by all the delegates for a vote to pass. Conference Chairman H. Don Reynolds said Lufthansa could have until Sept. 1 to change its vote to yes and make the pact unanimous.

There was some suggestion in airline quarters that Lufthansa may change its vote from a "no" to an abstention and thus enable IATA to reach a unanimous agreement.

Some airlines, including British Overseas Airways Corp. (BOAC), Air France and Air Canada, have expressed willingness to go into an "open rate situation," meaning shaving competitive prices on North Atlantic fares.

If this happened, it would defeat the purpose of IATA, an agency governing member airline fares around the world. Only a few airlines, including Icelandic Airlines, do not belong to IATA and thus are able to offer lower prices than the IATA member carriers.

A spokesman for Air Canada, one of the world's largest air carriers, said after the vote his company was "in a period of silence," but promised a statement later.

Reynolds said before the vote Wednesday "a long-standing rule of IATA" prevented the individual carriers to make statements until the so-called period of silence expired, which, according to conference spokesmen, could last several hours to several days.

In New York, a spokesman for Air France said he believed "they (the airlines) will not try to throw open the books" because he expected several meetings before April 1, 1972, when the new fares were scheduled to go into effect.

The spokesman, Edward Tourelotte, said the Sept. 1 vote by Lufthansa may also change the situation.

In a statement issued to newsmen after the vote, Reynolds said, "All carriers accepted this as a new fares pattern for April 1 of next year with the exception of Lufthansa. So we have one negative vote which could be removed.

"Lufthansa made a statement to this effect about a week ago, but of course it is not until the last vote is taken that we know how many carriers were withholding. They have until Sept. 1 to remove the vote if they wish.

"If they do remove their negative vote, we have a fares package for April 1 of next year," and if not, he said, there would be an "open rate situation."

Eastland For Keeping Close Eye On Peking

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., today warned the administration to keep its eyes open in dealing with Peking, and he released a study estimating Chinese communism has taken at least 34 million lives.

Eastland, chairman of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee which commissioned the study, said:

"As our experience after World War II demonstrated so tragically, history exacts a high price of nations that indulge in euphoria over arrangements of convenience ...

"Above all, let us not close our eyes to the unpleasant fact" of the "fundamental hostility of Red China to the United States ...," Eastland said.

The study estimated Chinese communism, starting with the "First Civil War" of 1927-36, has claimed at least 34.3 million lives —possibly as many as 63.7 million —through military action, purges and terroristic slaughter.

The study was drafted for the subcommittee by Dr. Richard L. Walker, director of the Institute of International Studies at the University of South Carolina. Eastland described Walker as one of the foremost China scholars.

Walker's estimate of communism's death toll in China exceeded estimates of Russia's communism toll made for the subcommittee earlier by Robert Conquest, a British "Sovietologist." Conquest's estimate of Soviet deaths was 21.5 million to 32.2 million.

Walker said the slaughter in China is continuing in the recent new era of more relaxed diplomacy and of reports that chairman Mao Tse-Tung has created a "new Chinese man."

"It is worth remembering that at the very moment (of these reports) in June, 1971, ... troops of the People's Liberation Army were machine gunning scores of their fellow Chinese who were attempting to escape to Hong Kong from Mao's new paradise," he said.

Walker cautioned against accepting a pledge Chou En-lai gave American correspondents in Peking June 21 that no vengeance would be exacted against mainland Chinese refuges on Taiwan if The United States removes its "protective shield" from the Nationalist Chinese.

Chou was quoted as assuring the correspondents, "Far from exacting revenge on them (the Chinese on Taiwan) we will reward them," Walker said. Walker added: "But these were just the terms which Chou En-lai and Mao Tse-tung promised to the former Nationalists and third party intellectuals who joined the Communists on their accession to power in 1949."

"These, too, were the terms which Mao offered in the 'Hundred Flowers' period of 1957; yet in the anti-rightist campaign which followed a vindictive revenge was exacted," Walker said.

Eastland said failure to understand the nature and motives of Stalinist Russia at the close of World War II led to the loss of Central Europe to communism and opened the way to the communist conquest of China.

Smog Alert Criteria Revamped

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area smog officials yesterday abandoned a controversial proposal to call smog alerts only after a key pollutant reaches twice the amount set by the federal government for an alert.

They instead adopted an alert system based on the federal standards. The system will get its first Bay Area test this fall.

Alerts would be called under the new system if any of the maximum levels were exceeded at any of 10 monitoring stations for sulfur dioxide, particulates, monoxide or nitrogen dioxide. Feldstein has reported that carbon monoxide levels were the only likely problem in the district other than oxidants.

An alert would trigger a district appeal for voluntary postponement of any nonessential automobile trips, use of transit instead of automobiles, curtailment of barbecuing and burning in fireplaces and a curb by industry on emissions.

The only mandatory restriction would be to suspend all burning permits.

The staff of the Bay Area Pollution Control District previously claimed that the federal standard could mean 128 alerts a year, but their claim ignored the other half of the federal criteria. This requires that meteorological forecasts indicate pollution levels will continue for 12 hours.

The staff conceded yesterday that when this forecast requirement was coupled with the maximum pollution levels set by the federal government, the district then could expect only about four alerts a year.

The unanimous action was by the executive committee of the district's advisory council. The full council will consider it at 10 a.m. Wednesday at 939 Ellis Street.

Dr. Milton Feldstein, director of technical services, explained that the figure of 128 alerts had been based on the average number of days for the past three years when the level of oxidants reached one-tenth of a part per million. The district's chief administrative officer, D. J. Callaghan, had suggested setting the alert level at two-tenths.

This suggestion won informal endorsement last week from the board of directors, with vocal objections only by San Francisco Supervisor Dianne Feinstein and Sausalito City Councilman Wyman Hicks. Their strong opposition apparently was enough to change the staff's mind, although the reversal was not explained before the executive committee.

19-Year-Old Is Arrested In Burglary

A 19-year-old San Rafael youth was arrested yesterday in San Anselmo on a warrant charging him with burglarizing the Greenbrae Pet Hospital.

San Anselmo police said they arrested Vincent James Holstein of 43 Francisco Boulevard at 3:30 p.m. as he was loitering near the Greyhound Bus depot on Center Boulevard.

Only minutes before, they said, a bulletin was issued for his arrest on suspicion of being the youth who escaped a police stakeout of the hospital on Tuesday.

The stakeout did net one youth, Mario Jeff Foglesong of San Anselmo, who was accidentally shot during a scuffle with arresting officers.

Foglesong was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday and is scheduled to plead today to a charge of burglary.

Holstein, meanwhile, was booked into Marin County Jail where he remained in lieu of $25,000 bail and is scheduled for arraignment in municipal court today.

100 Thefts In Novato During July

There were 100 thefts in Novato last month, most involving less than $50 in value, according to the monthly report of the city police department.

Police reported 26 thefts involving from $50 to $100 in value and 74 thefts under $50.

There were two robberies and four automobiles were stolen during the month.

There were 14 residential burglaries, 13 commercial burglaries and two auto burglaries.

Cases totaled 787 including 652 in the category of minor offenses, such as trespassing, vandalism and disturbing the peace.

FIRST EVER

Heart Device Implanted In Man

DETROIT (UPI)—A team of doctors and specially trained nurses today kept a constant vigil over Haskell Shanks and were "elated over his condition" following the implantation of a six-inch partial mechanical heart device, the first ever designed for permanent use.

"He remains in satisfactory condition," Detroit's Sinai Hospital said at 7:30 a.m. EST in a condition report issued more than 24 hours after the 63-year-old Shanks received the booster to help his heart perform vital blood pumping functions.

"Everyone in that area of heart studies is elated over his condition," said a hospital spokesman.

The spokesman said Shanks was being kept on an artificial respirator to help him breathe. He was being constantly watched and electronic devices designed to record life signs were being constantly monitored he said.

"I've never seen fewer than 10 doctors in addition to the specially trained nurses in that room at one time," said the spokesman.

Shanks, a plant guard from suburban Warren, received the first mechanical heart device designed to remain permanently in the body and assume part of the job of pumping blood from a failing heart in a five-hour operation by a surgical team of eight doctors Wednesday.

If he survives, Shanks will become the first successful recipient of a permanent mechanical heart device, either whole or partial.

The cigar-shaped device, attacked to Shanks' main artery with a tube exiting the body through the lower chest cavity where it was attached to battery-powered air tanks, was reported functioning properly.

Called a "patch booster," the device consists of a pumping chamber constructed of silicone rubber and decron, acting as an auxiliary heart pump designed to take over about half the work of the left ventricle, the heart's main pumping chamber.

It is a new version of a mechanical auxiliary ventricle designed by a team headed by Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, who performed the implant operation.

The patch booster is designed to correct the type of heart failure that annually claims an estimated 250,000 lives—one-fourth of the total number of persons who die each year from heart disease.

Shanks, a hunting and fishing enthusiast who worked for the Uniroyal Corp. in Detroit for 25 years, suffered his first heart attack four years ago. He recovered but two more attacks so weakened his heart that in April of this year he asked for a leave of absence.

His condition was diagnosed as congestive heart failure, which brings about a progressive weakening of the heart muscle, and began to grow "progressively worse" after he took his leave of absence. Doctors decided on Aug. 4 to perform the risky operation.

"Whatever you think is fine with me," Shanks told the doctors at that time.

The last artificial heart operation was performed in early 1969 by Drs. Benton Cooley and Domingo Liotta in Houston. A completely artificial heart was implanted in the chest of Haskell Karp, 47, of Skokie, Ill., and was designed to remain only until a natural heart could be found for a transplant operation. Karp succumbed to pneumonia and kidney failure 31 hours after the natural heart was installed.

Two years later, Karp's widow filed a $4.75 million lawsuit charging Cooley with performing animal experiments on her husband.

Planners Nod To Two Apartment Buildings

The Larkspur Planning Commission last night granted architectural approval for a 22-unit apartment building on Lower Via Casitas.

The building, proposed by the Holon Co. owned by Alvin Schultz, will be located at 220-240 Lower Via Casitas.

The commission also approved an eight-unit apartment house proposed by the Foster-Simon Co. to be located at 30 Corte Real.

In other action, the commission completed interviews of planning consultants for upgrading the city's general plan and approved a lot-split of 25-acres of the Hutchinson Quarry property.

Man Gets New Heart: Stanford

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—A middle-aged New York man was in fair condition today after receiving a new heart in Stanford University's 33rd transplant operation.

The hospital said the man, identified only as a 47-year-old resident of Rochester, N.Y., was given the heart in an operation performed Tuesday night by a surgical team headed by Dr. Norman Shumway.

He joined 12 other living Stanford heart recipients.

Dollar Devaluation Not Bad

By DEAN C. MILLER
UPI Business Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The world money marts have been buzzing this week about a possible devaluation of the U. S. dollar. In fact, devaluation of the dollar, considered by some as the first big surrender of U.S. world power, already has happened and there is nothing Washington can do about it.

"Independent action by officials of friendly countries since December, 1969, already has devalued the dollar by 3 per cent," said James Cooper, director of economic research at Irving Trust Co. of New York, one of the world's largest. Economists at two other large New York banks, both preferring not to be identified, agreed.

This all being so, the experts are convinced that the American man on the street has nothing —at least at this time— to worry about, whether "devaluation" comes about formally or not.

"What's all the excitement about?" asked the senior vice president and chief economist of a major New York bank. "There could be some long term problems but certainly in the short term it's all for the U.S. good. The floats of the Canadian dollar, the West German mark and the Dutch guilder and the revaluation of the Swiss franc and the Austrian schilling have helped our balance of payments problem. And that's a major factor in our present worry about our dollar-gold position."

"Let's talk about it, but only theoretically," said a vice president of another large New York bank, "because I'll bet our bank vaults that there will be no actual U.S. devaluation of the dollar.

"The German D-mark has been floating (seeking its own value level without monetary agreement restraints) since May 8, and has increased its value in relation to the U.S. dollar by 7.5 per cent. Based on U.S. exports to Germany, that has devalued the U.S. dollar by about 0.9 per cent, according to this banker.

"But it also has decreased our trade imbalance which, like inflation, division over the Vietnam war and ghetto unrest, makes free world currency markets jittery about the country to which they look for leadership.

"It's like the wife who has everything except that she sees lipstick—not her own—on her husband's shirts the next morning. Our trading partners, like the suspicious wife, ask if the leader is tending to business or tending toward a breakdown?"

Europe has had such worries in recent weeks.

Aside from worry over how the United States is handling its foreign and domestic affairs, the fuels of fear were ignited last weekend when the House-Senate Subcommittee on Economic Affairs openly discussed the possibility of devaluing the dollar.

European money markets erupted. Holders of dollars scrambled to get into what they felt might be more secure positions, such as the D-mark, the yen, the dutch guilder, even the franc. France eventually had to clamp restrictions on the flow of dollars seeking francs. West Germany did the same on speculators seeking marks for their dollars.

London financial papers predicted it wasn't a question of "whether, but when" the United States would devalue the dollar. But Washington maintained it's financial "cool," and the tide turned Wednesday. Gold, the basis for all free world monetary values and which had on the basis of fear gone up above the U.S. arbitrary value of $35 per ounce, dropped 50 cents per ounce on trading floors. That's still $7.75 an ounce more than the official U.S. rate but on Monday it had been up to $44.10 an ounce in London and Zurich.

"These currency movements can't do anything but help us over the short term," a knowledgeable New York banker said. "Any distrust of or deterioration of the dollar could be bad over the long haul, but only because it has been traditional for a long time to peg everything against the dollar. We don't look for that in the present picture."

New 22-Year Low For Dollar On W. German Money Market

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — The U. S. dollar hit a new 22-year low against the German mark on the Frankfurt money market today but the West German Central Bank stepped in to help it to a higher level.

The moves came after German newspapers reported rumors that the mark eventually will be pegged at 3.33 to the dollar instead of the previous 4 to 1.

Dealers fixed the official quotation for the day at 3.398 marks. This in itself was the first time the official quotation had dipped below the 3.40 mark level. The previous lowest was Wednesday's 3.4085.

In morning dealing before the official quotation was fixed, the dollar changed hands at 3.3895. This was below the previous 22year low of 3.3950 on Monday.

The West German Bundesbank (central bank), which has been trying to get rid of its more than $17 billion hoard, stepped in to buy 40 million more dollars in order to prevent the dollar rate sinking further.

As a result of the bank's action, the dollar rate climbed above the day's official quotation to 3.4010 marks.

The Bonn government's action on May 10 in floating the mark to find its own level against the dollar helped to depress the dollar price in recent months. But it has not yet succeeded in getting speculators to buy back dollars in large amounts from German banks.

The dollar rate has now sunk so low that the Bundesbank saw the necessity today to boost the price. It took similar action last Thursday and Friday after French government curbs on dollar buying started the new dollar crisis.

In London the pound slipped from the post-devaluation peak it reached Wednesday. But market men said this was really for market technical reasons. There was also a certain amount of caution in the market before today's trade figures were released. Just after midday the rate was $2.4195 to the pound.

Dealers of two American banks in London said the Dutch guilder took over as the main speculative currency in the market here today.

Petaluman Held For Dangerous Drugs

Gary Allen Lashley, 21, of 1020 Daniel Drive, Petaluma, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of possession of dangerous drugs and being under the influence of drugs.

Police said Lashley was arrested at 10:45 p.m. in an alley behind 264 Petaluma Boulevard North and had tablets in his possession believed to be either mescaline or LSD. He was booked into Sonoma County Jail for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

35mm: A Whole New Ball Game

Time was when the compact, fine-lymade 35mm cameras were the serious amateur photographer's delight, as well as the professional's, partly because it took real know-how to get special effects, using the film available and that negative size.

Enlargements from the 24x36mm negatives of the 35mm camera used to come out "grainy" and with greatly reduced sharpness, and it took an expert to work with these limitations and get really good pictures.

Well, today's 35mm field is a new ball game, as they say. The combination of sharper, better-corrected and faster lenses, plus new high-speed film, has made it possible for any camera snapper to get effects with ease that were closely guarded professional secrets only a decade ago, even including indoor shots with "available light" using relatively slow shutter speeds.

Not only has film speed made a big difference, but much improved sharpness and less "grain" have ended any complaints about that small film negative.

Come in and look over the whole new world of 35mm photography, including the complete lines of fine '35' cameras in our display. This is where the game begins!

Warrant Out For Man Accused Of Trying To Smuggle Grass

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — A bench warrant with bail set at $75,000 was issued yesterday in U.S. District Court for Herbert Bryan Berez, 32, charged with trying to import a barge load of marijuana into this country in May 1970.

Berez failed to show up in court for a hearing in which he was expected to plead guilty, according to the prosecutor, Arnold Rigarde.

Berez, who gave his address as Los Angeles, was one of three men arrested in connection with the barge load of marijuana.

Douglas Edward Rambo, 30, of Fairfax, is due to have another trial Nov. 8 in Los Angeles on the bargeload case, a judge having granted his motion for a new trial.

The third man, David Bruce Tate, 24, of Tigard, Ore., is to start a six-month jail sentence on Nov. 22. He earlier pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of smuggling pot without paying the transfer tax on it.

All had been charged with conspiracy to smuggle in three tons of marijuana plus receiving and concealing pot.

Rambo still faces trial in Marin Superior Court on marijuana charges, but Marin charges against Tate and Berez were dismissed about a year ago.

THE CHILDREN'S clothes designed by Ann and Sara Garbarini of Marin caught the fancy of the audience yesterday as they opened the fifth fashion show in the Marin Art and Garden Center series in Ross. Here Janet Honeychurch wears a red-white-and-blue patchwork dress with a hint of ruffle at the sleeve. Both this and a patchwork jumpsuit drew applause at the show.

Two Sisters-In-Law Create Clothes ForThe Small Set

By BARBARA HOSMER

Though neither of them really needs another career, sisters-in-law Ann and Sara Garbarini are partners who design children's clothes.

Operating out of San Anselmo post office box 682, they do the work via mail order catalogue wherever either of them happens to be.

Sara is the wife of Ann's brother Paul and the mother of an 18-month-old daughter, Amy. They live wherever Paul's work for a heavy construction company takes them — usually in the wilderness somewhere in the southern U.S.

Ann is the daughter of the Edgar Garbarinis of Kentfield, and is there for the summer, but she began the children's clothes designing when she lived in Carmel and taught history to Mexican-American migrant farm workers.

And last year she continued designing and stitching in her room at the graduate dorm at the University of Southern California while she studied toward a master's degree in counseling.

Each has her own designs in their catalogue and when orders come in each fills those for her particular designs.

Somehow it works, assures Ann, who adds that they intend to keep the volume small enough so that when they commission out the clothes-making they can keep a control on the quality.

ANN BEGAN what the two now call Miss Amy Designs about two years ago while teaching near Salinas and living in Carmel.

"I knew some boutique people there," she explained, and she placed some of her designs with them on consignment. "Then I got Sara involved. She has a master's degree from U.C. Berkeley in textile design."

Wnn has been "obsessed with sewing" most of her life and won a couple of regional sewing contests.

At Dominican College she learned men's tailoring as the "only student of a nun who knew how to do it."

She has had years of ferreting out places that have special fabrics, as well.

Now both young women design and both produce their designs, which Ann admits "really aren't for everybody."

Miss Amy Designs feature and applique, patchwork designs, lots of gingham, some ruffles, bright colors, and for fall a Victorian treatment on the sleeves.

One of the dresses they call "magic pockets," with little pockets all over the front.

"It's probably a throwback to my childhood," says its designer, Ann, who always liked pockets as a youngster.

LAST JANUARY they decided to produce their catalogue — a personalized combination of Sara and Ann's backgrounds and intentions and small drawings of the styles with accompanying description and price and bits of fabrics. It somehow caught the eye of a New York store and they do sell through it as well as keep a few things in a Monterey shop. But most of the business is direct mail from the catalogue now, Ann says, and they made up some 300 items for orders in the past six months.

Miss Amy Designs also includes hand puppest and toys and a boys' line called Pablo Pants for sizes 3 to 6x.

"Over that age we think boys should be in the jeans and T-shirt thing," Ann explained.

They went into the design business full force after Sara was clothes hunting for her little daughter.

"When she was looking for clothes she found they were sissy or boring, Ann says. "We both like bold colors and thought exciting stuff could be done with little kids' clothes as a reasonable price."

SHE SAID they stress three things — reasonable price, fun for the child and easy to take care of for the mother. Almost all of their designs are in Dacron Polyester wash and wear and range from $6 to $10.

And they test all fabrics themselves in the nearest washer wherever they happen to be — testing for wearability and color running.

"What'll I do with 12 yards of run fabrics?" Ann bemoaned with a laugh over a recent fabric disaster.

They also get a lot of feedback from customers asking if they will make up a design in a larger size than 6x, their limit. They don't because they feel that 1 to 6x size is a separate category of clothing, and older, larger children just don't look right in young styles.

Often friends offer special skills such as needlepoint which enrich the variety of designs the two can create. They also have an older woman in Marin who produces a line of baby quilts.

Word of mouth recommendation has made their designing go, says Ann. "It's sort of amazing."

Ann plans to use her teaching "as survival" next fall and says she and Sara are both going ahead with the designing and sewing "as long as it's fun and we enjoy it."

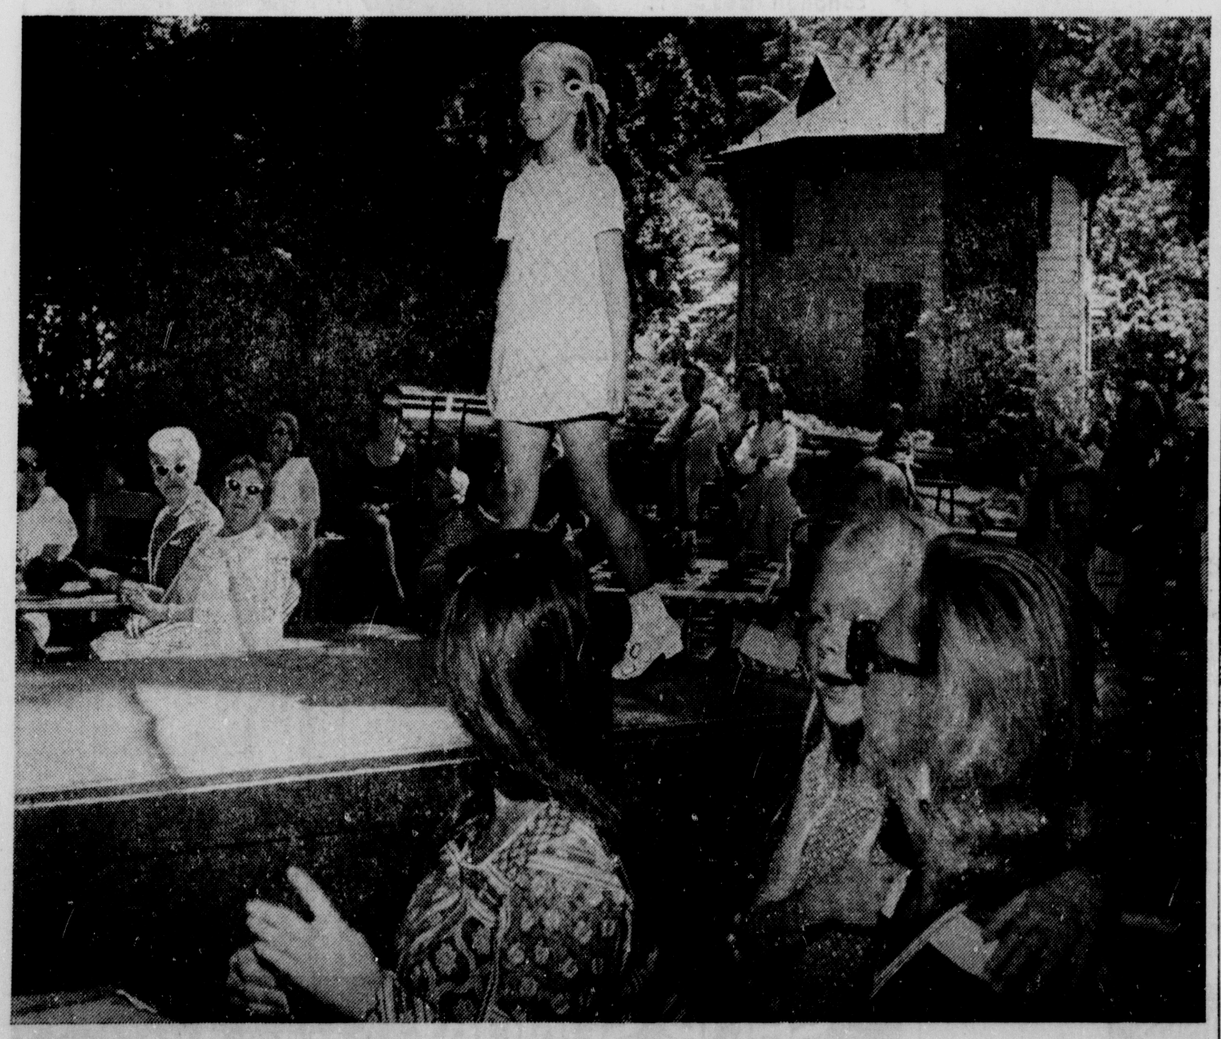

JENNIFER LAWRENCE is ready for the sunny summer days in the calico sun dress with matching bonnet lined with bright red. The calico is blue and white in short length. Jennifer carries a doll wrapped in a baby's patchwork quilt, all designed by Ann and Sara Garbarini. Below, Eric Charles wears the bright green jumpsuit that is a part of the Pablo Pants line for young boys.

THE DESIGNERS meet the small models before the show at the Ross center. Here Ann Garbarini (left) and Eric Charles (right) discuss the train motif on his jumpsuit which features the caboose on the back as Eric checks its button wheels. Molly and David Allen (center) wear a brother-and-sister blue and white gingham jumpsuit and dress. Sara Garbarini (second from right) is the other designer in the partnership of the sisters-in-law. The designers do most of the garment-making themselves.

WITH THE Octagon House in the background, young Jane Shattuck models one of the Miss Amy Designs' short dresses — a green and white checked polyester knit. The designers use easy care washand wear fabrics for all of their clothes and design strictly for the young set.

JAMES GALANOS, the American fashion giant from California, brings back the batwing and dolman sleeve (right) for fall and winter. The model wears the sort of hats that Galanos put with daytime costumes — a fedora with brim nearly shoulder-wide. The gown (left) is a long green shoulder-baring style with a huge dove embroidered with sequins across the bodice.

Galanos' Collection Has Stress On Return To Feminine Fashion

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Outside the sedate Plaza Hotel Tuesday the street scene fashion parade continued unabated in its Halloween or do-your-own-thing theme.

Girls wore undershirt tops tie-dyed, women too large or too old for them wore hot pants and long pants. Gloves, by their absence, all appeared assigned to thrift shops. Coiffures were stringy and matted.

Inside the Plaza Hotel, James Galanos, petite-sized fashion giant from the West Coast, showed his fall and winter collection —one aimed at setting a new pace in American fashion: well-dressed, wellgroomed, ladylike.

HE IS THE last of the great American designers to show their new collections and while others have beat the drums for a return to feminine fashions, no one to date has drummed as emphatically as Galanos.

For daytime he ordered up not just gloves but hats —huge fedoras with brims turned down. The hairstyle he endorsed is the page boy, every hair in place. Make-up, too, goes on in a meticulous manner — cheeks will rouged, the eyelids tinted with red, too.

Galanos, in the 135-piece collection conservatively valued at over $125,000 (few things with the Galanos label go for under $1,000), had long sleeves on everything except his wicked looking long or short black dresses that bared shoulders and backs and, nearly, bosoms.

The two old standard sleeves he opted for in a big way were the batwing and dolman. These were stitched on day dresses, cocktail dresses and evening gowns.

NO OTHER American collection went so far overboard for the yardwide sleeves, so Galanos will get the credit when such sleeves start showing up in off-the-rack, mass produced lower-priced clothes later.

Not one to hassle over hemlines, Galanos pegged his just at the knee. For those who like to show a little more gam, he slit evening skirts up the front and up the back to the thigh.

New in the collection were fabric hearts and flowers and Maltese crosses worn around the neck on fabric ropes and falling to the waist.

FOR DAYTIME wool costumes either in plaid or bright red or dark green or black had matching or contrasting coats, super tailored — both over the knee and hip length, usually self belted with a sash, a la bathrobe. Many of these had fur collars and cuffs.

The Galanos dress shapes leaned to the shirtwaist but with a difference. Many of the bodices were blouson and the skirts were either cut to flare out at the knee or had pleats let out the bottom third. Waistlines were placed either naturally or dropped.

Shawl collared jackets, a la tuxedo, went with many evening costumes, usually black over a long black dress or done in metallic brocade.

The filmiest of chiffons were overlayed with goldleaf shapes to give flowing long gowns a shimmering look.

AS MANY designers have of late, Galanos got in a political statement with his needlework. This was via a long green, shoulder baring gown with a huge dove — the peace dove — embroidered on with sequins over most of the bodice.

The show was in a smaller suite than it was two years ago. There was no intermission which meant champagne was served just once. It used to be served at the start and at intermission.

Spur Child To Read, Expert Says

Learning to read is the first challenge of school. Whether it will be an exciting experience to which your child will respond eagerly or a difficult, defeating one depends on the parents.

According to psychologist Dr. Miles A. Tinker, preparing your child for reading is cheap, easy and fun. Ordinary daily chores in and around the home, occasional trips to nearby places of interest and family excursions, together with the usual toys, crayons, picture books, a few storybooks to be read aloud, and lots of imagination are all that it takes.

SHARON FILIPELLI
Spring wedding plans

Engagement Is Announced

Plans for a spring wedding are being made by Sharon Joy Filipelli and Richard Jack Naylor Jr.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo J. Filipelli of San Rafael. She was graduated from Redwood High School and attended the College of Marin. She is the manager of the Town and County Health Spa in San Rafael.

Richard is the son of the senior Richard Jack Naylors of Greenbrae. His brother is Kirk Steward Naylor. He is the grandson of Robert J. Fisher of Berkeley. He is a graduate of Redwood High School, attended the College of Marin and is a senior at the University of California. He is employed at the Red Rock Marina in Richmond.

MARRIAGE VOWS RECITED

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robert Alvarado share a toast after their wedding at St. Rita's Catholic Church in Fairfax Saturday. The bride is the former Marlene Christie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Christie of Fairfax. Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Alvarado of San Anselmo are the bridegroom's parents. The newlyweds will live in Palo Alto while Donald completes his studies at Stanford University.

Eleanor Montgomery Wins 'Outstanding' Award

The Marin Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association selected Eleanor Montgomery in San Rafael as the chapter's outstanding Woman of the Year. She was honored by members at a dinner meeting last night at the Alvarado Inn in Novato.

ELEANOR MONTGOMERY
Woman banker honored

A native of Beaverton, Ore., Miss Montgomery was graduated from Beaverton High School and Portland Business College. She worked as a welder and riveter during World War II. She studied opera and contributed her musical talents to war bond rallies, and church choir work. In 1949 she moved to San Francisco, where she began her banking career as a commercial bookkeeper with the American Trust Company, now Wells Fargo Bank. She was promoted to assistant cashier and is now assistant operations officer and manager of the Reclamation Department in the San Francisco office of the bank.

Those designated "outstanding woman of the year" by the Association's chapters are entered in the national competition for the Woman of the Year award.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

'Variety Pack' Type Marriages Ignore Emotional Involvement

DEAR HELEN:

These dames who yell and beat their chests because their husbands have been slightly unfaithful!

Look, it's man's nature. My wife understands this. No problem at our house.

We agreed early on that "to have and to hold" doesn't mean "to own." If I want a little extra activity, I'm entitled. I tell her about it. She's adult. She doesn't get jealous — because she knows I love her best.

We both go out on dates with other people. Sometimes we take short vacations from each other, no questions asked. Our only rule: Don't get emotionally involved with anyone else. We don't go for swinging, being somewhat private people. My wife, naturally, doesn't "date" often.

These peppy but meaningless affairs keep us from being bored with each other: Make us see that we can still attract, get us out to different places. (With no need to hide, we can go wherever we please.)

I recommend the modern way of marriage. — VARIETY PACK

DEAR PACK:

I don't!!!

But then I have this nutty idea that emotional involvement is the name of the game, and sex-for-ego's-sake is like ringing a bell without the clapper — lots of action but no music. — H.

P.S....And I'll bet your wife agrees with me!

DEAR HELEN:

Here's one for Women's Lib to get its pearly teeth into:

Looking through "Who's Who in America," I found exactly three women listed in 20 pages! That's about par for the whole book.

So they throw a bone to females by putting out "Who's Who of American Women," patently an "also-ran" edition.

What fries me is that women must be at the absolute TOP to gain entrance in the supposedly integrated "Who's Who," while a man can make it if he is only half-way there.

Why not a Marquis' "Who's Who of American Men," same for women, and then "The Ultimate Who's Who," which includes the cream of both crops? — ANOTHER LIBERATIONIST

DEAR LIB: (AND MARQUIS:) How now, Who's Who: tell us what's what, and why. — H.

DEAR HELEN: Last fall I got hooked by one of those companies that advertises "make money at home."

It was supposed to send me samples. I would try the products and send my opinion, for which I'd get paid. All of this, after I paid a $10 registration fee, refund guaranteed if I was not satisfied.

I have not been receiving the products, and of course no payment. I wrote asking, then demanding my money back, but after three letters, I still have no reply.

What should I do? — MRS. W.

DEAR MRS. W.:

Write to the District Attorney in the city where this company operates. Also contact the Better Business Bureau to see whether it is listed as reputable. Send copies of your letters to the company and indicate your next stop will be at a lawyer's office... after you hear how many other housewives have been rooked.

And consider you've learned a relatively inexpensive lesson: never mail out money to get money back! — H.letter, and

This column is dediated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Tear, Don't Cut

Most leafy greens should be torn, rather than cut with a knife or shears. Contact with metal tends to induce discoloring or "rust." When using only part of a head of lettuce, for instance, break off the amount needed.

BEATS PHOBIA

Young Lass Joins Wall Street

By DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—One of the more beautiful sights on generally drab Wall Street is a mere slip of an Irish lass who overcame a phobia about telephones to become one of the Street's rare female traders.

"I was terrified the first time I took a call," said Miss Mary McGeough, 20, petite blonde and bubbly and definitely not a liberation girl even though she's invaded man's domain.

"They talked so fast. I didn't even think it was English. It was so frightening I just tossed back the 'phone to the nearest man around."

Mary eventually conquered her "telephonitis" and today handles trading orders and queries from the Los Angeles branch of Mayer & Schweizer, Inc., an over-the-counter house handling 700 stocks.

ADMITTING TO being "very , very Irish," Mary relaxes by dancing Irish jigs, reels and dancing Irish jigs, reels and "stack of barley" and coaching a young girl's softball team for her church in Queens, N.Y. "I'm not Mickey Mantle, but I know the game," says Mary.

Joining M & S three years ago as a filing clerk, Mary soon decided she wanted to learn the trading game. She moved into the computer room, key to back shop operations, and eventually graduated to the "cage" where stock transfers and deliveries are made. She moved along to "position" clerk, recording and filing the buy and sell orders transacted by the traders. Such records keep the company up to date on its stock positions and profit and loss picture for the day.

ONE DAY the boss asked Mary if she'd like to mgve into the "pressure cooker," the big room with 120 direct lines into brokerage houses, banks, insurance companies, mutual funds and branch offices. Sure she would, but there was a problem a big problem.

All her life Mary had feared the telephone which is the umbilical cord of life in the "Big Room."

"That first phone call was a nightmare," recalled Mary, "but I'm all over it now. I can't tell you how many calls I handle in a day. Sometimes I'm talking to three people at once. My left ear seems closer to my head than my right ear."

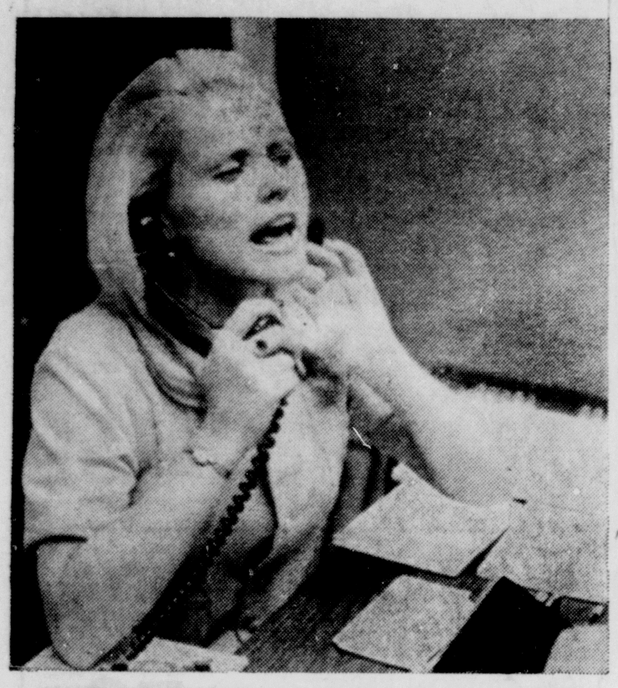

WHILE NOT officially a trader yet, she will be a year from now shen she is 21 and eligible to take the National Association of Security Dealers' examination for certification. She's boning up already.

Would she recommend trading for other women? "Oh, yes," said Mary. "I'd hate to see any girl go crazy under thp pressure as some men do. But it's challenging. The people are nice. All it takes is a good temperament and the ability to deal with people."

Mary admits she occasionally, "but not often," runs into a rude person at the other end of the line or some rough language when the pressure mounts. "But the trader must remember that large amounts of money are involved. "It's all fiercely competitive," she said. "So you forget and excuse".

DO YOUNG men ever call her at the office for a date?

"It never happens more than once," smiled Mary. "They're too confused and intimidated by the noise on the other end of the line to try it again."

MARY MC GEOUGH, 20, has become one of Wall Street's rare female traders in New York. Overcoming her phobia about the telephone the young Irish woman handles trading orders from the Los Angeles branch of an over-the-counter house covering some 700 stocks.

ADOBE FIESTA

Dedication Set For Old Rancho

Vallejo's Old Adobe Rancho in Petaluma — once headquarters for thousands of Pomo Indians and Mexican Vaqueros — will return to life this weekend with the 10th annual Old Adobe Fiesta.

Highlighting the weekend will be a ceremony at 3:15 p.m. Sunday officially dedicating the site as a national historic landmark.

Weavers, blacksmiths, carpenters, bread bakers and Indian dancers will exhibit arts and crafts that flourished when the ranch was in its heyday 135 years ago.

Gen. Mariano Vallejo oversaw the building of the adobe in 1836 as the center of his domain of more than 100 square miles. The rancho operations later diminished after the Bear Flag revolt and war with Mexico.

A special guest at the fiesta will be Vallejo's great-great-grandaughter, 13-year-old Mariana Emparan of Fresno.

Craftsmen appearing at the fiesta will include Teri Simpkins and Jean Dereschuk, bread baking in the "horna" open oven; Marty Armbright, Melinda Steere and Lisa Mallory, candle dripping; Jean Noack Pratt, handcrafted pottery; Ross Bare, leathercraft; Peter Rogney, blacksmithing; Mable McKay and Essie Parrish, basket weaving; William Budinsky, carpentry; Marjorie Irving and Hazel Betow, weaving; Christine Thresh, spinning wheel; Elsie Flohr and Dolcina King, macrame, and Mary Dee Mannion and Linda Lewis, embroidery.

Members of the Boy Scout Order of the Arrow will perform authentic Indian dances while members of the spindle and flyers club will spin yarn.

Artists from the Petaluma Att Association will also give demonstrations. Floral displays will be shown by members of the Petaluma Garden Club and Petaluma Flower Gardeners.

The schedule for the two-day fiesta includes:

SATURDAY:

7 a.m. — Pancake breakfast at Walnut Park sponsored by the Old Adobe Lions Club.

9 a.m. — Pioneer days costume contest at Walnut Park.

9:30 a.m. — Ugly dog contest at Walnut Park; open to both pedigreed and mixed breed dogs.

10:30 a.m. — Bicycle races from East Washington Street and South McDowell Boulevard to the adobe.

11 a.m. to 5 p.m. — Games, hay rides, pony rides, concessions and refreshments in eucalyptus grove across the street from the adobe.

Noon to 4 p.m. — Artists and craftsmen present skills at the adobe.

1 p.m. — Introduction of Mariana Emprana, great-great-granddaughter of Gen. Mariano Vallejo.

SUNDAY:

11 a.m. to 5 p.m. — Games, concessions, refreshments in grove.

Noon to 5 p.m. — Arts and crafts activities; Indian dances at adobe.

11 a.m. — Horseshoe tournament in grove.

Noon — Deep pit beef barbecue and entertainment at the grove.

2 p.m. — Whisker contest at the grove.

IT'S OFF TO SCOTLAND WE GO

Mitchell Reports Sharp Decline In Public Utility Assessments

The state-calculated pulic utility assessment rolls have taken the steepest nosedive in Marin County history, according to County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell.

He said yesterday the estimated loss of nearly $1.5 million on valuation of holdings by utility firms, railroads and radio communications firms was the equivalent of $48,000 in revenue to the county coffers, and about $165,000 to other districts and cities in Marin.

The tentative figures delivered to Mitchell by the state Board of Equalization showed a total of $33,151,520 for 1971-72, compared with $34,646,220 for last year. Mitchell said the final roll will not be received officially until Monday, but Sacramento officials had told him there would be no change from the interim total.

The decline in utility assessments was due to two factors, Mitchell explained. One was a shift in the state board's ratio of assessed value to market value, from 31 per cent last year to 29 per cent this year. The state, which formerly assessed all public utility properties at 50 per cent of market value, is in the middle of an eight-year program of trimming the ratio to 25 per cent, Mitchell said.

The second reason for the decline was that for the second time in county history, the growth in utility holdings was not enough to offset the ratio shrinkage. "This year there was virtually no growth," Mitchell said.

He added that the utility roll loss was foreseen and allowed for five months ago during budget preparation. According to Mitchell, the drop in the utility roll, to be made up by the private sector, amounts to three-quarters of a cent in the county tax rate, now estimated at $2.965 per $100 assessed valuation.

Bridge Panel Asks New Deputy Auditor Position

Creation of the new position of deputy auditor-comptroller was recommended today by a committee of Golden Gate Bridge District Directors.

The district's auditor-comptroller, Gordon Dahlgren, has been ordered by his doctor to take leave for a few months. Dahlgren, 63, indicated that he will retire next spring.

Dahlgren, who has held the top fiscal position for nine years, is paid $27,500 a year.

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring said he had not yet determined the salary of the new position. The man hired as Dahlgren's deputy presumably will replace him when he retires.

The recommendation by the rules and policy committee will go to the full board at 10 a.m. tomorrow. Board Pres. Lowell Edington, citing the unexpected illness of Dahlgren said, "We have to fill that hole and fill it quickly."

Federal law prohibits importers from selling their merchandise in the U.S. at cheaper prices than it is sold in the home countries.

Boy, 15, Given Death Sentence In Gang Murder

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (UPI)— A 15-year-old boy has been sentenced to die in the electric chair for his part in a gang murder of a rice farmer.

Arkansas law does not exempt juveniles from prosecution as adults. Three other teenage boys, two 15 years old and one 16, were being held for trial in the November 1970 murder.

Joe Kagebien, 15, of Dewitt, Ark., was taken to death row at the Tucker Intermediate Reformatory near Pine Bluff following his conviction Tuesday.

Nixon To Visit Three States

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon will leave next Tuesday on a three-day travel swing to New York, Springfield, Ill., and Dallas, winding up at his San Clemente, Calif., vacation home for an extended stay.

The Springfield stop, added to the schedule Wednesday, will be for a bill-signing ceremony on legislation that will turn the only home Abraham Lincoln ever owned into a national historic site. Nixon also will visit the Illinois State Fair.

In New York he will address the Supreme Council of the Knights of Columbus and in Dallas he is to appear before the Veterans of Foreign Wars on Thursday. The White House indicated other stops may be added to the schedule.

Reagan Signs Bill For Oil Leak Study

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation requiring the Resources Agency to contract for a study of oil leaks in the Santa Barbara Channel was signed Wednesday by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The bill by Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Ojai, carries a $50,000 appropriation from the California Environmental Protection Program Fund to carry out the study.

Petaluma Rec Panel Told Of Progress On Parks

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission heard last night that good progress is being made on three new eastside parks.

Recreation Director Richard W. Shollenberger said work will begin on Aug. 21 on delivering fill dirt at the 30-acre Lucchesi Park on Maria Drive. He said the Petaluma National Guard unit will provide its equipment and manpower to bring in nearly 12,000 cubic yards of fill that have been donated by Melvin Hein.

Shollenberger said that when fill work is completed, the final master landscape plan will be presented for commission approval.

He said that work on the new La Tercera Park is going well with the sprinkler system already installed and the 2.5-acre playing field scheduled to be seeded soon. Shollenberger said it is still possible that a federal grant may be received for the park.

He said grading work has been completed at the park on St. Francis Drive adjacent to Miwok Valley School now under construction.

In other action, the commission named Daniel Longaker as chairman and G. Ray Boccaleoni as vice chairman.

Last Rabies Clinics Set By County

The final three rabies vaccination clinics in Marin County's annual series will be held tonight, Tuesday and Aug. 19, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

The clinics, each running from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., will be held tonight at Marion School, Novato; Tuesday at the corporation yard in Mill Valley and Aug. 19 at the San Rafael City Schools administration offices.

The clinics offer antirabies vaccinations effective for two years, at a fee of $2 per dog. The clinics are operated through cooperation of the county department of health services and the Marin Veterinary Society.

So far this year, the clinics have vaccinated 4,364 dogs, according to Dr. Albrecht.

Proof of current rabies inoculation is required to obtain a Marin County dog license. Deadline for the licenses is Aug. 31.

Innocent Plea In Grand Theft

Robert Alexander Donohoe, 31, of no known address, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to felony charges of grand theft and armed robbery.

Preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Donohoe was arrested Sunday after San Rafael police said he beat up his father, Harold M. Donohoe, 70, of San Rafael, and took $10 from him.

Inmate On Furlough Fails To Return

San Quentin officials reported today that an inmate who was on work furlough to a job in the East Bay yesterday failed to return at 7 p.m., when he was supposed to report.

Still missing today was Marcus R. Castaneda, 27, who is serving a term for robbery in Orange County.

Neighborhood Action Group Elects Officers

Charles Lehnert, a Petaluma salesman, last night was elected chairman of the Adobe Community for Improvement of Our Neighborhood.

Other officers elected were Judy Gamer, vice chairman; Margy Laughran, secretary; and David Furger, treasurer. Chosen to serve with the officers on the board of directors were Faye Steinhart, Rod Rickard and Harry Ghent.

Richard Courier, representing the Petaluma Valley Homeowners Association, asked for cooperation between the two organizations in the construction of La Tercera Park.

Publicity Chairman Pat Furger said the group also approved the formation of a special committee to study eastside rezonings that are brought before the Petaluma City Council.

Movie Scheduled At Brown's Hall

"Days of Thrills and Laughter" starring Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, will be shown tonight at Brown's Hall community center, 390 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley.

The feature will start at 7:30 p.m. and will be followed by two serials of Flash Gordon and the Keystone Cops. Admission is $1.25 and 75 cents for children.

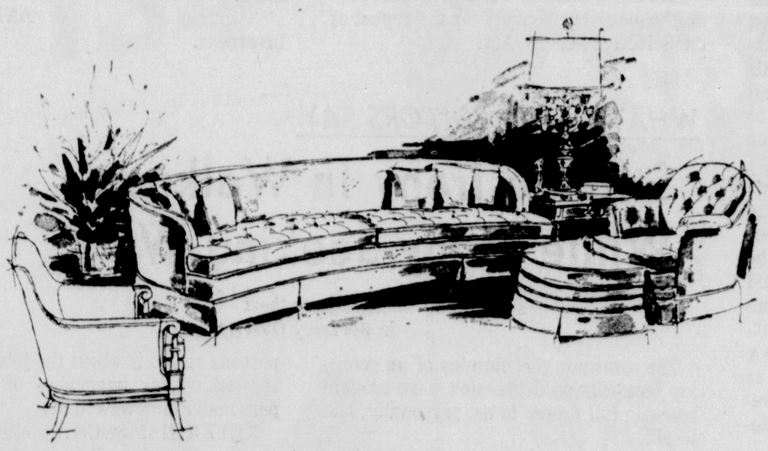

The hall will have a matinee Saturday beginning at 10:30 a.m. with Flash Gordon serials and continuing at 1 p.m. with Abott and Costello and at 3:30 p.m. with "Jack in the Bean Stalk."

Feature films are shown every Thursday night at the hall.

Vance Trivett Leaves A Legacy To City

Public officials come and go, with their departures often causing little more than a ripple. But the impending retirement of Vance Trivett as San Rafael fire chief deserves special note.

Trivett is only 58, but has announced he is retiring at the end of this month. He has been with the San Rafael Fire Department since July, 1958, and has been chief since November, 1960, when he took over the top spot on retirement of Chief Clarence M. (Fritz) Johansen.

THERE ARE OTHERS in the city's official family who have served longer, but none who has wrought such great changes in his department as has Trivett in his 13 years here.

San Rafael instituted a paid fire department back in the 1920s, but some of the aura of the earlier all-volunteer department remained through administrations of four chiefs who had all begun as volunteers: Dan Schneider, Walter R. Castro, Fred Scheuer, and Johansen. A volunteer auxiliary still played its role in fighting fires.

The Fourth Street fire of July 29, 1957, showed up the shortcomings of the department that had grown from the old volunteer days. A shed behind an awning company at Fourth and D streets caught fire. Before the holocaust was over, 17 businesses and one dwelling, on both sides of Fourth Street between D and E, were in ruins.

A THREAT BY underwriters to hike insurance rates in San Rafael followed the big fire. City council and fire commission were spurred to add a drill tower to the second fire station already under construction at Third and Union streets — the department's first training tower.

With the sudden emphasis on better training of firemen, Trivett, a captain in the Ventura department, was brought in as assistant chief and training officer.

His firm belief that constant training is the only way to develop an efficient fire department has been followed throughout the years, as San Rafael has added three more stations, much new fire fighting equipment, and has more than tripled the force. Although he was a volunteer fireman himself in his youth, Trivett has departed entirely from dependence on volunteers, in the conviction that only fulltime career firemen can be trained to the necessary level of skill.

His system has paid off. San Rafael has one of the most efficient fire departments to be found anywhere. And despite the sprawling growth of the city, with its many wooded and hilly residential areas, insurance rates have been kept low.

NOBODY HAS EVER called Vance Trivett a glad-hander or a smooth talker. His bluntness is legendary. He is a man who says what he thinks, and pulls no verbal punches. But he has been successful in winning city council appropriations for just about everything he has asked to improve his department's efficiency.

Because of this, and because of the rigorous, every-week, year-around training on which he insists, the department should suffer not at all from his departure: He has built it into a functioning fire-fighting machine, staffed by professionals who know their jobs.

That is the legacy Chief Trivett will leave to his successor, and to the City of San Rafael. He can be proud of it. And, although he'd probably growl at the suggestion, we suspect he is.

Prosecutor Role Stripped By Proposed New Law

By MARY K. SHELL

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Everybody who's watched Perry Mason knows that the district attorney represents "the People" (that's you and me) when he brings a criminal charge against an individual.

The roles played in the courtroom are separate and distinct: the district attorney, who has brought the charge on behalf of the people, leads the prosecution to prove the accusation. The defendant, or his attorney, tries to prove his innocence and the third (and hopefully impartial) party is the judge, who decides the guilt or innocence of the accused and hands down the penalty.

A bill now pending in the state Senate would change these traditional rolls. SB 948, introduced by Sen. Alfred H. Son, D-Monterey Park, would strip from the district attorney (the people) the right to decide what charge should be brought against a suspect, placing the decision in the hands of the judicial.

THIS BILL GRANTS to a municipal court judge absolute discretion to reduce a felony punishable in the alternative as a misdemeanor, to a straight misdemeanor, "at or before" the preliminary examination, without the consent of the district attorney or the defendant.

Senator Song argues his bill would simply conform the statutes to a recent State Supreme Court decision in the Esteybar vs. Long Beach Municiapl Court case.

However, according to Carl West Anderson, who represents the Peace Officers and District Attorneys Associations of California, the Esteybar case involved the authority of the judge to reduce the charge after the preliminary hearing. SB 948, Anderson points out, goes beyond this decision by authorizing the judge to reduce a felony to a misdemeanor "at or before" the preliminary hearing.

This means a municipal court judge would have the power to reduce many felony charges to misdemeanors without ever hearing evidence presented by the district attorney. The felonies that could be reduced under these provisions include all "wobblers" — crimes designated as a felony punishable by imprisonment in the county jail, such as second degree burglary, grand theft, vehicular manslaughter, and receiving stolen property.

ANDERSON SAYS the district attorneys in the state are already concerned with the effects of the Esteybar Supreme Court decision. More than 18 district attorneys joined Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger in filing a petition asking for a rehearing. However it was learned on July 21 the petition had been denied.

SB 948, says Anderson, does not attempt to solve problems created by the Esteybar case. "It compounds a catastrophic error."

In spite of vigorous objections of law enforcement representatives, Senator Song's measure received a "do pass" recommendation from the Senate's judiciary committee.

Differs With Tunney On Selective Service

In tonight's paper (Aug. 9), Sen. John V. Tunney is quoted as stating that he is opposed to a voluntary army because the burden of responsibility would "fall on the shoulders of the poor". I would call attention of the senator to the President's Commission on the Draft which states, from its intensive studies, just the exact opposite view.

Senator Tunney also states that he is afraid of the powers of the executive branch of government and that the executive branch has not been responsive to Congress. I would remind the senator that the ability for the President to use the tool of the Selective Service System to maintain a militant foreign policy is just such an issue which he should most happily work against. . .

The inequities of the Selective Service System have been adequately studied and documented, especially by the President's Commission on the Draft. The tool of compulsory conscription has made it possible for our nation to engage itself in brush-fire wars throughout the world. And the draft, with its mechanics of channeling, maintains a slave army. . .

It would be impossible for our government to maintain this system of absolute global military presence without the Selective Service System as its necessary foundtion, and with its intimidations.

Therefore, Senator Tunney, I most earnestly seek your support for the repeal of the Selective Service Act!

National armies are a threat to the peace and security of our world. The size of these armies must be greatly reduced, and the emphasis must be shifted toward building a permanent United Nations peace-keeping force, and a world government which alone can guarantee the security of all nations, everywhere.

Repeal the draft, Senator. And work for the real alternative: world government!

Charter Bus Ban Would Harm Public

It's a cliche that public transit operates at a whacking loss. One of the reasons why is exemplified in AB 3094, which would prohibit the Golden Gate Bridge District from operating charter services.

Charters are the money-makers in the transit business. A public agency barred from using its buses or ferries for charters requires a bigger subsidy for its regularly scheduled runs. Conversely, the AC Transit across the Bay is permitted to run charters, and the approximately $725,000 per year revenue helps to lower the subsidy.

The "sanctity of free enterprise" is commonly invoked when attempts are made to prevent publicly owned carriers from operating charter services at off-commute hours with their idle, expensive, publicly financed equipment.

In this context, the slogan is a grand example of the way private enterprise can gracefully retire from a complex business with the gravy, leaving the bare and unprofitable bones to the public agency.

AB 3094 (Knox) has passed the Assembly and is now before the State Senate. Let's hope a majority of the senators will protect the public interest and turn it down.

Strange Irony In Walkout While Many Seeking Work

The awesome dichotomies of an economy teetering on depression were brought home in full flower to us, personally, last week:

We inserted, for two days, a classified ad in the Gazette announcing the position of copyboy or girl, normally a menial — if utterly vital — position.

We expected a modest response of job applicants but in two days some 200 persons called in about the jobs; about 70 showed up for interviews of whom we personally interviewed 58.

NEVER HAS SUCH an elite group of people showed up for a relatively low-paying job. About 80 per cent were college graduates, a few had master's degrees. Most were out of work, or just out of college and looking, looking, looking for work. Many had tales of weeks and months of job-searching.

Salary meant little to most of them. Anything — any port in a storm. Unemployed teachers, some well along in years; young multiple-degree persons; young and older unemployed. All were there. All wanted to work, and at levels which some would certainly feel are far below professional people's salaries.

IN THE MEANTIME, ironically enough, PT&T workers were out on strike, some wearing "Ma Bell is a Cheap Mother" shirts. Various city employe groups were threatening strikes, the affluent longshoremen had "closed down the coast," the Port of Oakland had just survived a shutdown, and strikes and threats of strikes bristled in local, state and national news.

Organized labor seemed bent on self-destruction and phasing itself out of the job market. The demands came from everywhere; 5 per cent cost-of-living increases, phased increases, more security, more benefits. Each organized laborer and union was scrambling for as much of the pie as possible, as millions of other Americans remained without work — and, as we graphically saw demonstrated here, so many of them would have settled for menial salaries in menial duties.

'Palace Revolt' On School Busing Puts President On The Spot

WASHINGTON — The administration is in deep disarray on the most sensitive of all long-term domestic questions, that of school integration, and something has got to give soon if Mr. Nixon is to be allowed to be President on this as on other issues.

The President, who has half a dozen times made it plain that he is totally opposed to busing school children simply to force some extreme concept of racial "balance," has never been able to convince his own secretary of health, education and welfare that he has meant what he has so often said.

Thus, Mr. Nixon has at last been forced into the extraordinary course of publicly repudiating a plan for busing in its most far-out form — specifically for Austin, Tex. — which Secretary Elliot Richardson had persisted in putting forward.

NOT SINCE Harry S. Truman was compelled to dismiss two cabinet officers — Henry Wallace from the left wing and James F. Byrnes from the right wing — for determined efforts to become president-in-fact has there been so open an administration snarl.

What is involved in the present foul-up is a curiously determined effort by Secreatry Richardson, who is more or less the pet liberal of a moderately conservative administration, to make integration policy on his own bat.

Richardson, aided by such way-out civil rights people as Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, is trying to set a course and a tone on the infinitely delicate issue that is about 180 degrees at variance with the President's own views. In the process, these forces are clearly pointing the way for attacks upon the President by Negro leaders who are all too ready to go after him wherever opportunity may arise.

THE RICHARDSONS like the Yankee abolitionists who a century ago so plagued Abraham Lincoln — are not going to be satisfied with anything short of a punitive attitude toward the South, in spite of the fact that true integration has already made more progress there than in the North. (It is perhaps only coincidental that Richardson is a Yankee of Yankees.)

The busing thing is a case in point. As so completely liberal a man as Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut has long had the courage to say over and over from the Senate floor, there is already enough of a double standard on integration without adding some absurd and education-defeating policy of hauling youngsters back and forward all over a city to satisfy those who react with knee-jerk moralism to racial problems only in the South.

Ribicoff has pointed out, and intends to keep pointing out, that a monumental hyprocrisy already lies here. For the factual position is this: Segregation in the North is largely untouched by federal sanctions, because it is "de facto" and not "de jure." What this means in simple terms is that the North practices this ancient injustice through the device of tough economic segregation — as in Harlem — whereas the South has in the past — (but not generally now) — candidly tried to do it as deliberate public policy.

Lawyers and courts can no doubt see the difference here. It is unlikely, however, that some eight-year-old black boy in, say, Boston, Richardson's home base, is greatly comforted by the fact that he is put into an inferior school only "de facto" and not "de jure."

THE TROUBLE is that the Richardson types are trying to approach integration as though the problem were one of cutting a boarding-house pie into precisely equal segments. The essential philosophic meaning of the law itself is something else altogether. It is not meant to require the boarding-house pie methodology. It is meant to stop white people from denying equal educational opportunity wherever this can be done without putting children — black or white — into buses for almost as much time as they can then spend in the classrooms.

This is no pro-southern tract — Abraham Ribicoff was a genuine liberal on race long before Elliott Richardson. And Abraham Ribicoff, moreover, was himself once secretary of HEW — and in the liberal administration of John F. Kennedy at that.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Cambodian Reds Poorly Organized, But Dangerous

By ALAN DAWSON

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Despite 16 months of effort, Cambodia's native Communists have been largely unsuccessful in building a cohesive force to oppose the Phnom Penh government.

On the plus side, they have set up working governments in Communist controlled areas of Cambodia, and sprung some of the war's bloodiest ambushes on soldiers of the Phnom Penh administration.

On the minus side, the Communists are fragmented groups with little communications between different headquarters, split by dissension among themselves and with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong "advisers."

ALTHOUGH COMMONLY referred to as Khmer Rouge (literally red Cambodians), the Communists fight under a variety of banners.

At the core is the original Khmer Rouge organization, which fought unsuccessfully for years against the "Fascist" rule of deposed Chief of State Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Sihanouk loyalists have formed their own army and allied themselves with the Khmer Rouge, the so-called Khmer Rumdos (Liberation Army) and a series of bandit and smuggling gangs that oppose any government in power.

The Phnom Penh high command officially acknowledges that 10,000 armed Cambodians face the government forces, although officers are vague as to why that particular number is picked. All are lumped under the title of Khmer Rouge by the high command.

Unknown thousands of other Cambodians support one or more of the various programs of the Communist forces, in most cases because they live in areas controlled by the Communists.

IN THE NORTHEAST section of Cambodia, territory "temporarily abandoned" to Communist forces, Khmer Rouge members of Sihanouk's Cambodian Royal Government of National Union (GRUNK) control the civilian population.

According to intelligence reports and interviews with refugees North Vietnamese and Viet Cong supply the necessary force to maintain the native Communists in power, and are believed to administer most areas by proxy.

"Theoretically, Sihanouk is in charge of the dissident groups, but in reality charge is actually taken by someone in this country," a military source said in Phnom Penh.

"They have no centralization like, say, the Pathet Lao in Laos. But they might have centralization tomorrow."

TOMORROW IS WHAT worries most observers of the political scene in Cambodia, for the Communists are attempting to group, and justify the title of "civil war" for the Cambodian conflict.

"The Cambodians don't take the Khmer Rouge seriously," said one Western diplomat closely concerned with the local political scene.

"I think they should take them seriously. What bothers me is that people are being led to the other side, and Cambodia does face the possibility of a civil war."

Cambodian intelligence sources said that reports from Communist-occupied areas indicated that Vietnamese Communist forces had resumed large scale military training of Cambodians.

The training was believed to have been stopped last year after several shooting incidents between Cambodian and Vietnamese Communists over arguments about who was to be in command.

Cambodia so far has recruited and indoctrinated its army with the help of a willing population which believes it is fighting outside aggression by Vietnamese Communists.

The survival of Cambodia as an anti-Communist or non-Communist country may depend on continued incompetence of the Khmer Rouge in trying to wage a civil war.

Ghost of General Robert Inhibits Marin's City Councils

Sometimes I wonder why the highly-thought-of, often-quoted Mr. Robert of Robert's Rules of Order — that tome of parliamentary procedure goodies — hasn't come back to haunt some of Marin's city council chambers.

Meetings, which are lengthy enough anyhow, often are dragged out even longer by parliamentary entanglements.

If there's any doubt about who is correct or which motion doesn't need to be seconded, Robert's is the last word and there's no arguing with him.

JUST TO SHOW you how things can get bogged down in the gobbledy-de-gook of parliamentary procedure, look at this week's Tiburon City Council meeting.

It took four votes to get a partial ordinance passed banning motorized vehicles from the new Richardson Bay Trail for pedestrians and bicyclists.

The urgency ordinance, which took effect immediately, originally had prohibited horses from using the paved portion, but allowed them on the unpaved areas to each side of the eight-foot pathway.

Because of four-fifths vote was needed to pass the ordinance (this only applies to an urgency ordinance; the regular kind just takes a majority) and two councilmen voted against it, the ordinance did not pass.

Horses were removed, the ordinance was revised, and this time it passed. (By the way, each time the ordinance came up for a vote, the mayor had to declare by unanimous consent that the entire reading of the ordinance be waived and that it be read by title only — this one saves quite a bit of time.)

THE PROBLEM NOW was that the horses were going to be allowed on the asphalt path and everyone knows that horses' hooves cause pavement to crumble.

So one councilman changed his vote, but one of the yes votes had had to leave early, leaving three ayes and one nay. (In this case, a four-fifths vote would require 3.2 or 4 votes.)

The motion failed.

That vote, however, erased the earlier vote that had approved the partial ordinance banning motorized vehicles and allowing horses.

The slate was wiped clean and the council had to start all over again.

The ordinance finally was passed and horses can use the pathway — for the time being at least. (Just in case you meet one on the trail and you are riding a bicycle or walking, the horse always has the right of way).

Analysis: Californians In Congress

By BENJAMIN SHORE
I-J Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The call went out for California's 38 Congressmen to meet in a closed session with federal air pollution officials to press for tougher automobile standards for California.

Three Congressmen showed up, 10 sent representatives, and the other 25 ignored the meeting.

As this one recent incident illustrates, the California Congressional delegation is not the close-knit, smoothly operating political unit that some might expect.

"I'm disappointed that the delegation doesn't work together more," commented Rep. Victor Veysey, the newest Republican. A 56-year-old veteran of eight years in the state legislature, Veysey now represents Riverside and Imperial counties in the Congress.

"But we're all Californians and proud of it," he added, "and I think we work together better than most state delegations."

The delegation, made up of 20 Democrats and 18 Republicans, never tries to exercise political clout on behalf of one member's legislation or to force the Administration to support or oppose a project.

"We're a two-party delegation," says Rep. Chet Holifield. "Besides, there's very little a delegation can do to affect an Executive decision. We've never attempted to blackjack the Administration by threatening to withhold votes in exchange for a certain decision."

Holifield, a Democrat who has served the Whittier area of Los Angeles County for 28 years, is the dean of the California delegation because he is the most senior member of the majority party.

It is Holifield who calls delegation meetings; no other member may do so. For example, Veysey, who has introduced legislation to allow California to set more stringent auto pollution standards, asked Holifield to assemble the delegation as a show of unity and concern to officials of the Environmental Protection Agency — and only three Congressmen and 10 aides showed up.

"It's awfully hard to get everyone together," Holifield said. "Everyone is so busy, and there are so many other meetings."

Seventeen of California's Congressmen did meet three weeks ago to bring themselves up to date on efforts to have the state designated as the site of the proposed space shuttle's takeoff or landing facility — or both.

During the Lockheed Aircraft Co. financial rescue debate in the House, Holifield called a couple of delegation meetings mostly to keep everyone informed on the latest developments. In the final vote, 30 supported Lockheed, seven were opposed, and one was absent.

"Only when there's near unanimity do we get together," observed Rep. William S. Mailliard, an 18-year veteran from San Francisco and the senior Republican in the delegation.

"We're less cohesive than we used to be, and it's probably because of size."

When Mailliard first came to Congress in 1953, there were 23 Californians. The delegation increased to 30, and then to 38. This year's reapportionment will boost it to 43, making it the largest state delegation in the Congress.

"There's less camaraderie, less personal closeness now as our numbers have grown and members have become more partisan," Mailliard said. "In the days of cross-filing, people didn't care whether you were a Democrat or a Republican."

Mailliard, like Holifield, blames the busy schedules of the increasingly senior Californians for the poor attendance at delegation meetings and the infrequent social gatherings.

He also noted that faster transportation and increased travel allowances today enable Californians to return to their districts more often, making them less socially and politically dependent upon each other in Washington.

"The wives used to get together all the time, but now they don't," Mailliard added.

Rep. Robert L. Leggett, a Democrat from Vallejo who has been in Congress eight years, believes the Republicans and Democrats from California get along better than in any other state delegation.

The reason, he says, is that members of both parties avoid partisan issues when they get together.

The Democrats meet every Tuesday for breakfast, but the Republicans do not meet regularly.

Mailliard again said most everyone was too busy for such regular meetings, "and if we didn't have something serious to discuss every time, soon no one would show up."

Not all the Democrats attend the breakfast all the time. Commented one who rarely attends: "Phil Burton (of San Francisco) always wants to dominate the discussions, and grumpy George Miller (of Alameda) is always arguing over minutia."

The model of delegation unity is Texas, which, until recently, used to be solidly Democratic. It now has 20 Democrats and three Republicans.

Congressman Wants To Save Hospitals

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Robert O. Tiernan, D-R. I., said today many members of Congress believe the Public Health Service (PHS) hospitals can be saved despite administration plans to close them for economy reasons.

In a speech prepared for a Maritime Trades luncheon, Tiernan said a critical time for the hospitals will come next October after Congress ends its summer recess.

Tiernan, a member of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, said studies are being made on the feasibility of retaining the PHS hospitals in eight port cities. These reports are to be made to Congress in October, he said.

Tiernan said the PHS system now includes only eight scattered hospitals, two drug rehabilitation centers and 30 outpatient clinics. Yet it served more than 500,000 persons last year, including Seafarer Union members and their families, Coast Guardsmen and residents of the surrounding communities.

Taking issue with the administration's cost claims, Tiernan said the hospitals operate at an average cost of $60 per day per room compared with a national average topping $100 per day per room.

"I think we are beginning to realize exactly where our priorities lie," Tiernan said. "Many of us in the Congress feel that we are making progress in this direction and that the PHS system will be saved and hopefully updated and expanded."

Congress, in one of its final pre-recess acts, saved the hospitals from immediate closing by restoring a $14 million operations appropriation that the administration failed to include in its budget, Tiernan said.

"That cut, if it had not been restored, would have provided the excuse to eliminate one of the most productive, inexpensive and innovative health care programs within the United States," Tiernan said.

Canoe Stolen

A $600 canoe was stolen from a pier behind the residence of Stephen M. Robertson of 57 Meadow Way, Santa Venetia, Aug. 2, Marin County's Sheriff's Office reported yesterday.

ART BUCHWALD

How To Have An Affair While Happily Married

(Many years ago Art Buchwald discovered you can have an affair and still keep your marriage intact. This is how it can be done.)

One of the problems of being married and having young children is that much of the romance goes out of people's lives. A friend of mine has solved the problem. Every week he has an "affair" with his wife.

What he does is he kisses his wife good-bye in the morning and goes off to work. About noon he calls her up and whispers, "This is George. Is your husband home?"

His wife replies, "No, the oaf has gone off to the office."

"I'VE GOT TO SEE you this afternoon," the husband says.

"I can't. I've got to be here when the children come home from school."

"Get one of the neighbors to take care of them. Tell them it's an emergency and you have to go into town."

"Do I dare?"

"Please, darling, we don't have much time together."

"I'm frightened."

"I love you."

"I'll come. Where shall we meet?"

"Somewhere where no one will recognize us. I'll pick you up on the corner of F and 14th Street, at 3 o'clock."

THE WIFE ARRANGES for the neighbors to take care of the children and gets dressed up in her prettiest suit. She then drives into town, parks two blocks away, and waits on the corner.

Her husband pulls up. She glances around fast and then hops in. "I think I was seen, darling," she says nervously.

"Relax," the husband says comfortingly.

"Where are we going?" she asks.

"There's a motel just across the bridge. We'll check in there."

"But we have no luggage," she protests.

"I'll check in. You stay in the car and then we'll drive to the room."

AFTER THEY GET into the room she laughs, "I didn't even bring a toothbrush."

"I thought about you all week," he says, kissing her.

"So did I," she replies. "I for this moment. I it would never come." anted to call you, but I was afraid he would answer the phone."

"He wouldn't stop watching television to answer the phone. Does your wife know about us?"

"She's too busy taking care of the kids to know about anything. I told my secretary if she called to tell her I was out at a conference."

"HOW LONG CAN we go on like this?"

"Let's just be grateful for what we've got."

"If we'd only met each other before!"

"I feel that way, too."

At 6 o'clock they check out of the motel, and my friend drops his wife off at F and 14th. "Until next week, my darling," he says as he kisses her.

"It will seem like a year," she says tearfully.

AN HOUR LATER her husband arrives home. "Anything happen today?" he asks casually, as he pecks her on the cheek.

"The same dull routine. Anything happen with you?"

"No, just another crummy day," he yawns. They both smile inwardly and sit down to dinner.

8 Sentences For Traffic Violations

Eight persons have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Sentenced last Thursday by Judge Peter Allen Smith were:

James Frank Weirich, 41, of 1732 Annetta Drive, Petaluma, arrested July 31 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $225.

Kern County Man In Plea To Misdemeanor

Roger C. Platzek, 22, of China Lake, Kern County, pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of statutory rape Tuesday in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Judge Alexander J. McMahon set sentencing for Aug. 23 at 1:30 p.m. Platzek had originally pleaded innocent to a felony charge, but changed his plea when it was reduced to a misdemeanor. He was arrested Aug. 1 when police said they found him in a vacant apartment with a 14-year-old Petaluma girl.

An Estate With A Gate

Leads into this country setting on 7.70 acres, located on Bennett Valley Road. This large California ranch home has a heavy shake roof and large over-sized garage and is in a magnificent setting amongst numerous oak trees and natural rock out croppings. It was built in 1970 by one of Marin county's finest builders. Double hand-carved doors lead into an imported Mexican tile entry. The living room has beamed ceilings and beautiful carpeting. The kitchen is a gourmet's dream. The family room has a wall to wall fireplace of Sonoma stone with a wet bar & refrigerator plus a Franciscan Forge Barbecue, which is smokeless and odorless. There are 4 bedrooms. The master bedroom suite has a sumptuous, sunken bath and "his & her" walk-in closets in the dressing room. There is also another large bath with twin dressing tables and a separate powder room. A large patio is enhanced with olympic-size pool which is heated and filtered. For horse-minded people, there is a new barn with loft and tack room. Other amenities too numerous to mention. May we show you, by appointment. Asking $125,000. Exclusive. Evenings 897-1574.

CITY OF SAUSALITO, Cross-complainant,
V.
KATHLEEN BARRINGTON, ANTHONY VICKERS, FOURTH DOE, FIFTH DOE, SIXTH DOE, Cross-defendants.

To the Cross-defendants:
A civil cross-complaint has been filed against you. If you wish to defend this lawsuit, you must file in this court a written pleading in response to the complaint (or a written or oral pleading, if a Justice Court) within 30 days after this summons is served on you. Otherwise, your default will be entered on application and the court may enter a judgment against you for the money or other relief requested in the cross-complaint.

If you wish to seek the advice of an attorney in this matter, you should do so promptly so that your pleading, if any, may be filed on time.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
WASHINGTON
DECISION OF THE SECRETARY

This case is before the Department of Labor pursuant to a request for a wage predetermination as required by law applicable to the work described.

A study has been made of wage conditions in the locality and based on information available to the Department of Labor the wage rates and fringe payments listed are hereby determined by the Secretary of Labor as prevailing for the described classes of labor in accordance with applicable law.

This wage determination decision and any modifications thereof during the period prior to the stated expiration date shall be made a part of every contract for performance of the described work as provided by applicable law and regulations of the Secretary of Labor, and the wage rates and fringe payments contained in this decision, including modifications, shall be the minimums to be paid under any such contract by contractors and subcontractors on the work.

The contracting officer shall require that any class of laborers and mechanics which is not listed in the wage determination and which is to be employed under the contract, shall be classified or reclassified conformably to the wage determination, and a report of the action taken shall be sent by the Federal agency to the Secretary of Labor. In the event the interested parties cannot agree on the proper classification or reclassification of a particular class of laborers and mechanics to be used, the question accompanied by the recommendation of the contracting officer shall be referred to the Secretary for determination.

Before using apprentices on the job the contractor shall present to the contracting officer written evidence of registration of such employees in a program of a State apprenticeship and training agency approved and recognized by the U.S. Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training. In the absence of such a State agency, the contractor shall submit evidence of approval and registration by the U.S. Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training.

The contractor shall submit to the contracting officer written evidence of the established apprentice-journeyman ratios and wage rates in the project area, which will be the basis for establishing such ratios and rates for the project under the applicable contract provisions.

Fringe payments include medical and hospital care, compensation for injuries or illness resulting from occupational activity, unemployment benefits, life insurance, disability and sickness insurance, accident insurance (all designated as health and welfare), pensions, vacation and holiday pay, apprenticeship or other similar programs and other bona fide fringe benefits.

By direction of the Secretary of Labor,
E. IRVING MANGER, Associate Administrator
Division of Wage Determinations
Wage and Labor Standards Administration

3 Businesses Burglarized In San Rafael

Three San Rafael businesses have been burglarized recently, it was reported yesterday to San Rafael police.

Stevens Travel Bureau at 1601 Second Street was burglarized between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. yesterday. Burglars took cash, checks, airline and ship tickets and an adding machine with total value of $1,420, police reported.

Someone stole boat rigging, a mast and boom sails, valued at $732, from Barbary Coast Yacht and Ship Brokers at 25 Third Street between 6:30 and 11 p.m. Tuesday, Keoni M. Warinner, owner, reported to police. The items were taken from inside a boat which was outside the building, according to police reports.

Progressive Enterprises Inc. of 448 Dubois Street, was burglarized of record playing equipment and microphones, valued at $1,594, police reported. Although the burglary occurred July 26, it was not reported until yesterday, according to police.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

About 700 Terrible Twisters Rake United States Each Year

Tornadoes have been reported from all 50 states. The majority occur in the midwest and southwest, mainly in the March to September period. Oddly, twisters usually occur between three and 7 p.m. Typical tornado weather is hot and sticky with southerly winds and a dark, threatening sky. A tornado is easily recognized by its rapidly spinning funnel that extends from a thundercloud to the earth.

Every year about 700 twisters rake the United States. They are usually associated with intense thunderstorms. On July 4, 1969, one touched down in Northern Ohio and the severe winds and flooding left 41 dead. A series of 68 tornadoes swept through the Midwest on May 15, 1968, devastating more than 10 states. Seventy-one died and scores of people were injured and missing.

TORNADOES are horrible experiences. A suburban wife called her husband about the warning. On the way home, his car was hurled through the air and he was killed; their home was spared. The lesson is to keep calm. The chances of the tornado reaching you are remote. Never run outside to get a closer view. Speed is essential when taking cover. Know and remember the warning signs.

A tornado watch indicates that the right weather conditions exist. A warning means that a tornado has been sighted or indicated by radar. Nothing need be done except to be on the alert. Be extra cautious if the twister is west (and more so if it is southwest) of your position. When it approaches, seek shelter in an underground excavation or steel-framed or reinforced, concrete building. Turn on the radio or TV and stay away from windows. Most deaths and injuries stem from flying debris and it is a good idea to protect the head.

THE SOUTHWEST corner of the basement offers the greatest protection. If possible, get under a workbench, heavy table, or bed, preferably against inside walls. Closets are also safe hiding places. Keep some windows open to equalize the pressure but stay away from them.

In open country find a depression in the ground and lie flat. Do not remain in the car or a mobile home. Large buildings with wide ceilings are not safe. Advance planning can save your life.

SUN'S RAYS AND CANCER

H.T. writes: Can exposure to the rays of the sun cause skin cancer?

REPLY

A relationship exists between the two. Skin cancers are more common on exposed parts of the body, such as the hands and face. In addition, this form of malignancy occurs more often to sailors, farmers and Southerners who have a longer period of exposure to the sun's rays than do Americans in other parts of the country.

HOT AND COLD FOOD

M.W. writes: Is there any harm in drinking an iced beverage with a hot cup of coffee or tea?

REPLY

No. Food — hot and cold — changes to body temperature soon after reaching the stomach. On the other hand, it has been reported that the extremes in temperature may lead to tiny cracks in the enamel of the teeth.

WASTING OF THE BRAIN

P.T. writes: What is atrophy of the brain?

REPLY

Brain tissue may degenerate when the circulation is impaired thru stroke or hardening of the arteries. The condition was formerly called softening of the brain.

Today's Health Hint — An excessive buildup of earwax can lead to temporary loss of hearing.

West Berlin Talks — Big 4 Near Accord

BERLIN (UPI)—The Big Four ambassadors, reported near to solving the West Berlin problem following 17 months of negotiations, adjourned for the weekend today after marathon discussions lasting more than 22 hours over three days.

Pyotr Abrassimov, Soviet ambassador to East Germany, told reporters after today's meeting with the American, British and French ambassadors to West Germany, that they would meet again Monday and he had no other comment.

Reports of a near breakthrough came from Western allied diplomatic sources.

The diplomatic sources said the ambassadors have narrowed the existing differences still preventing an accord to the barest minimum and the announcement of success could come at any time.

However, proof that the last mile is the hardest came after Wednesday's ambassadorial meeting when Soviet Ambassador Pyotr Abrassimov told newsmen "today it was difficult. But we are continuing to make progress."

On the previous day, he said "today we took two long strides forward."

U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Rush contented himself Wednesday with announcing today's session, under Abrassimov's chairmanship, and declined to comment on the progress made so far. The lack of comment was in deference to a West German government request that nothing should be released concerning the actual talks.

Rocks Thrown At BART Cars

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Trains of the Bay Area Rapid Transit system have become targets for rock-throwing vandals during test runs in southern Alameda County.

The disclosure was made Tuesday before a special committee which approved spending $270,000 to put a more splinter-proof glass in the windows of all 250 train cars.

BART engineers said the rocks did not crash through the windows.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Key To Victory Is Ruffing A Trick Midway In Action

When the opponents stop bidding at the level of one, you can almost always afford to reopen the bidding. Once a year, you may discover that you have given them the chance to get to a game that they were going to miss. The rest of the time you will get to a sound contract of your own or push your opponents beyond the level of their skill.

PASSES SPADE

If East had passed one spade, no rubber bridge player would have blamed him very much. After all, a part score of 30 points is not worth very much. Why drive the opponents to a higher part score, which is worth far more?

When the hand was actually played, East had tournament experience; and he knew the value of pushing the opponents a trick or two higher. Besides, West might have a rather good hand; and then East would be able to make two or three clubs. Give West the ace of clubs or the ace of diamonds, and South would still open the bidding with one spade, and West would still pass.

In the actual hand, South was pushed to two spades, which he should have made. But South made one slip, and it was enough to do him in.

WRONG TRICK

South won the first trick with the ace of clubs and decided to try for a natural heart trick. He led a trump to dummy's nine and returned a heart, losing the king to the ace. Back came a trump to dummy's jack, and declarer tried another heart, losing the jack to the queen.

West led another trump, taking the last trump out of the dummy. Now South had to lose four hearts and two diamonds. Down one.

KEY TO VICTORY

South should make the contract by leading a low heart at the second trick. If a trump is returned, South can lead another heart. Declarer wins the next trump in his own hand and ruffs a heart in dummy. This ruffing trick assures the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two no-trump (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes.

You hold

♥ - 6 3
♦ - 9 7 6 2
♣ - 8 7 4 3.

What do you say?

Answer: Pass.

You need at least one more point to respond to an opening bid of two no-trump.

Hall of Fame baseball pitcher Christy Mathewson was born Aug. 12, 1880.

On this day in history:

In 1658 a so-called 'rattle watch' of eight men was formed in the colony of New Amsterdam, the first police force in America.

In 1851 Isaac Singer was granted a patent for his sewing machine, setting up business in Boston with $40.

In 1947 fashion designers caused a stir by introducing women's dresses that reached nearly to the ankles.

A thought for today: U.S. author Silas Mitchell said, 'Death's but one more tomorrow.'

Girl's Mother Sues Yippie, Publishers

NEW YORK (UPI)—The mother of a 10-year-old California girl has sued Yippie leader Jerry Rubin and his publishers for $2 million, claiming her daughter was wrongly portrayed as a participant in drug use, nudity and sexual promiscuity in Rubin's book, "Do It — Scenarios of the Revolution."

The suit filed in Federal Court by Mrs. Emily Fagell of San Francisco names Rubin and the three publishers and distributors of the book, Simon and Schuster, Ballentine Books and Social Education Foundation.

Connections Policy To Be Considered

Richardson Bay Sanitary District board has spelled out how it will distribute the limited number of sewer connection permits it is allowed by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

An ordinance outlining restrictions is expected to be adopted at the board meeting Tuesday.

The district is under a cease-and-desist order issued June 24 by the water control board that allows it to issue only 136 additional sewer connections until it stops polluting Richardson Bay.

Board secretary Beverly Wheeler said the ordinance would serve applicants on a first-come-first-served basis, no matter how many dwelling units the applicant wished to build.

Thus an individual who wants to construct a single family home and a developer with a 50-unit subdivision would be allowed one permit each.

No industrial use permits will be issued, Mrs. Wheeler said.

About 15 developers attended the meeting and voiced agreement with one restriction in the ordinance that prohibits transferring a sewer connection permit, according to Mrs. Wheeler.

The board directed its attorney, Mayer Daniel, to prepare the ordinance for adoption at its next meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Trestle Glen Treatment Plant, 500 Tiburon Boulevard.

Stereo Tape Deck Stolen From Car

A tape deck and speakers, valued at $137, were stolen from an auto parked on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, near Shafter Bridge, Lagunitas, Aug. 4, Marin County Sheriff's Office reported yesterday.

Deputies said the car owned by Leland E. Baum of 17 Robert Dollar Scenic Drive, San Rafael.

New College To Open In Sausalito

A private four-year humanities college, the New College of California, will open its doors in Sausalito Sept. 27.

Its founder, Dr. John P. Leary, a Jesuit priest and vice president for university relations for the University of Santa Clara said the new institution will try to alleviate the "boredom which turns off" many college students, particularly during their first two years of college work.

He said the program will represent "a radical overhaul of the present undergraduate program" offered at other colleges.

The college — which Leary stressed was not a religious institution — will open with approximately 50 students and six professors and a total of about 50 courses.

Among the courses to be offered: analysis seminars to study one current problem, such as ecology or population, in relation to other disciplines and fields and other problems; the building of imagination; literary response — how to look at literature; the city today; discipline — subordination of appetitie to reason and science as a habit.

Students will also take classes known as practicums in which they will go out into the community to study law enforcement, the courts, the schools, local governments, prisons and other institutions "to gage society and its troubles," Dr. Leary said.

Dr. Leary, who has served in his present post for the past year, was formerly president of Gonzaga University in Washington State for eight years. He holds a doctorate in philosophy from Gregorian University in Rome.

During his years in Washington, Dr. Leary served as chairman of the Independent Colleges Association of Washington State and chaired accreditation teams for 10 colleges.

Although the new institution is a four-year college, he said students will be encouraged to complete the required work in three years, through longer terms and longer periods of class attendance.

Dr. Leary, who is negotiating for a building in Sausalito to house the college, plans to move to that community Aug. 23 and will live at 257 Cazneau Avenue.

Civic Center Plans To Be 'In-House'

The Marin County Board of Supervisors has declined an offer of the Northern California chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects to review and help update the landscaping master plan for the Marin County Civic Center.

Architect Aaron Green of the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation said the foundation questioned the ethics of the professional group moving in on work contracted to his office, and the supervisors agreed Tuesday to keep reviews of the plan in-house.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

BARGE — Postponed action on abatement of the Holtzinger barge on Richardson Bay, until the Bay Area Conservation and Development Commission decides on dredging and flotation requirements for houseboats in the bay, within the next few weeks.

PERSONNEL — Approved revision of the salary ordinance to provide for quarterly review and report on job reclassifications, in place of the annual review now timed for budget discussions.

CONCESSION — Offered a one-year contract to operate the bar in the Veterans Memorial Building to the Civic Center cafeteria operators, after turning down a proposal by W. Robert Lomax Jr. that the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council sponsor a private nonprofit corporation that would train unemployed persons as bartenders for the building's events. Supervisor Baptiste voted against the motion.

How Times Have Changed: Quotes To Be Forgotten

QUOTES TO BE REMEMBERED (. . . or forgotten by some):

A story in the May 1 I-J saying the New York Mets were starting to get that crazy, familiar feeling again. "It's kind of like two years ago," Manager Gil Hodges said. "There's no reason why we can't win it all."

Look at the standings, Gil, ol' boy.

Then, on May 21, Manager Bill Rigney of the Minnesota Twins was quoted: "We have 120 games to go and I'll guarantee you once I get my pitching staff straightened out we'll be right there in the race."

Well, Rig, there's still time. After all, you're only 22 games out of first place. Get those pitchers straightened out!

And, finally, a May 29 I-J headline screamed: "Giant Runaway Is Reaching The Ridiculous Stage."

Why doesn't someone tell those Dodgers?

As I said, quotes to be forgotten.

AFTER A SUNTH of Mondays on vacation, it's good to get back on the sports beat, trying to catch up on the local jocks . . .

On a trip north last month it was my good fortune to spend time with some folks well known to Marin sports followers who in recent years have defected to the northern greenery.

First, there was Nick Kobseff, the former squire of Nicasio who now rules the roost at the foot of Mt. Shasta as proprietor of the McCloud River Lodge. Big Nick, you will recall, was quite a baseball figure around here for many moons, as a player, manager, sponsor, umpire and scout at every level from Little Leagues to Big Leagues.

At the time I saw him Nick was busily preparing for the annual McCloud Baseball Clinic and since then I have heard it was a howling success. Gary Hughes, the Marin Catholic coach and part time scout for the San Francisco Giants, attended the clinic last week with Giant personnel Joe Orengo, Garry Schumacher, Dutch Anderson and Jerry Hughes.

"We had a marvelous time in that beautiful country," enthused Hughes. "Nick and the people of McCloud treated us like kings. The Giants sent along loads of equipment and I imagine about 150 kids turned out — from everywhere from Happy Camp to Redding. It's just amazing the enthusiasm a guy like Nick can generate in a small community like McCloud."

After my stopover at McCloud, I headed north to Eugene, Ore., there to see another great guy, Joe Anselmo, the man who managed so many great semi-pro teams in Marin. Joe, whose move north a couple of years ago was prompted by his purchase of a thriving stationery business (not to be confused with a moving business, although both require a lot of paper work), still is quite active in semi-pro baseball.

In fact, I had dinner with him the evening his Eugene team won a double-header in Portland and he brought along his star third baseman, none other than former Marin Catholic High School All-Leaguer Rick Denning. "Rick's been doing a great job for us all season," said Anselmo, who recruited Denning for the summer before he returns to his junior year at University of Santa Clara.

Anselmo's team has such an impressive record this year that it could wind up in regional and possible national competition before the season's over.

By the way, Kobseff, Anselmo and Denning send their best wishes to their legions of Marin friends.

Novato Loses Heartbreaker In 11th

I-J Special Report

BRAWLEY (Imperial County) — Novato faces a do-or-die situation tonight at 7 o'clock when facing Phoenix in Babe Ruth Western Regional Championship double elimination play here.

Manager Bob Simi's squad suffered its first loss of the year last night, 6-5, to Mexicali, Mexico while Phoenix fell to Glendale of Southern California, 3-0, thus setting the stage for the local nine's tournament showdown.

The Marin County 13-year-old group dropped a heartbreaking 11-inning loss when a pop fly eluded the grasp of the Novato shortstop, plating the decisive tally. Two singles past third base and a walk with one out prefaced the fateful play.

Following the contest, Simi said, "We just never recovered after they scored four runs in the first inning." Despite the Mexico team's scoring thrust, Novato lefthander Dave Lucchesi survived 10 innings as his teammates rallied.

After picking up the four, they acquired another in the third. Novato pecked away for two in frame three, and another pair in the sixth. Mexicali pushed over another run before Novato finally tied the contest in the seventh, thus keeping Lucchesi on the mound.

The Novato southpaw finished with five strikeouts, four walks while surrendering 11 hits. He walked a trio in the ninth but escaped without further damage.

Lucchesi gave way to Chuck Waldron who was promptly hit by the winning Mexicali salvo. Although Novato could not equalize the match in the bottom of the 11th, it did muster 10 hits. This included Barry leslie's double and sacrifice fly, knotting the game in the seventh.

Leslie's heroics were augmented by the two-hit performances of Mike Moroski, Fred Conte and John Weston. Conte's contribution featured a solid double.

In noting the Novato output, Simi discloses that Moroski, a righthander, is the likely starter tonight. If he doesn't go, Simi will reportedly look to another righty, Mike Moreno.

His tentative lineup includes: third baseman, Leslie; leftfield, Tom Laigon; first base, Conte; rightfield, Glen Dunbar; pitcher, Moroski; catcher, Chris Purdy; centerfield, Weston; shortstop, Moreno; and second base, Mike Foster.

GIANT DROP — The San Francisco Giants found no bed of rosarios in the personage of substitute centerfielder Jim Rosario yesterday at Candlestick Park. The beseiged flychaser sprinted to the deepest portions of center for a long drive but lost the ball (beneath glove) when he crashed against the fence. The abrupt meeting with the steel backdrop sent him sprawling, while looking for the ball, which he recovered in tome to hold the batter, Montreal catcher John Bateman, to a triple. Rosario's hustling efforts went for naught as Bateman ultimately scored enroute to the Expos' 5-0 triumph over the faltering Giants.

Batters Betray Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Charlie Fox's lament sounds familiar. "There's nothing wrong with us that a couple of hits at the right time and a complete game or two won't make a big difference," Charlie was saying Wednesday shortly after big Steve Renko of Montreal had shut out the San Francisco Giants, 5-0.

"The kid pitched a great game but we could have gotten him out of there with a couple of hits," Fox continued. "We didn't, so that's that and now we have to look ahead to the Mets."

The Mets, who've had trouble getting key hits all season long, come to town Friday night for a three-game weekend series. Gaylord Perry, who went 11 innings in a winning performance against the Cubs last weekend, pitches Friday night against former Giant Ray Sadecai.

"If we get another complete game out of Perry, we'll be all right" Fox said, and then added he planned no changes in the Giants lineup even though the club was held to 12 hits and one run in two games with the Expos.

"These fellows got us here and I expect them to snap us out of our slump," Fox said.

Charlie may be asking too much because some of the men he has been playing aren't scaring too many pitchers lately — fellows such as Chris Speier, Jimmy Rosario, Dick Dietz, Ken Henderson, and even Willie McCovey.

Those five got only four hits in the last two games between them. The two who are really swooning are Speier and Henderson.

Big Dave Kingman, who burst on the scene in such spectacular fashion two weeks ago, is anxious to help but Fox said he doesn't want to rush the youngster. Another eager to play, and with fine credentials for the limited action he's seen, is catcher Fran Healy.

For the first time in two months John Cumberland, the bulldog lefthander, disappointed in Wednesday's loss to the Expos. Montreal reached him for three hits and a sacrifice fly in the third for three runs and the Giants never recovered. Rusty Staub got the key hit, a two-run triple.

John Bateman tripled in the fourth and scored on a single by Bobby Wine, and then Wine surprised everyone, including himself, by hitting his first homer of the year in the ninth.

The Giants kept threatening against Renko, who won his 11th game but they couldn't quite get over the big blow. In the fourth they loaded the bases with two out but Speier went for the first pitch by Renko, a low slider, and bounced out to end the frame. Two of the base runners that inning got on via walks as Renko battled his control.

Tito's Visit Cheers A Dying Young Fan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Thirteen-year-old Otto Christo's last full day on earth was a happy one. Tito came to visit him.

Young Otto was talking to his mother, Mrs. Lily Christo, on his bed in San Francisco General Hospital July 28 when someone appeared at the door.

"I said, 'Who is that, Otto?' " Mrs. Christo recalled Wednesday, "and he said, 'Tito Fuentes.' "

Fuentes, second baseman for the San Francisco Giants, had come for a visit, which was arranged by a Roman Catholic priest who felt the meeting "would cheer" up Otto.

After the visit that day, Otto went to sleep. He was dead the next morning—a victim of leukemia.

"Baseball was everything to him," Mrs. Christo said. "Next to his dog, Tina, he loved the Giants best."

Mrs. Christo said Otto didn't know about the visit.

"My son was eating watermelon," she said. "He was surprised. He looked up and he smiled.

"Tito gave him a baseball signed by all the Giants," she said. "They were talking about baseball and the amount of hits. His locker in his room was full of baseball cards. I took out some baseball cards. Otto said, 'Tito, Tito, I got your picture here!'"

Later during the visit Fuentes told Otto the Giants would win the afternoon game for him. They did, beating Atlanta, 2-1, and Tito hit a double.

But Otto never knew about the victory.

"I asked him 'Would you like to listen to the Giants game!' " Mrs. Christo said. "He said 'No, I want to sleep.' I cried. We didn't know that he would die the next day.

"That was the last thing he said that was so plain: 'I'm very happy today... because Tito came.' "

Cowboy Stadium Opening Delayed Until Oct. 3

DALLAS (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys announced Wednesday the opening of their 65,000-seat Texas Stadium had been delayed from Sept. 10 to Oct. 3.

Club officials said recent heavy rains in the area and a strike of Dallas plumbers had forced the delay.

The stadium, which sits in the midst of a complex of freeways in suburban Irving, had been scheduled to open Sept. 10 with a collegiate game between North Texas State and Brigham Young. A Dallas preseason game against Kansas City was to be played the next night.

Now the first game to be played in the huge structure will be the Cowboy's first regular season home game against Washington Oct. 3.

ROUGH NIGHT IN BOSTON

Blue Needs Help For 21

BOSTON (UPI)—The demise of the Boston Red Sox has become a cooperative affair. Bill Martin's Detroit Tigers put the lid on the coffin and Dick Williams' Oakland Athletics are nailing it down.

The A's were bunning for a sweep of their four game series at Fenway this afternoon with Diego Segui (7-5) facing a Ken Brett (0-1) newly escaped from the bullpen to replace Luis Tiant in the starting rotation.

Vida Blue helped drive the latest coffin nail though the Red Sox gave the sensational southpaw one of his rougher evenings before the Athletics won for the third straight time 5-3 in the 10th. The loss dropped Boston 7 1-2 games behind Baltimore and left the Red Sox half a game ahead of Detroit in the AL East standing.

Blue had a three-hit shutout going in the eighth of a game held up for two full hours by rain when the Sox got to him.

Phil Gagliano got Blue's second walk of the game and improving young Doug Griffin homered for a 3-2 deficit. Rico Petrocelli, who specializes in homering off Blue and now has three of the 11 given up by Blue this season, hit his 21st to tie the game.

But Eddie Kasko, whose bullpen regulars were tired from a heavy work schedule in the double loss on Tuesday, had young Roger Moret pitching in the 10th and the Athletics scored two quick runs for the victory. The key to the rally was a Reggie Jackson drive that bounced off Griffin into center field for a double, scoring the winning run.

Blue admitted he was tired even before the game and the two-hour delay didn't help. He said the fact that he beat Boston for the first time and now has beaten everyone at least once made no difference to him.

Neither, he said, did the fact that he missed tying Babe Ruth's record for shutouts by a southpaw of nine in a season, allowing only that he hoped to make it before the end of the season.

Sonny Siebert, the Red Sox starter and a winner over Blue in their meeting last May 28, gave up a two-run homer to Tommy Davis and another run in the third on three singles.

It was a base hit bunt, the first of two by Blue, that touched off the second rally and Vida was reasonably close to beating out a third one in the 10th.

Singles by Griffin and Luis Aparicio in the last of the 10th drove Blue out, something that has happened only twice before this season, but Darold Knowles got Reggie Smith on a double play and struck out slumping Carl Yastrzemski to eliminate the threat.

Kasko, who doubted he would make any lineup or batting order changes for this afternoon's series windup, got a pretty rugged verbal going over from some of the 32,858 fans every time he appeared.

But Eddie, whose team has now dropped six of its last seven games, said he hadn't even heard the tirade and noted that "You expect it when you lose."

Rose Bowl 'No Repeat' Rule Out

HARBOR SPRINGS, Mich. (UPI)—The Big Ten has lifted its long standing rule forbidding conference football teams from appearing two consecutive years in the Rose Bowl.

The decision, which came Wednesday in a "near unanimous" vote at the Big Ten's annual summer meeting, means a conference champion could appear in the coveted bowl game year after year if he kept his top rating.

The "no repeat" rule had been criticized because it prevented Big Ten champions from representing the conference in the annual Rose Bowl contest in some years.

Ohio State won conference titles in 1954 and 1955, but could not go the West Coast the second year. Michigan State went instead. In 1965, Michigan State was the conference champion, and again in 1966, but went to the bowl game only the first year.

The Big Ten started the "no repeat" rule in 1947 when it agreed to send a representative each year to meet the champions of the Pacific Coast.

The pact lapsed in the early 1960s, when the Pacific League was reorganizing, and it was during that period that Minnesota became the only Big Ten school to make consecutive appearances in the Rose Bowl, in the 1960 and 1961 football seasons.

The Big Ten now has an agreement with the Pacific league to continue Rose Bowl games for "an indefinite period." And, as of Jan. 1, 1973, the "no repeat" rule is scheduled to be lifted.

The ruling can be appealed during a 60-day waiting period, which begins on the day the last Big Ten school starts fall classes.

49er TAYLOR GETS TOUGH ASSIGNMENT

BOCA RATON, Fla. (UPI)— Cornerback Bruce Taylor is likely to have a tough assignment Friday night when the San Francisco Forty Niners battle Miami in exhibition action in the Orange Bowl.

He'll probably have to handle the great Paul Warfield one-on-one.

That's because all-pro Jim Johnson is doubtful at the other corner and free safety Rosey Taylor will probably have to help his replacement with Howard Twilley on the other side. Johnny Fuller or rookie Dave Walker is expected to go at Johnson's spot.

Defensive tackle Earl Edwards is also doubtful because of a jammed toe in last Sunday's 38-24 win over Cleveland. Except for the injured, coach Dick Nolan says he'll go with the same lineup that opened against Cleveland.

Peay Ends 3-Day Walkout, Agrees On Packer Return

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)— Veteran tackle Francis Peay ended his three-day walkout Wednesday and agreed to return to the Green Bay Packers "where I feel at home."

After talking with Peay by telephone Packers coach and general manager Dan Devine announced the 27-year old starting left tackle would report back to camp Friday, a decision that seemed to please everyone concerned.

Peay left camp without a word during Monday's drill and there were reports he had argued with an assistant coach. However, in a statement Wednesday, Devine reiterated a claim made Tuesday by Peay that there was no argument involved.

Madden Sees Films, Lauds Rookie Play

SANTA ROSA — Oakland Coach John Madden viewed films of the 25-24 opening exhibition loss to the visiting Philadelphia Eagles, then lauded Raider rookies' play.

He singled out linebacker Phil Villapiano for "being in the right place most of the time" in filling in for the sore back-plagued starter Gus Otto. The mentor also threw accolades at first year running back Clarence Davis for fine displays of open field running. Later, Davis analyzed his exploits; "I usually don't get caught from behind, referring to his being flattened following a 58-yard sprint.

Free safety Jack Tatum, replacing for the departed All-Pro Dave Grayson, also received warm words for his first-ever NFL performance.

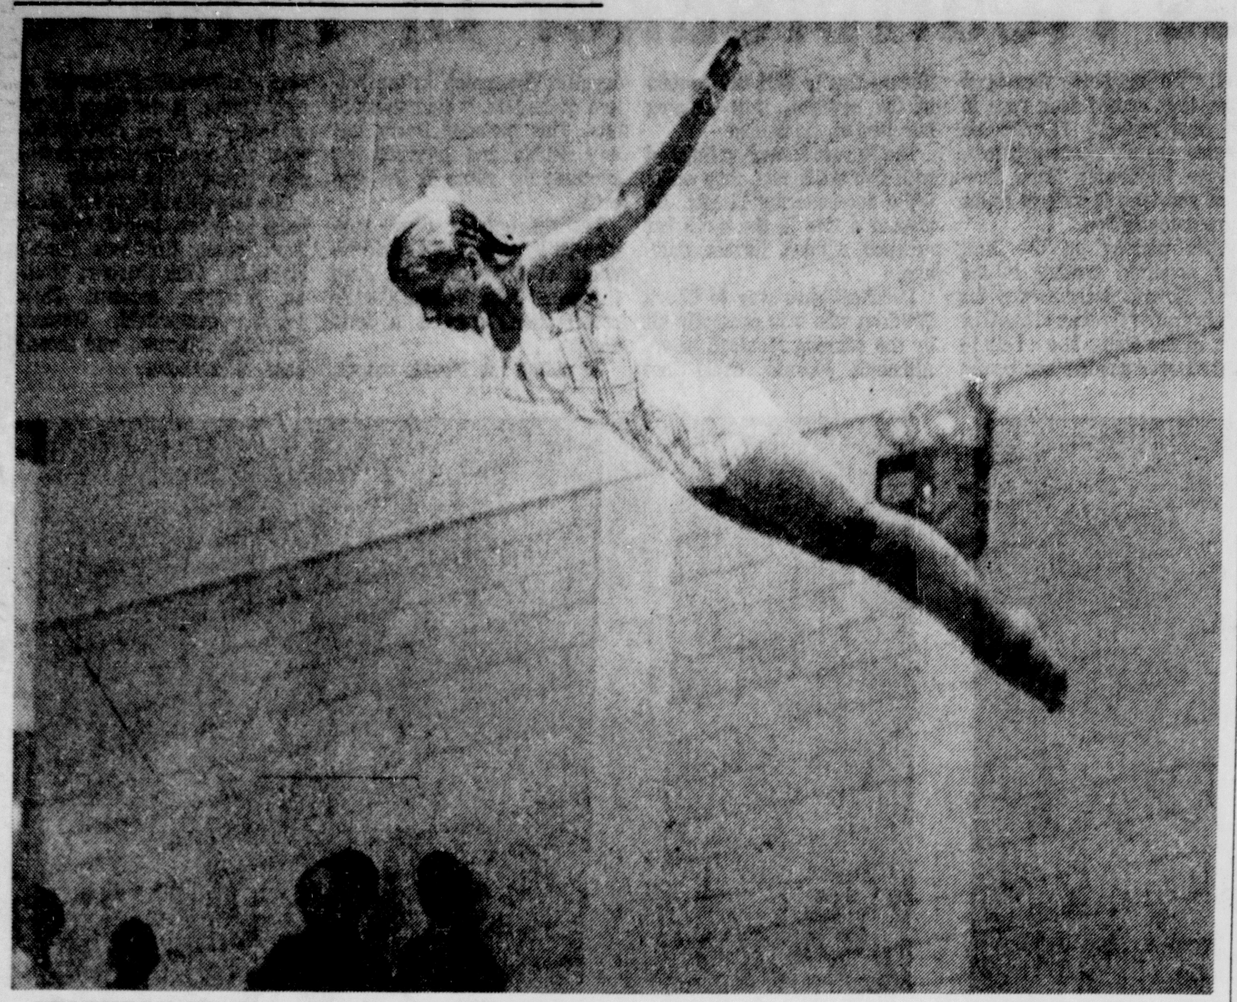

To no one's surprise, Madden said specialty teams' play was the least impressive factor. It was the punting units that allowed two blocked kicks, giving the Eagles nine points and victory. The coach also chose to reserve kind comments on the offensive line play which allowed Eagle rushers, led by Don Hultz, Gary Pettigrew and Mel Tom, to dump second year, second string signal caller Kenny Stabler six times.

Despite that, Stabler recorded what the coaching staff considered a "solid performance," albeit an erratic one.

Meanwhile, the squad continued prepping for the Joe Namath-less New York Jets' invasion of Oakland Saturday night. The Raiders will entertain the visitors without quarterback Daryle Lamonica, guard Jim Harvey and defensive end Tony Cline. While sitting out the first encounter, they were joined by linebacker Duane Benson and fullback Hewritt Dixon, banged up in the Eagle encounter.

The loss of the latter two will be balanced by the appearances of massive offensive tackle Bob Brown and Gus Otto. Brown will make this initial Raider showing after being shelved by post mosquito bite affects. The right hand of the 6-4, 290 pound veteran swelled severely following his meeting with the mosquito last week.

Fantastic U.S. Swimmers Hit Jackpot In Pan Am

CALI, Colombia (UPI) —The United States went into the final full day of competition in the Pan-American Games today with the knowledge it will fall short of its 1967 performance, but with plenty to cheer about in six Gold Medal winner Frank Heckl and the other brilliant American swimmers.

The blond, 6-foot-5 Heckl of Cerritos, Calif., became the greatest Gold Medal winner in the history of the Pan American games and the advance favorite for the 1972 Olympics in Munich by winning his fifth and sixth Gold Medals of the Games Wednesday night.

Heckl paced a sweep of the last five events in swimming for the U.S., which also gained two Gold Medals in wrestling, one in water polo, and one in men's volleyball for a total of 105 in the games.

The Americans also have a total of 216 medals. In today's final events, the U.S. has a chance to pick up only one more Gold Medal, in women's basketball. So the Americans cannot match their totals at the 1967 Pan-Am games in Winnipeg—120 Gold Medals and 225 total.

Cuba has 30 Gold and 101 total. While giving the U.S. a surprising battle in many sports, the men and women of Fidel Castro also failed to make good on a boast before the games by a Cuban official in Havana that Cuba would win 70 Gold and 200 overall.

Heckl concluded his fantastic swimming performance by winning the men's 100 meter freestyle in a games record of 52.8 seconds, and then anchoring the U.S. men's 400-meter freestyle relay that cracked another mark with a clocking of 3:56.1.

The figures tell how amazing the Yank swimmers were. The U.S. men won 16 out of 17 events. The American women, after being dominated by Canada in the early events when many of the U.S. girls were suffering from intestinal troubles, came storming back to win five of the last six events—tying the Canadians in Gold Medals in the final standings with eight each.

On the concluding swim program, the other U.S. champions were Sandra Neilson of El Monte, Calif., who won the women's 100 meter freestyle in 1:00.6; 13-year-old Cynthia Calhoun of Alhambra, Calif., who broke the games record in winning the women's 800-meter freestyle in 9:15.2; and Rick Early of Cincinnati, who won the men's platform diving with 479.07 points.

Another kind of American naval sports power, the water polo team, won its Gold Medal in a head-to-head battle with Cuba in the final game, beating the Cubans 6-4, as Bill Gerdts of San Jose, Calif., scored three goals. The Yanks were tied at 3-3 at halftime, scored three times in the third period, and then played defensively in the fourth to wrap it up.

In wrestling, the U.S. got two Gold Medals on the last day as Russell Hellickson of Madison, wis., won the light-heavyweight title and Dominic Carollo of Oklahoma City tied with Francisco Lonchan of Cuba for the heavyweight title. The U.S. won seven Gold Medals in grappling, Cuba four.

However, Cuba snatched the men's volleyball Gold Medal away from the U.S. by beating the Yanks, 15-6, 15-13, 15-10, in the final game. The U.S. took the Silver and Brazil the Bronze on a point basis as the three teams all finished with 4-1 records.

Christi Hanson of Canada took the Gold Medal in equestrian individual dressage and Cuba clinched first place in women's volleyball.

The women's basketball tournament is likely to wind up Thursday with a strange situation in which Cuba can win the Gold Medal for the United States, but not for itself.

The U.S., Cuba, and Brazil go into the final day of the women's basketball tied with 41 records. If the U.S. beats Ecuador as expected, it will all be up to the Cuba-Brazil game. If Brazil wins that, Brazil will be the champion. If Cuba wins, the U.S. will be the champion.

The United States won seven team championships at Winnipeg. So far it has won only one out of six here.

GAL JOCKEY WINS, GETS 'TREATMENT'

SALEM, N.H. (UPI)—Barbara Brown, a 17-year-old jockey, may be a little wet behind the ears but it's not for lack of experience.

The petite and pig-tailed teenager was doused with buckets of water Wednesday as she climbed stairs to the jockey's quarters after riding her first winner, Santee Trestle, to half-length victory in the third race at Rockingham Park. The victory made her the youngest "jockette" in the country to win a race.

"I knew they douse a rider after he wins his first race," said Barbara, a native of Haverhill, Mass. "But I wasn't sure they would do it to a girl."

"What "they" didn't do was complete the ritual.

Normally, a jockey who wins his first race is given the water treatment and then his clothes are removed and a black shoe polish applied to every inch of the body.

Stanford Netter Upsets Scott; Stockton Wins

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (UPI) —Stanford University's Gery Groslimond upset Gene Scott of New York, the second seed, Wednesday 1-6, 7-5, 6-3, to reach the quarterfinals of the United States Men's Amateur Grass Court Tennis Championships with favorites Dick Stockton of Port Washington, N.Y. and John Gardner of Australia.

Stockton, a Trinity (Tex.) player, seeded first, scored three service breaks to eliminate John Kamrath of Houston, 6-3, 6-3. Gardner, an SMU player who was runnerup last year, beat Paul Christian, University of Houston tennis coach, 6-1, 6-1.

Rams To Give Gabriel More Work Tomorrow

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI)—Roman Gabriel, the Los Angeles Rams' No. 1 quarterback, will play six series against the Cleveland Browns at the Coliseum Friday night, coach Tommy Prothro disclosed Wednesday.

Gabriel was used in four series last weekend in a 45-21 setback to the Dallas Cowboys. In the Rams' exhibition opener two weeks ago, he played in two series as Los Angeles beat Houston 17-6.

Rookie Dennis Dummit of UCLA will play after Gabriel.

"My plan is to play the veterans at an increasing rate each week," Prothro said. "Our preseason planning is geared to getting everybody mentally and physically ready for our league opener."

The Rams are scheduled to play at New Orleans in their National Football League opening game Sept. 19.

Change For the Good

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Bill "Bucky" Walters, a light-hitting third baseman who switched to the pitching mound, holds the all-time Reds' record for most wins in a single season. Walters won 27 games in the Reds' 1939 pennant winning year.

Bambi Turns Tiger, Cowboys Are Happy

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Bambi has turned tiger.

Lance Alworth, the veteran pass receiver who earned the nickname "Bambi" for his graceful gait and leaping ability, has shown Dallas Coach Tom Landry that he's more than just a pass receiver against Los Angeles last week.

"Alworth was very impressive with his blocking," said Landry Wednesday of the former American Football League receiving star who cost the Cowboys three players to get him from San Diego this season. "He hit everybody who came close. And that's what we need to make our running game go as you will recall from last season. It was very encouraging to see him perform like that."

Alworth, rebounding from a leg injury, caught three passes for 50 yards in last week's 45-21 victory over the Rams.

"He still is a bit rough in running the pass patterns because he isn't operating at full speed and hasn't had that much practice."

Landry also said that Roger Staubach will start at quarterback against the New Orleans Saints Saturday night as the Dallas coach attempts to decide between Staubach and Craig Morton as No. 1 quarterback.

The Saints traded guard Doug Sutherland to the Minnesota Vikings for running back Bill Harris. Harris was out most of last season after injuring his knee in pre-season action.

The New York Giants, who seem to be having trouble keeping players in camp, had another walk out on them Wednesday when punter Bill Johnson left. Johnson, the Giants' regular punter last season, reportedly was disgusted with his performance thus far this season. Earlier defensive end Wes Grant stormed out and was traded to Miami and quarterback Fran Tarkenton left the team Monday in a contract dispute.

McGraw Suffers Sting Ray Bite In Pacific, Okay

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—New York Mets pitcher Tug McGraw was stung on the right big toe by a sting ray while swimming in the Pacific Wednesday.

Lifeguards at Mission Beach called a local doctor, who cauterized the wound. Sting rays are bat-like water creatures that carry a barbed sting in their long, slim tails.

McGraw suited up for Wednesday night's game against the Padres, but Manager Gil Hodges said he did not intend to use McGraw for a day or two, because of the pain of the sting.

LITTLE LEAGUE

Novato Starting Team Announced

Novato Little League All-Star pitching ace Kurt Sears will open for the Marin County nine in its bid to eliminate Marysville tomorrow at 5:30 p.m. during the Divisional Tournament first round. Station KTIM will broadcast the game live.

The powerful pitcher will bat cleanup in an order that includes second baseman Phil Sorensen, rightfielder Mat Listman, shortstop Tim Wilson, Sears, leftfielder Ernie Galliani, first baseman Walt Kaurin, centerfielder Bob Haskell, third baseman Tom Carrigan and catcher Roy Olsen.

After disclosing this tentative lineup, Novato manager Sheridan Moats revealed that Galliani probably will start the following day in either the Divisional championship or consolation contest. If Galliani doesn't go, Carrigan will. In either case, Moats says, Billy Conklin will be ready in the bullpen. "He's a fine little reliever," Moats believes.

If Novato is victorious, it would meet the Cupertino American-Lincoln Glen winner; the two San Jose squads square off today. The surviving team would qualify for the Regional Tournament in San Bernardino next week.

Meanwhile, Moats' boys are practicing at home, hoping to slip past a tenacious Marysville squad after capturing the Section II championship last Saturday at Vacaville, pounding out a 9-5 dicision over the Airport All-Stars, Sacramento.

Should Novato fail in its quest, the team would face its disappointed counterpart in a consolation match Saturday at 11 a.m.

Plunkett Protection Keys Pats' Planning

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI)— The New England Patriots, ever mindful of Joe Namath's fate, plan the utmost in protection for rookie quarterback Jim Plunkett.

"This kid is a great athlete," said Coach John Mazur in detailing his rationale for using Plunkett only sparingly in the pre-season games. "He'll have to be able to take care of himself. We just have to make sure that we don't leave him exposed now."

Mazur, whose club worked out for nearly 30 minutes in a downpour Wednesday afternoon at their University of Massachusetts training site, said Plunkett wouldn't have played last weekend at Minnesota if their starting defensive linemen hadn't left the game.

"I didn't want to give those guys a shot at him," Mazur said. "They probably might like nothing better than to nail him good a couple of times."

Plunkett, for his part, is ready for the "physical" aspect of pro quarterbacking but admits to being a "dummy" at times on the field.

"Some quarterbacks can throw the ball and still protect themselves. I just can't do it," he said. "I never watch anyone coming at me because I'm always looking downfield at the receivers."

Mazur said the Pats would play it by ear this weekend in Foxboro on the Plunkett situation.

"Against the Giants I'll see what the trend is and if I think I've got the right spot for him, he'll go in," the coach said.

One Woman 'Beats' Pro In Tourney

Only one woman, Mrs. A. N. Nichols, outscored club professional Don Rumpf Tuesday as 22 members of the San Geronimo National Women's Golf Club competed in a "Beat The Pro" tournament.

Of course, Rumpf played scratch while the challengers used their handicaps. Mrs. Nichols shot 88-14 — 74, while Rumpf's scratch score was 76. He was tied by Mrs. Robert McDannold's 90-14 — 76 card.

Other scores of women in Class A were Mesdames L. P. Gapinski, 84-7 — 77 and Tom Baldwin, 91-14 — 77.

Class B leaders: Mmes. Harry Kester, 102-24 — 78; Fred Laubscher, 112-34 — 78; William Jaccard, 111-28 — 83.

KELLY WOLFE of San Geronimo and Bruce R. Hubbell of Fairfax are among those entered in the Amateur Championship Sectional Qualifying Rounds at Silverado Country Club in Napa Monday.

Hubbell plays out of the Meadow Club and Wolfe is a San Geronimo National Golf Club product.

Women Bowlers To Install New Officers

Marin County Women's Bowling Association will hold an open meeting Saturday at 1 p.m. in the Corte Madera Edgewater Inn.

The agenda includes seating of new officers and selecting six delegates to next year's National Convention at Kansas City, plus another 10 to the state convention in San Jose.

Officers and directors beginning new terms are: First Vice President, Lil Scotto; Second Vice President, Ann Arnott; Secretary, Doris Sooy; Sergeant at Arms, Leemoi Bekey; Directors, Anne Baccei, Gayle Chu; Bea Hoffmann, Nikki Periman, Delores Ray, Eloise Simpson, Nancy Wurz, Dolly Manzi, and Pat Weddell.

Rose Bowl Record

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)— The 48-yard field goal kicked by Steve Horowitz in Stanford's 27-17 victory over Ohio State was the longest field goal in 57 Rose Bowl games. The boot surpassed George Fleming's 44-yarder for the University of Washington over Minnesota in the 1961 game.

OPENING GAMES TONIGHT

Drake Rated Co-Favorite In DiMaggio Tournament

Defending champions San Francisco Beach League, represented by Valente-Marini-Perata, and Drake of Marin South were tabbed as last minute "teams-to-Beat" in the Joe DiMaggio Regional Tournament opening tonight at 6 o'clock on San Rafael's Albert Field, tourney Director Gary Hughes reports.

The four-day event opener features Valente-Marini-Perata against Outdoor Store of Eureka at 6 followed some two and one-half hours later by the Marin South-Ukiah Elks clash. Sporting a solid 26-4 won-lost mark, Outdoor Store outlasted Flynn's Inn during a special playoff for the right to meet the tourney co-favorite Valente.

Last year's champions will go with ace righthanded pitcher Juan Eichelberger in a lineup that includes cathcer Frank O'Leary, first sacker Rick Vujovich, second baseman Mel Gonzales, shortstop Amos Hewitt, third baseman Whiff Collins, leftfielder Ron Weaver, centerfielder Dwane Price, rightfielder Greg Kimball and Eichelberger.

The Eureka opposition will counter with catcher Dave Lonn, first baseman Ron Prontoni, second baseman Ron Borges, shortstop Rich Dickerson, third sacker Steve Van Deren, left fielder Hal Smith, centerfielder Dave Tomini, rightfielder Paul Tomini and pitcher Chris Hutton.

Hutton threw a perfect game in DiMaggio League play; observers believe this game could develop into an impressive pitching duel.

A pre-game dedication ceremony will be held honoring the memory of the late Corrado "Red" Pinochi, the former Eureka Joe DiMaggio League president and founder. His widow will accept an appropriately inscribed plaque.

After the ceremony and Eureka-S.F. Beach League battle, Marin South, represented by Drake, will swing into action against Ukiah. This solid unit will feature catcher Mike Bauman, first baseman Clifford Hall, second sacker Steve Hale, shortstop Alan Curtiss, third baseman Cap Purcell, leftfielder John Billings, centerfielder John Loane, rightfielder Don Asay and pitcher Tom Olson.

The Ukiah Elks, victorious in Redwood Empire play, will field catcher Mike Tate, first baseman Ron Rinehart, second sacker Mike Heath, shortstop Jeff Haskill, third baseman Tony Shimitz, leftfielder Rod Christenson, centerfielder Mike Deering, rightfielder Mike Flynn and pitcher John Kullman.

The Valente-Eureka winner will face Holiday Magic from Marin North tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. The latter will present catcher Bruce Maglione, first baseman Bruce D'Ambra, second sacker Jim Thorn, shortstop Ken Burns, third baseman Dave Urquhart, leftfielder Gary Nelson, centerfielder Dick Gansloser, rightfielder Holt Green and pitcher John Klinger.

When that game is finished, the Drake-Ukiah survivor will confront Swinteton-Wallberg of the San Francisco Bay League. S-W will show catcher Mike Fauss, first sacker Cal Pritchett, second baseman Grant Becker, shortstop Larry Terry, third sacker Vic Lopez, leftfielder Rene Mariluch, centerfielder Art Bridgeman, rightfielder Dave Castiglioni and pitcher Bob Starks.

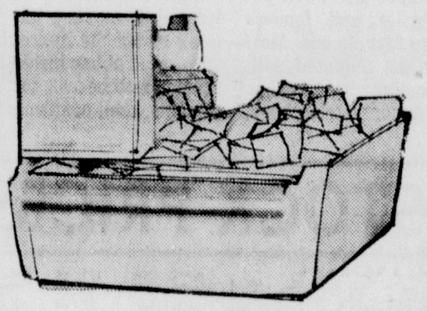

In this double elimination tourney, losers will meet at 6 and 8:15 tomorrow night, while the unbeaten teams play Saturday at 3:45 p.m. Contests will also be held at 6 and 8:15 that evening to determine the undefeated team's opponent for Sunday's finals at 1:30 p.m.

Admission is $1.

Birdies' Birth

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) —The golf term "birdie" was coined in 1899 during a match at the Atlantic City Country Club. On the second hole, par four, one of the golfers sank his ball in three strokes. "That was a bird of a shot," another player exclaimed.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Liquidity: Factor For Consideration

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We have $8,500 invested in series E savings bonds. As a hedge against inflation we have been advised to redeem these bonds and invest in good growth stocks. What do you advise? — D. O.

A. It would seem from your letter that your $8,500 in E bonds represents your total capital. If so, I'd think twice about redeeming them all and investing the proceeds in stocks — an area in which I assume you have had very little experience. Series E bonds are not only the safest of obligations, they are really as good as cash, since they are redeemable without advance notice after two months of holding. If you wish some protection against inflation I would redeem $1,500 in E bonds and put the proceeds into Pacific Gas & Electric, a good growth West Coast utility with a well-secured 5 per cent yield.

Q. Could you explain what a refund annuity is? — B.W.

A. A refund annuity guarantees you, the owner, a specified income for life. In addition, it provides that if the monthly payments received up to the owner's death are less than the amount paid for the annuity, the company will continue the monthly payments to a beneficiary until the original purchase price is fully returned.

Q. Why can't I find a quote on my NYSE stock in the paper every day? Is this a typographer's error? — G.G.

A. It could be, although quotations are surprisingly accurate, considering the monumental task involved daily. Some papers, however, print only an abbreviated list of the better-known and more heavily traded issues. And, not all stocks trade every day. Many of the larger city papers carry a list of bid and ask prices of those issues which have not traded that day. If you do not find your stock quoted in the regular NYSE listing, check this supplementary list. If it is not posted in your local paper, you will find it quoted in the Wall St. Journal.

Big Gain In Market; Heavy Trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market closed sharply higher in heavy trading today.

The consensus among Wall Street analysts was that the market was rallying from an extremely oversold condition which they termed a "technical" recovery.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index rose 1.28 to 95.94.

Of 1,600 issues on the tape, 1,112 advanced, 301 declined.

Among the day's biggest favorites were electronics, chemicals, and airlines.

Motors, rails and aircrafts also attracted demand, while steels traded narrowly.

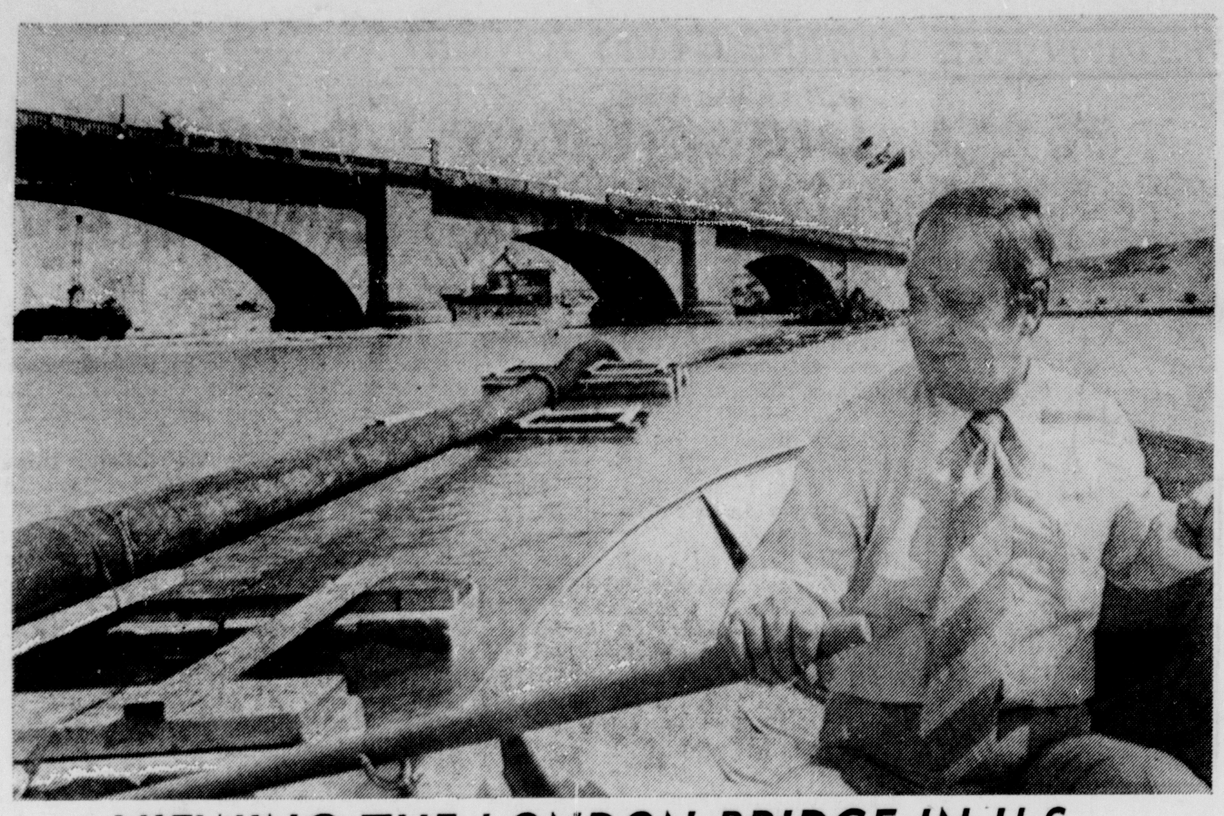

Among the day's most active stocks were Sony Corp., Litton, Evans Products, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Gulf Oil, Western Union, and Reynolds Metals.

Prices advanced in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange.

VIEWING THE LONDON BRIDGE IN U.S.

C. V. Wood, president of the McCulloch Corp., rows along the Colorado River as it flows beneath the nearly completed reconstruction of the London Bridge. The McCulloch Corp. bought the bridge, brought it to its development in Lake Havasu City, Ariz., and put it all together again. The pipe at left is from the drege that is digging the channel beneath the bridge, which will be finished in October. (UPI Telephoto)

Florida, Hawaii In Real Estate Lead

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — A recent study by the National Real Estate Exchange shows Florida and Hawaii to have by far the strongest positions — real estate-wise — in the United States.

Following closely on the basis or stability and growth are Washington, California, Arizona, Virginia and Colorado with Texas split between a strong market in part of the state and a weak market in the other.

Shock-Absorbing Bumpers Aim: Cut Low-Speed Collision Costs

DETROIT (UPI)—The jury is still out on whether the new shock-absorbing bumpers which will appear on 1973 automobiles will cut damage repair costs for motorists.

Some Detroit experts say damage repair costs will go down not only on cars equipped with such bumpers but on cars they're in collision with that don't have them. Others point to the cost of the new bumpers and say, "maybe."

Any conclusion must be based on collisions under 10 miles per hour. The new bumpers planned now won't give much damage protection in high speed accidents.

The reason they should lessen car damage in low speed collisions — and there are a lot of them, in parking lots and on crowded highways — is basic. The new bumper will stick put from the grille and fenders from three to four inches. Most of them will be mounted with either hydraulic or rubber equipped support telescopes, much like present shock absorbers.

In a low speed collision, these systems would telescope three to four inches, then return to their normal positions without damage to the grille or fender of the car equipped with them.

If the protective bumper hit a car without such a bumper, some of the impact would be absorbed, reducing the forces exerted on the other car. There probably would be some damage, but its seriousness would be minimized by that four-inch "give" in the shock-absorbing bumper.

General Motors currently plans to equip its cars with the hydraulic-type bumper mounts. Ford has decided to go with a rubber system instead of hydrulic fluids. The telescope supports look similar in the Ford bumper. But instead of hydraulic fluids moving the bumper back under the hydraulic pressure, the rubber inside the telescope stretches as the bumper retracts, then contracts to original position when the forces are spent.

Chrysler has not said yet what system it will use. There's a third method, probably cheapest of all. Bumper supports can be made of a metal that will deform at a controlled rate. With this method, the bumper would not return to original position, so a repair shop would have to straighten or replace the metal supports. Ford experimented with this system, and some may show up on its lower priced, smaller models.

The overall question in all bumper debates is: Will it reduce costs to the motorists? Ford's bumpers have been priced out at $108 per car for front and rear protection.

Obviously, the main objective of the new bumpers is reduction in repair costs, not safety. So, in the case of bumpers costing $108, you'd be gambling that repair costs would be higher than that figure over the long haul.

Boise Cascade Begins Work On Townhouses On Old Ranch Site

Ground has now been broken in Novato by Boise Cascade for Parkhaven, its first townhouse project in the Bay Area.

This will be on Novato Boulevard between the Trumbull Estates and Regalia Drive, occupying the former 59-acre Oliva Ranch which was purchased by Boise Cascade from Mrs. Silvio Oliva. Mrs. Oliva and her late husband, owners of the Exposition Fish Grotto in San Francisco, bought the property in 1946 to raise white-faced Hereford cattle. Now it will contain two and three-bedroom townhouses, the first of these to open in November.

Boise Cascade will convert the Oliva Ranch home into a recreation center for Parkhaven residents and add a heated pool complex. The original stables will be kept and renovated. Only 19 acres will be used for the townhouses. The rest of the ranch will be left in its natural state, dedicated to the City of Novato.

THERE IS DEFINITELY a new look to the building at 633 Irwin Street, San Rafael, purchased by Frank Bertolli for an auto repair business.

After much remodeling and repainting this is now known as Bertolli's Auto and Truck Service, doing work on domestic and imported cars and trucks. Bertolli has been many years in auto repair — with Campbell-Bishop Chevrolet, Dexter Pontiac and with G and K Auto Repair in San Francisco.

Edgar Filippelli, who had G and K, has sold out, moved to San Rafael and is now Bertolli's service manager. He has had 25 years in auto repair.

BRAVING THE PROSPECT of misfortune traditionally ascribed to Friday the 13th, Raymond Guagliano of Mill Valley will open his new barbershop, Ray's at 144 Throckmorton Street in that city tomorrow.

While the name is new for this location, the shop is not for Guagliano, who has been working here for James Marotta, who called it Jim's.

Marotta sold out to Guagliano and expects to retire, except for occasional part time work.

Guagliano's challenge to Friday the 13th is based on his 12 years at Jim's, his father's previous success as a Mill Valley shoe store owner, and that of his uncle as a tailor here — a family total of some 60 years in business locally with no major setbacks from ill omens.

THE GOLDEN TEE condominium development in Santa Rosa is having its grand opening tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to sundown. This is located in Bennett Valley on Yulupa Avenue near Bennett Valley Golf Club. Turn off Bennett Valley Road at Bethards Road and then into Yulupa.

Units are air conditioned, carpeted, with built-in AM-FM radio and intercom and views over the valley. There are a swimming pool, sauna baths and other recreation and clubhouse facilities. Cooper and Towery Development Co. is the owner. Golden West Realty is the sales agent.

Russell

WILLIAM R. DONNELLY of Marinwood has been promoted to regional sales manager for Sherwood Medical Industries, Inc., where he supervises this firm's marketing of Monojet and Argyle medical supplies in the central region. He has been with the company three years and has been a medical salesman in the western region.

MELVIN R. RUSSELL of Corte Madera, assistant vice president in Crocker Bank's general systems department in San Francisco, has been appointed assistant vice president in the San Francisco operations department. He joined the bank in 1968 after 30 years in the Army and was made assistant vice president earlier this year.

Recycling Of Plastics Seminar Set

HAYWARD, Calif. (BW) — Shaklee Products, an international manufacturer of ecologically benefical products for home and industry, will host a one-day seminar on recycling and disposal of plastics Aug. 18 at the San Francisco Hilton. The seminar will feature introduction of a new plastic that is both water soluble and edible.

According to James M. Rossman, a chemical expert for Hercules Inc., Wilmington, Del., and a featured seminar speaker, the newly developed plastic material may be the answer to the the nation's plastic disposal problem.

Lee Shaklee, vice president of the firm, has said his company is considering a return to glass containers unless a suitable and safe means of disposing of plastics is found, or a biodegradable plastic is discovered.

Joining Rossman on the seminar panel will be Robert Layer, a structural engineer from Chicago who will report on new developments in "plascrete," a mixture that uses plastic as the filler material for concrete and cement. This could be a major breakthrough in disposing of plastic products.

Dr. Elmer Kaiser of New York University will present his latest findings in recycling plastics. Lloyd Darden, Western regional manager for the Society of the Plastics Industry, and Jack Jones, public relations director for the society, also will serve on the panel.
